Thread: Made old account, can it be merged?

whinogon9 - March 10, 2018, 11:10 am

I made an account to post at requests for hacking under the username glattana55 with a disposable email, but I've seen multiple accounts aren't allowed, so please can a mod merge the account with this one?

The email address associated with that account didn't work for resetting the password so I had to create a new account.

You should use the contact form.

Done. Sent the contact email.

Just wait patiently for a reply now.

It won't be merged, the account you're on now will be closed and you'll get access to your old one. That is if staff even cares enough to reset it for you since you joined just yesterday and only made one post.

I used a disposable email for that one, would prefer to use this account since it's got a webmail not disposable.

One other question - with one-post accounts made from a disposable email that I don't have access to, what's the policy? (i used a mytrashmail account but it was slow to receive any email from this site).

As long as your account was not in bad standing, or banned for any malicious reasons, you will most likely be allowed to return on your new (current) account.

You'll need to get in touch with Factor8 to get the okay on that.

I can't send PMs except to people who send me them as I'm a new account.

Wait for your contact form to be responded to, or reach the required amount of HQ posts and send him a PM.

Sorry but I don't merge accounts unless there is a special reason.
