Thread: Joined a Big Bitcoin Company \(CEO Position\)

Warpig x64 - March 8, 2018, 4:19 pm

Pretty interesting, team of 5-7 of us in NZ (NZ's biggest BTC company), 3 of us being joint CEO's, the rest being multi-millionaire advisers. (Just to note I'm not a millionaire or even close)

Pretty excited to say the least. We have our own ICO being made as we speak by the development team in our office which consists of 3 people.

One of my 2 colleagues is in contact with Kim.com often. He is investing $700,000 off the bat and fully buying out the pre-sale. We also have direct contact with Ian Balingier, who is most likely the largest crypto YouTuber and is already willing to promote our ICO, in which every ICO he promotes sells out within minutes per round.

The three of us get the following split.

$1,000,000 USD

500,000 of our own ERC20 token

All set to be released and sold out before March. Anyways, thought this was a major achievement for myself considering I'm 17, less than a month off 18.

Whitepaper has been developed, ICO is in the works. Also have two more major investors who bought the entire underneath/underground of one of the largest banks in our largest city and is making an enormous tunnel of tens of millions worth of GPU rigs all dedicated to cloud mining.

I should also note they are the two advisers, as well as one other person.

Anyways excited to say the least.

Wow man looks like you got a good life setup ahead of you. I hope everything works out and you achieve even more amazing goals like this in your future.

I wish you the best of luck but I don't see any other ICO's taking off.
Also Ian isn't the biggest.

Good luck in all of whatever this is.
I wish you the best.

I'm sorry but what kind of multi-millionaire is going to invest in a 17 year old? Nice ponzi scheme OP.

What is the bitcoin company about?

Who said they're investing into me? Perhaps they're investing into my partners multi-million dollar already existing and globally released product... It's what the ICO is based around, a distribution token.

Very funny though.

If this isn't bullshit then I'm proud of you OP, seems like just last week we were trying to make different programs to make scrap money through forums.

Thanks dude, I'll take a video of the office next time I'm there which is next Wednesday as work hours are fluid, whenever I want really.

Myself and my work partner did arbitrage and taught people in person. One day I was on LocalBitcoins cashing out to NZD, did an exchange with a company, and asked why their rates were so high. By the end of the phone call I had a proposal to come in a few days later, I did that along with my partner and by the end of it we were instantly in a shared CEO partnership.

Edit: it's a registered business, not some wacky work from home kind of thing. There's an entire office which is massive for all the setups and whatnot. I'll get videos and pictures when I pop in next Wednesday.

If I was an investor, I'd like to have met and spoken to extensively with the entire leading heads. If they had known you're 17 they should be skeptical in my opinion.

this is obviously a troll thread bro, all of the replies on this thread are just sucking OPs asshole in hope to get a donation from those "multimillionaires". no one would even hire, not to mention to put a 17 year old inexperienced person to be the leading force of a company. this can only happen if he has rich mommy and daddy or a godfather (but even in that case it most likely wouldnt happen)

That I won't disclose as we are all paid equally. Each of us are paid out once the ICO sells out. All three of us are working for free, as we work for ourselves. The way I earn my regular income is by teaching clients in person one-on-one arbitrage trading daily.

I mean.... That's great and all but working for free, you may be 17 but you need a contractual agreement to even own any assets of the company, etc. Good luck but I don't have any idea why this company would hire a 17 year old to be a "CEO" that has no prior experience except for exchanging crypto. Lol but hey more power to you.

You can't say the names of the companies merging? Or give us any news articles written about a multi-million dollar investment, which involves a high school student?

You can't be under an NDA, or what have you, because you've already posted this publically. This is ridiculous, how can people be so naive to believe this stuff.

Ok here's a reality check kid...

First off, you can't even get your "facts straight". Who the fuck is Ian Balinger? Based on your description, you're talking about Ian Balina. However, he does not promote ICOs unless he is an advisor and fully on board with the project. Your delusional, uninformed and being misled by your other "CEOs" lmao.

ICO by March? Dude it's the 18th.....and who wants to invest in something that some random 17 year old was hired to be apart of randomly off the street...you think Ian Balina is going to promote? ROFLLLLLL

I would love to know the name of this shitcoin ICO so I can laugh some more.

Ironically he is one of our few advisors.

Yeah, you're right. I was living on the street, they swooped me up because I have no prior knowledge, and now I'm working for a registered company with a pre-existing product. I'm very thankful.

Perhaps you should check my bike thread, spent more than $100,000 NZD (around $85,000 USD) purely on all of my motorbikes, along with their pictures and values in thread all paid from prior work with companies... You're good humor though, haven't laughed for a wee while at someone who has nothing better to do than write an essay on how he hates a person who he's never seen before. Feel sort of bad for how bored you must be.

Also lol at the rep you gave me, then I read the next comment after yours hahaha.

You further went on to contradict yourself by saying "pay" him back, and not even a few words later you said because I "attempted" to scam him.

Get your facts straight. He canceled the order due to himself not wanting to wait for me to receive the shipment tracking code. Some logic you have if I need to pay him for absolutely nothing.

Your best friend,
Warpig.

We aren't taking any more people sorry. We picked up two more advisors on the team on Friday, and assigned the only bitcoin dev in the office to work on the project with another one of his colleagues.

Even if we were to, you would have to work in person at our office, unless you were to be an advisor with a large social presence.

Edit: Updating on this, our pre-ICO sold out on a contract basis with the two latest advisors.

Thanks.
