I'm returning mine and buying the older model. The L and R bumpers throw me off because they have no travel at all tf

Bud you need to just get the Xbox Elite controller. It's amazing.

Xbox Controllers are just bad in general for me. Every controller broke in a couple of months. My Scuf is the best one I've ever owned. The sticks feel so amazing and smooth compared to the factory controllers. Elite controllers I hear a lot of complaints about them breaking pretty easily.

What are you talking about?

I've used controller of XBOX 360 for 3 years.

Never broke it and it's still good to use, it might broke if you can't keep calm while playing.

I play tons of shooters which wear down controller pretty fast. Mainly the sticks go out. Every controller that broke was due to the sticks. They fall in which induce a slow turn.

I had around 7000 hours in Call Of Duty Modern Warfare II, got all the prestiges and everything in gold on xbox 360, and I always had used 1 joystick most of the times.

When I was playing home (80% of the time) I was using the same joystick.

I don't know what to tell you. My controllers always broke. 360 controllers sticks always fell in. Xbox One controllers broke a lot faster. Halo 5 controller lasted 2 months. Original with Xbox lasted a year. Xbox One S controller lasted a year and a half. My Scuf is going good for a year now. Xbox 360 Controller wired is fine but slow turn. Plenty of my friends have slow turn as well.

Really? You don't like the Xbox One S controller? I love that thing so much more then the old Xbox One controllers.

I hate the Xbox One controllers bumpers all together, they just feel cheaply made.

Deany - March 4, 2018, 1:51 pm

anyone who plays on bumper jumper knows the pain of these new garbage controllers

Tyler? - March 5, 2018, 8:29 pm

I've never had an issue myself. But I haven't noticed any difference.

But I love them mainly because they have bluetooth.
