

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: How to get around an online store's security

malenacorl - February 13, 2018, 12:28 am

I have problem with online store and I wonder how I can go around their security system.

I help people in my community - especially older people, without knowledge of Internet or English - to purchase supplements in a big online store from US.

I do it for almost a year now. Usually I just create a new account for a person I'm buying supplements. I order using their address, and pay with my PayPal.

Recently, store began to block my accounts and reject orders.

I've contacted them - they told me you can't have multiple accounts, only 5 accounts per household. They weren't interested in a fact that every order is using completely different address and name.

They even blocked my IP, so I can't create any new account and can't log into any of the old accounts.

I installed [censored], to change my IP.

After doing so, I was able to create an account. But after some time order was cancelled as usual and account was blocked.

I thought - oh, it's probably a PayPal account - they noticed it's still me.

I "borrowed" PayPal account from my friend - completely different name, address, city than mine.

I created new account, using [censored] to change my IP to different one, and paid with friend's PayPal (PayPal balance, so no debit card involved)

And my account was still blocked and order cancelled, as usual.

And I'm confused - how they knew that was me?

DAVID PALMER - February 13, 2018, 2:05 pm

I think it's cash out you're trying to do ...

change completely your computer because your address mac must be filed.

start again with new tools: new card, new paypal, vpn + socks, etc.

pay a single item in the shop and wait for your delivery.