I have made enough already. Now let's be civilized and decide when to stay in/reinvest and when the rest of the market will rebound. We know that other coins will take BTC's place. Let's discuss when/which those will be.

quackyboy - January 15, 2018, 6:58 pm

everyone recommending others to new coins have to be kids, hold you coins in a few years time it'll go back up again the point in investing isn't to make a few bucks in a week it's to make a couple of hundred in a couple of years

What I mean by that post is there's no money in the new coins everyone knows btc not these new ones

shreder - January 15, 2018, 7:01 pm

yeah please sell need accumulating zones to be hit hell even lower will be better.

Bluffer - January 15, 2018, 7:04 pm

I bought $115 worth right as it dropped to about 12900 and already profited a few bucks, I think this is just a small dive and now its recovering already. I don't want to speak too soon though.

My point is BTC is going to go up again soon, nobody can predict when but those who stay in have balls, those who cash out when it dips a couple hundred (or even by a thousand) bucks are the ones who wont make money off of Bitcoin.

Stockholm - January 15, 2018, 7:23 pm

The thing is, every day crypto is getting bigger and bigger. Every second its being introduced to new people whom never heard of it before and this is just the beginning. 2018 will be huge for crypto, that includes btc. Market goes down atleast 2 times a month and we keep seeing panic threads about it being the end

Exactly and little do people know... buying while it's low is the best thing one can do.

That's how you make money off of it.

Manks - January 15, 2018, 7:27 pm

It's hard to create predictions on something so versatile and new as a market.

One of the key things I read about "bubble stages" was this:

Quote:The interference of central banks such as the Federal Reserve appear to be exaggerating the amplitude of bubbles and the manias that fuel them. One of the key things about BTC is that it is decentralized, therefore it could follow a different pattern.

I'm glad the bubble is finally bursting. I'd love to see BTC go well under 10k again and let cryptos have a functioning market again without these incredible rises for no reason. The technology isn't mature enough to add the value to the economy that the greedy are pricing into the market.

Everything has been crap while cryptos have been skyrocketing in value. It wasn't going to last long. And before those who talk about how BTC will rise again...yes, it will. But BTC hit $1200+ in 2013 then crashed and didn't get back to that price for almost 4 years.

Heck it was only one year ago it reached that high. So fuck all you nitwits that think you're rich because you've been involved in a market that was one-day going to pop.

BTC hit a high over $19k in 2018. Regulation is a problem and so is adoption. Valuations have to be justified by real world economics and not skids with portfolios saying HODL everyday.

BTC sunk to $200 after being $1200. I don't see why BTC can't go from $19k to $3-5k at some point this year. We may not see BTC $20k for 2+ years once the markets settle down and applications of the technology as well as regulation are more obvious.

And people talk about it "recovering" as if the $17k price was normal. That was NOT NORMAL. It was inflated and unjustified and we still have huge issues with pricing and utility.

Some of you need a serious reality check and it's only the greed of your portfolios that you're thinking with.

Can't really compare back then to now because the volume today alone is $57 billion and back then the volume was what like $100 million max daily. Weak hands will get shaken out and we'll see a rise again. This year and next year will be the years where real companies will start doing ico's and will start raising billions of dollars such as telegram which is doing an ico and we'll see crypto reach in trillions for market cap. If crypto reaches $2-$3+ trillion market cap and people are investing their whole life savings into crypto then you could start worrying about a bubble burst but right now $500 billion market cap is nothing since this is a worldwide thing not something where only people from a certain country can join. I'm long on cryptos but that's 10 years, not 10 months.

Wow, there is a ton of ignorance in that statement. If anything knowing what a bubble is can be a great way to make money. What do you think of this project named Agrello that is trying to start ILPs (Initial Lending Procurements) using legally binding smart contracts.

Basically in an ILP you lend money to a blockchain startup in return for tokens. Due to the legally binding smart contracts they are required to eventually pay you back your entire loan.

