Do you love one child more than the other? I'm asking if you have a favorite child, and I'm not judging you. Yes, you love your kids more than you love yourself, but is there one that you will always favor? Personally, I don't think this makes you a bad person. We love who we love.

RottenTomatoes - March 2, 2018, 5:55 pm

Do you think this forum is anything other than virginal teenage boys?

?BowmanBot? - March 2, 2018, 5:55 pm

One of them will always cause more problems than the other. Usually the older one in a pair of two or the younger one of three or more.

Well you're stupid if you actually think that.

I think that you are informed and oblivious to the fact that it isn't.

First off the owner is not a teenager, far from it. There are also many users that are in there 30's and a couple are even in their 60's.

There are a lot of pubescent teenagers here but not everyone fits into that category.

there are people from 2008-2012 here they are probably all early/mid 20's, some are 30+ too

@OP: I do think its weird to have a "favorite" child, unless one child really messes up

My parents joke that I'm the favorite child, I'm adopted from South Korea at 5 months, raised since then by my current parents and never got in touch with my biological mom or dad. My older brother is theirs by full right, and I am as well. I know for a fact that there is no competitiveness between us for "favorite" and I never ever worry about it. He was very reckless, partied, made a few wrong choices, but overall he's a great kid. Although sometimes I think that my parents will always love him in a different way because they made him.

I have 3 kids, 2 girls and 1 boy and I have to say I love my boy more than my girls because girls are pretty annoying and I want to raise perfect family with manly men and girly girls

You are full of shit bruh nice airball

Renovatum - March 2, 2018, 7:13 pm

Yeah. My mom thinks I'm the cool one, but she loves my sister more. I think she sees herself in me and so she kind of leaves me to it, while she actually cares for my (younger) sister.

Momma would also say I'm the coolest when I was young, so now I chase dangerous girls who get too clingy desu

Even shit like "you're warm blooded so you don't get cold :DDDDD".

Haseo™ - March 2, 2018, 7:29 pm

I'm not sure I don't have kids, I didn't feel like I ever competed with my younger siblings though.

I think parents love their kids equally. They might have one they prefer to hangout with to example watch a football game or something but I would think they love each of their kids the same.

Pretty sure most members are over the age of 20 tbh.

Danny Khalifa - March 2, 2018, 11:12 pm

That's a really interesting question to be honest.

But I honestly think they love the same.

ven0m - March 2, 2018, 11:23 pm

It is true. My mom used to tell me that love is never unbiased. Even though she loves me and my siblings more than anything there will always be a bias in that.

This thread was directed towards moms and dads, not their children.

My mum always used to act like I was her favourite, you could tell she favoured me. Nowadays she doesn't really talk to me lol.

Thats no good man, do you still live home or away?

if it's away I feel you man the first year my mom would call me non-stop now I'm lucky to hear from her once a month.

my fault too though, I could call her at any time ya know?

I live about 200 miles away from her, I moved six months ago to live with my girl whilst she went to university. When I moved she would contact me, then it began that I had to talk first. I'd facetime her so I could speak to her and she'd just ignore me the whole time or pass me to my little sister. I'm lucky if she responds once a week now. It's sad man but, I've got my own life now. She can't be bothered to know who I am any more so there's no point in me trying. Sad how life turns out sometimes.

i doubt its that big of a percent

JoshAllen - March 3, 2018, 12:20 pm

I feel like it is obvious parents have a favorite.

I don't get that, how is that obvious?

gore - March 3, 2018, 12:27 pm

I think as they age, you like one more than the other sometimes, but your actual love for them doesn't change/fluctuate.

For example, I was a fuckin' demon when I was a teen, my brother wasn't though. I'm sure he was the favorite for a few years, lol.

I only have 1 kid, can't quite answer it honestly from the parent perspective.

Ninja - March 3, 2018, 12:29 pm

I mean deep down some parents may like one over the other but I don't think they will ever say that to anyone.
