Thread: Help:VPN for my portforwarding rat

HotTunaCanSandiwch - January 22, 2018, 10:14 am hey guys so I'm portforwarding my rat on my dynamic ip, but I dont feel safe as its directly connected to my ip and as my ip is dynamic it changes from time to time and I llose my connection to the host.

please let me know. even though its a paid service.

cheers

Get a VPN that allows port forwarding. Also, one that doesn't keep logs. They are super easy to port forward.

Cheers, best of luck. ?

thanks for the info, what if I use a hosting service like noip ? is that considered secure=? even though I understand you can never be too secure

Well with no-ip you'll get kind of the opposite of secure since its owned by Microsoft

I recommend crypticVPN ,it has portforward, doesnt log what you do, and a few other options that could be helpful for all ur VPN needs.