(Jan 16, 2018 05:12 PM)Qtum Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can't really compare back then to now because the volume today alone is $57 billion and back then the volume was what like $100 million max daily. Weak hands will get shaken out and we'll see a rise again. This year and next year will be the years where real companies will start doing ico's and will start raising billions of dollars such as telegram which is doing an ico and we'll see crypto reach in trillions for market cap. If crypto reaches $2-$3+ trillion market cap and people are investing their whole life savings into crypto then you could start worrying about a bubble burst but right now $500 billion market cap is nothing since this is a worldwide thing not something where only people from a certain country can join. N as far as i know i haven't met one single person who's investing their whole savings into crypto. Most people i ask only invest like $1k max.

I don't think that Bitcoin is dead yet but there has to eventually be a point where it just can't go up anymore. Where that point will be $50k? $75k? $150k? Nobody knows, but there will be a maximum point it will reach.

This is why people keep getting pissed

"The Sunk Cost Fallacy. The Misconception: You make rational decisions based on the future value of objects, investments and experiences. The Truth: Your decisions are tainted by the emotional investments you accumulate, and the more you invest in something the harder it becomes to abandon it."

That pattern could apply to tons of other points in the graph too. If you're cashing out based on this picture alone then you deserve to get FUDed out of the market.

DBS2017 - January 17, 2018, 12:11 am

For me, it's the time to invest in the bitcoins cause when it goes up, people nearby you spreads the news bitcoin is going up!! when it goes down... the same thing happens.

It only makes it more popular

SLY - January 17, 2018, 3:02 am

I'll take that bitcoin off your hands for you.

ganstephanos - January 17, 2018, 1:39 pm

I'll be interested to see if BTC actually hits $5.6k. Not that I would care much, it'll just be a good time to buy-in even more.

bandors - January 19, 2018, 8:08 am

I think a lot of HF traffic was generated by sellers. I think since the mempool got clugged a couple months ago, a lot of sellers stopped. People didn't wanna pay 10$ transaction fee to buy my 9.95$ software

?lpha - January 19, 2018, 8:51 am

OP only looks at charts and prices but neglects the technical and economical aspects of bitcoin and cryptocurrency in general. In the long run bitcoin will thrive especially now the scale-ability and throughput issues are addressed.

I bet OP just bought in high again bc FOMO ?

krishnaverma - January 20, 2018, 5:00 am

This has happened in past as well, nothing to worry about. We should be scared when there is something major announcement like US government banning it.

Government wont care as long as you are paying your taxes, after all, all they care about is money they get from it :D

SIM-611976 - January 20, 2018, 5:59 am

Honestly it doesn't even matter where BTC goes (though up is higher probability than down for now) - invest smart into new stuff for easy 10x or higher gains, that will always work.

I invested personally in a Flash Sale going on right now (as seen in my thread) which will definitely do just that, I put all the research on it

DelziumTheProudWhale_temp - January 20, 2018, 9:52 am bet op is already hanging from the ceiling

EdoFazlinovic - January 20, 2018, 12:23 pm

Crypto is present and future. I don't know why people even make this useless threads. If you wanna leave, leave peacefully. Nobody have to know about it.

Beerus Sama - January 20, 2018, 12:56 pm

You made the wrong assumption. Bitcoin is like no other bubble. This is the worlds first global bubble. It'll go significantly higher...

Franklins Graphics - January 20, 2018, 5:01 pm considering that you do not know when that first graph was created. It could be fake. However, Bitcoin is going to drop. I mean, why would anyone buy something online and be fine with not receiving it. It is not like they come in the mail.

Aged like fine wine

Omniscient - January 3, 2025, 1:51 pm

This is a 7 year old thread. What's very interesting is that even at the very peak of BTC pricing every single member here would be happy to have bought and held.

AI Quote:

- Highest Closing Price: $17,527 on January 6, 2018.

- Lowest Price: Approximately $3,300 on December 7, 2018.

The lesson is really simple, buy Bitcoin, HOLD and STFU. Do you think today if you bought 1 BTC at $17k or $3k you'd care? Your BTC buy price is nearly meaningless on any long-term scale.

NEVER SELL!

I thought the same way back in 2017-18, I honestly thought it was a bubble too. No one would've thought it'll even reach above $10k.
