Thread: [From 0 to 150K \[2017\]](#)

Depressed eGirl - January 27, 2018, 2:30 am

OK so at the start of 2017 I was literally broke and I used to think twice before I spend a cent. I never went out and never bought something that I "don't really need"

Things started going much better and I ended 2017 with like 150k$ made .. they always told me I'm noob and I'll never do anything etc..

The only thing I've really learned here is that we are much smarter than working 5-9 jobs. Not going to stop til' I'm filthy rich ?

Right now I'm starting my 2018 journey (yeah i took a break and wanted some time for myself). Let's see what 2017 got to offer.

here you can see 50k cash:

Comes in to brag about getting 150k, ignores everyone telling him he has outstanding deal disputes:
replies to the most pointless post in the thread.

Has nobody in this section heard of a fucking bank,

We earn a lot, we spend a lot ?

That's what debit and credit cards are for ?

When you spend £300 in a restaurant, do you pull out £300 or use a card?

It sounds weird, but the only people that use a lot of cash-in-hand around here are the less well-off people, just my 2 cents.

It's easy to buy fake money instead of making a picture of your bank account and then people asking you to refresh it and make a video.
