Thread: ICOwatchers.net | All active & upcoming ICOs | Make money with the bounty system!

TheDarkVoid - March 12, 2018, 2:38 pm

What is ICOwatchers.net?

The goal of ICOwatchers is to show all active & upcoming cryptocurrency ICOs in an easy and uncluttered fashion. We got inspired to create this website because of the small amount of ICO list websites & most of them are unclear and littered with advertisements making it close to impossible to even use the website.

Below is the roadmap for ICOwatchers, our aim is to keep improving our website by adding new features & improving the websites front-end. As of right now, the website is still in alpha meaning only the basic stuff is done. Once the beta version has been released there will be tons of new features such as ICO alerts & much more.

Bounty System

Because our site just launched we've included a bounty system in our website. It works as follows: By updating ICO info such as the amount an ICO has collected or adding new ICOs you can earn bounty rewards. To do this, first create a bounty account (registrations on the bounty tab of the website). Once you've created your bounty account you'll receive your personal 'private key' in the mail. With this private key you can claim your bounty reward when filling out the ICO update / publish form and withdraw your bounty reward (paid out in BTC, ETH & PayPal).

The amounts that we currently pay:

$0,75 for adding an ICO | $0,10 for updating the amount an ICO has collected.

Imo that's a lot of work for $0.25. Site looks good though

Should take 1 to 2 minutes to add an ICO, might up the price a little though. Thanks :)

I just submitted SKRAPS which is ending in a couple days, took a lot of time to find out the right info for each one of those twenty lines even though it's a huge one.

I like the concept but I hope most value their time more than a quarter for 5 mins work.

Thanks for sharing your opinion, we've decided to increase the bounty price to $0,75 per ICO you add!

Depends which ones you choose, if you choose wisely & do your research you can make huge gains.
