Thread: Lee sin ruined 8.4?

They are removing tracker knife and Sightstone has already been removed so I can foresee Lee mains being extremely tilted/mad.

What does this mean for Lee Mains?
I can't see them just going off trinkets.

NA Riven - February 21, 2018, 11:51 am

Yea I don't see a Lee using his Trinket to Ward hop but who knows? haha

Exactly! That would be such a waste since the timers are very high!
Even if sightstone was still an item it would still be a major set back.

Honestly, I think Lee is going to be played in the top lane like WAY back in the day.
Ravenous Hydra build ayeeee.

haha

Yeahhhhh.

That was around when Diana runeglaive red smite mid was a thing.

I hate playing a game where there is a godlike lee sin on the enemy team, normally most lee sins are arrogant and try to force crazy plays and it ends up back firing on them.

Moreso tired of my junglers not knowing how to play against them and they just end up snowballing every lane.

Ah, I see where you are coming from.

He is incredibly strong early game and I am assuming the junglers you are speaking of have a terrible early game such as Rammus or Sej?

Once they realize Lee's winrate and playrate has decreased in a few patches, they'll most likely rework his W so that he can dash on an object he places or something. Maybe even have a kit like Viktor. Have him purchase an item that does not give vision but let him dash. Otherwise, lee is dead

Knowing riot, it'll happen, but won't be any time soon. You're good.

DontQQSoMuch - February 22, 2018, 9:12 am

Never seen a Lee in my games this season, so he is dead anyway. I really don't see a reason why you would pick him at the moment, 0% reason
