It's called "StayFocusd". It blocks any website that you believe is distracting you.

Okay but if I really wanted to procrastinate I'd uninstall it...?

I think I'd have more success throwing my computer and phone out the window entirely.

I'd be the type of guy that would open a different browser then.

There's better tools around in which you can't even bypass access to blacklisted sites.

If you're on Mac try SelfControl: <https://selfcontrolapp.com/>

You set a timer and until it's done you cannot visit certain websites. Deleting the app doesn't work.

Then people would just use their phones to browse websites.

Applications like this are kinda useless.

Yea if I really wanted to not do shit, I would not do shit. I've tried something like this before and it's pretty useless.
