Thread: RAM got confused, thinks it's CPU, and Ethernet thinks it's RAM

Payload - February 3, 2018, 5:33 pm

One of my servers was getting cucked, this had me laughing so I decided to share..

If anyone knows where I can get 1.3 GHz RAM and 256 GB Ethernet, i'll be the first to buy. ?

Probably a CPU issue. I would say reinstall the os but if it was the cpu it would fail to actually install partial way through. I have seen a few cpu's go and the tall tail sign for me is when other things start having errors that you no are good. A bad cpu will generally blame everything but itself for being broken or confuse it's asshole with its mouth haha.

Weird shit like this on high loads happens all the time for me, not just this server. This one just happened to put everything in the funny places.

The heck are you doing on the server. I have a few server that are generally on high cpu load and ram like 80-90% on both but rarely use the storage and only have had errors when it was a network error.

Curious if I may ask what are you using it for?

X???????????????? - February 16, 2018, 7:45 pm

I hope you're using Windows Server for some Microsoft enterprise shit >.>
