Holy hell, I never even knew this was a thing!

I just checked my old email address I haven't touched in like 3 years and its been breached like 12 times!

lol whoah.... this is a neat site.

I swear I have seen this website before. I honestly can't remember when I came across it but the layout and name seem very familiar.

In 3 seconds I found out that my old email was basically useless as a secure email.

I guess I could change the passwords but ehh. I think they are still registered to those low security websites.

Meh, I use different passwords for all of my services so I should be fine.

leakeddb's or something along that, it was a website which got taken down, it gave full results of everything you searched for.

Whatever was leaked was obtainable there.

How are you going to do this with a website that shut down

I recognized that name as well. It is too bad that it was taken down but there will always be more than takes the top spot for this type of tool.

You can only assume but that's not always the case.

Yup, that's the one. LeakDB. Was wondering where it dissapeared all of a sudden.

I'm rather glad that one is gone, because people used it to "hack" each other easily.

Just search target email and get whatever pops up.
