Thread: Job interview

Canadian - February 7, 2018, 5:09 am

Today's the day :O

For a guy who rarely gets never, I am not feeling the greatest this morning. It may be because I haven't been interviewed for a job in nearly 2 years, but damn my nerves are shot. 2 hours before I leave my place.

V?rt - February 7, 2018, 5:18 am

Hey dude that's awesome! Congratulations, go and kill it and make the best of it. You know they say first impression is everything and it is, but be consistent. If they say they'll call you after a week or something, call them and keep doing it. It shows that you are persistent and want that job.

Itzmurda12 - February 7, 2018, 5:19 am

Good luck. I really hope everything goes well for you today.

Canadian - February 7, 2018, 5:26 am

Nervous so nervous, couldn't even spell the word lol. I read writing down possible questions and answering them on paper helps. I'm going to go do that. Thanks guys!

Itzmurda12 - February 7, 2018, 5:31 am

No problem buddy, let us know how it went.

Hydraxus - February 7, 2018, 6:09 am

Congrats man, I hope the day goes well for you.

Fantod - February 7, 2018, 6:10 am

If you don't mind me asking, what kinda job?

Anxuein - February 7, 2018, 6:11 am

Good luck my dude. Don't panic.

Caliban - February 7, 2018, 6:16 am

Oh man i remember my first job interview i was nervous as fuark, but it gets better over time

Toph - February 7, 2018, 6:31 am

Practice in the mirror and visualize success. :)

Prophett - February 7, 2018, 7:04 am

Good luck for the interview. Be sure to update us with the outcome.

Canadian - February 7, 2018, 7:21 am

Will keep you guys updated. Snowstorm warning so I'm going to leave a bit earlier. Hopefully I don't get a "we'll call you". Hired on spot is the goal.

Saltpeter - February 7, 2018, 7:23 am

Congratulations. Confidence is the key here. You were already good enough to get your foot in the door.

Very few jobs will hire on the spot unless they have many openings or really high turn over. If it is a good job they will want to interview several candidates. Good luck! No matter how the interview goes, followup within 24 hours with an email, something simple like "I really enjoyed the interview and had a good time, please let me know if there are any questions and I would be happy to answer."

I always get nervous before an interview but usually once the talking starts I calm down. I realize that I am not nervous about the interview, I am nervous about not knowing the questions, who I am talking to, what their personality is like etc.

Looks like I didn't catch you in time, I hope you get it.

For future interviews, you might find some useful tricks in my thread.

There are many subforums on the site that can help you with this. The Lounge is not one of them.

Kuso - February 7, 2018, 7:57 am

You got this brother. I been applying for months, I know how that feels.

N1l0c - February 7, 2018, 7:58 am

You can do this for sure. Just be yourself and show them what they would miss when not hiring you.

nicksaban1 - February 7, 2018, 7:58 am

Put on your best makeup and don't forget the mouthwash.

Ha jk, good luck!

BTC BTC BTC - February 7, 2018, 8:48 am

I wish you the best of luck and hopefully you get the job. What you been doing for income the last 2 years? Hope this is a step forward in progressing your way to success.

Canadian - February 7, 2018, 10:04 am

I think it went pretty well! The manager told me he'd pass it onto his boss and I'd get a call within the next 48hours. Now I'm anxiously waiting.

Let us know the outcome. Good luck.

Job interviews are cake if you just have confidence in what you say to them. Look them in the eye, speak with certainty in everything you say. Should be a piece of cake.

Fantod - February 8, 2018, 1:32 am

Hope you got the job, keep us in the loop :D

I shouldn't send that email since they told me I'd get a response within 48 hours right ?

Did you actually read the thread? He already had the interview and now he is just waiting for the callback.

Let us know when you get the call OP! I am sure you made a great first impression.

Sigma - February 8, 2018, 7:25 am

24 hours to go bro. Always a good thing when they say they will move it up. Sounds like the interview went successfully.

Pronghorn - February 8, 2018, 7:44 am

Nice going bud I had an interview last week got hired the same day though. It was my first real interview. fumbled a few of the questions they sent my way but was able to make a connection with the manager when he asked what I was studying in college

Sigma - February 8, 2018, 7:49 am

That 24 hours is going to feel like the longest it has ever been.

FiftyTwo - February 8, 2018, 8:28 am

Congratulations and good luck.

Practice makes perfect (or almost at least).

My apologies, I completely skipped over that. It's a telecommunications company that handles technical support for some big North American businesses. It's just a part time job for while I'm in school.

Hopefully I get the call today :O

Pre-eminent - February 9, 2018, 7:24 am

Good luck with your application bro, hope you get the job. I keep my fingers crossed for you ;)

Canadian - February 10, 2018, 5:53 am

Unfortunately no call was received yesterday. My brother is convinced they wouldn't call on a Friday so I'll take his word and be hopeful for Monday or Tuesday :/
