Aren't these types of boosts dangerously obvious if you 10-0 faceroll everyone with a different champion pool?

?lex - January 16, 2018, 5:49 pm

No matter how you finish you'll always fall down 3 tiers, so..

It's not wrong. What you wrote doesn't make sense.

You didn't play Season 7 so naturally you had a fresh mmr and not a Riot set one, for example as if you were Gold 3 in season 6. If you were gold 3 in season 6, you'd end up Silver 1 - Gold 5 in this season. So it is true. This however doesn't apply to the unranked accounts like yourself.

Also, if it was an "unranked account", the highest you can go is plat V from 10/0 and no prior MMR.

This is straight bullshit. I've been placed p3, going 10-0.

Not sure if you are both stupid or just ignorant and can't read what Riot posted. Everyone starts lower than the previous season. So if you started P3 you were either unranked previous season or played on a Diamond+ season 6 account.

Thats not true because in Season you can maximum get Gold 1 with a fresh unranked Account.

Lmao I went 8-2 and I dropped a 5 ranks (1tier) on one of my accounts.

Sh0cka7 - January 22, 2018, 6:02 pm

Diamond players will start in plat. Maybe Gold if they get 0-10

Silver players with good placements may start in gold actually

The mmr Reset is bigger for High elo and Smaller for Low elo SO it is actually "good" for low elo players but makes high elo fight for their lives in higher ladders... it is a tryhard bloodbath!

You can probably find an equation of mmr reset if you look for it in google. Do some math to confirm
