Thread: [\[VIDEO\] I reported a huge bug in a giant company - FREE FOOD 200k RESTAUNTS](#)

The Blunt - February 3, 2018, 6:38 pm

* The numbers shown in the video are not accurate seeds for obvious reasons.

I found an exploit in 200k+ restaurant brands and reported it along with this tool for them to patch. Pretty cool? Yes no?

Mr. Robot - February 3, 2018, 7:23 pm

Nice one mate, what was the payment?

Lavish Living - February 3, 2018, 7:29 pm

are these just restaurants with no captchas when checking gift cards so it's easy as 123 to crack orrr

Biggy - February 4, 2018, 4:36 am

Did they give you a payout? Curious to know. Either way, nice job.

Windows - February 4, 2018, 5:02 am

What was the payout for something like this? Personally I would have used this or sold it.. that's if the payout wasn't good.

Elitas - February 4, 2018, 5:25 am

This sounds pretty cool, would love to see how much you got paid for it.

Selling something like this elsewhere, would return a LOT of cash for sure...

CRATER - February 10, 2018, 9:06 am

I hope you got a good payout you could make a ton with this

Saltpeter - February 10, 2018, 9:39 am

Nice job. I am also curious at the kind of payout you would get for something like this.

Lukas - February 10, 2018, 10:03 am

If you couldn't get free What-A-Burger, I don't care.

The Blunt - February 22, 2018, 1:18 am

Me neither.

Tsukiri - February 22, 2018, 1:30 am

Keep in mind it can still be bullshit as all the GIF does is listing some random numbers and company names. Not saying it is, but this is not something to be considered definite proof.

Anyway, what was the payout, assuming it is real?

The bot is checking gift card numbers and checks their balances, meaning he basically has unlimited gift cards = Free food

LuX98 - February 22, 2018, 10:19 am

Nice job OP. Can you give us a figure?

Divined - February 22, 2018, 7:11 pm

So you reported something that was being sold by other people?
Nice, you're a great bounty hunter.

Dude wtf, this isn't patched at all yet. and why would it get? its just there algorithm which sucks but they cant turn that back anyhow. and if you could get free food why would you even think about telling them? most of them are small restaurants who wont pay you big time probably. and its most definitely not an exploit either.

Well this program is shitty coded but it makes requests to a sites gift card balance and returns the balance of most cards.

And you're fucking with the restaurant's business illegally. Do you realize how retarded you sound?

Sexual Predator - March 2, 2018, 11:48 am this is just a dick move.

if a company pays dirt cheap for a giftcard system knowing the vulnerabilities they should deal with the repercussions. Some people lived off this/were making money and you just decided to be a dick and report it.

The program works by finding sites with a giftcard system that is numerical.

For example:

Panera bread sold gift cards that looked like this:

600649161610278240240
600649161610278240241
600649161610278240242
600649161610278240243
600649161610278240244
600649161610278240245
600649161610278240246

something looks funny right? Well yeah. The last 8 digits change and are numerical, they just add +1 to the end with no pin. People use fiddler to find giftcard verification API and write a simple program to enumerate an input, such as:

6006491616102{00000000}

with {00000000} being enumerated +1 each time

so

{00000001}
{00000002}
{00000003}

with the full url it would look something like this:

Code giftcardcheck.panerabread.com/giftcard.aspx=6006491616102{00000001}
and would return Json Value that looks like this:

Code "id"

"giftcard=600649161610200000001"

"value=1"

"balance=$50"and the program would just auto enumerate and run against the fiddled API with a capture and display working results or simply save to a .txt.

Just a dick move OP, you reported it and made $0. I know this because I reported a similar bug back in 2014 for a site i discovered, i wont disclose which restaurant. But it was pretty big. They didn't pay anything.

also edit,

op quote:

Quote:I found an exploit in 200k+ restaurant brands and reported it along with this tool for them to patch. Pretty cool? Yes no?

you didn't find a fucking exploit you prick, you found someone selling a tool/giving it out for free, then reported it.

It's like saying you discovered a "ebook method" when all you did was buy the ebook. You just reported someone elses code because you're a jealous prick.

Amp - March 2, 2018, 12:26 pm

You could've made a lot of money with this, not sure why you didn't.

Didn't you just admit that you did the same? Lmao, idiot. You would have all done it, now you're all talking shit. Grow up.

You're doing something fucking illegal and there's nothing moral about earning a living from a company's loss. (that company also has to pay it's employees)

The guy that's complaining your trashing his business, sure. You are, but he can't talk shit to you about it when he's the thief.

Although I do agree this threads completely pointless and the OP did nothing special. Doesn't give you a right to shit talk him because "YOU" are jealous though.

This.

if you took two seconds to read the entire quote rather than jump on the fact that you wanna shit talk, i'd like to point out two things

1) "Just a dick move OP, you reported it and made $0. I know this because I reported a similar bug back in 2014 for a site i discovered, i wont disclose which restaurant. But it was pretty big. They didn't pay anything"

It was a chain restaurant i found the vulnerability too, i didn't release it publicly, and i reported it as part of the bug bounty phase i was going through. OP reported a tool that he brought/cracked, didn't discover it on his own. Idiot.

2) "You're doing something fucking illegal and there's nothing moral"

I'd like to point out this:

You're on a website called "hackforums" were there is a whole section dedicated to doxing, another dedicated to ratting and botnets, that's ethical? Go back to tumblr and write posts about how you're a moral and righteous human being. This whole site is for greyhat/borderline blackhat activity. Why even bring up morals / ethics you retard.

I'd like to then take the time to call you out, since doing something "illegal" is Baaaad :)

- 1) <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=5803094> You're selling a runescape account, directly against their TOS. Making it illegal.
