

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: What if the US copyright office becomes corrupt?

Stillerleser - March 20, 2018, 9:59 am

Dude you ever thought how hard and confusing copyright govermetn is? And how tempting it wouldbe to be currupt?

So if two people come to copyright office with a billion $ idea the person in office decides who came up with it and owns it? sheesh

spradebassen - March 20, 2018, 10:51 am i bet their wage is enough to not make them cum for a billion dollar idea

Stillerleser - March 20, 2018, 11:05 am

(Mar 20, 2018 10:51 AM)dickbreath Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i bet their wage is enough to not make them cum for a billion dollar idea

You mean be corrupt? a copany could be like ill give you a 1million to approve my copyright

V3N0M - March 20, 2018, 11:06 am

(Mar 20, 2018 11:05 AM)Stillerleser Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You mean be corrupt? a copany could be like ill give you a 1million to approve my copyright

Why do you think they are not corrupt?

Ninja - March 20, 2018, 11:14 am

I guess they close their eyes and spin around and just point to whoever.

Mr Meeseeks - March 20, 2018, 8:06 pm

I don't really understand what your question is, OP.

icy? - March 20, 2018, 8:08 pm

I'm really fucking confused, government is corrupt this isn't news

Armada - March 20, 2018, 8:10 pm

(Mar 20, 2018 09:59 AM)Stillerleser Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Dude you ever thought how hard and confusing copyright govermetn is? And how tempting it wouldbe to be currupt?

So if two people come to copyright office with a billion $ idea the person in office decides who came up with it and owns it? sheesh

People who work there must sign legal waivers and confidentiality agreements to prevent such crap.

Why risk Federal imprisonment???

Omniscient - March 20, 2018, 8:11 pm

I feel like you misunderstand how copyright work. You can legally challenge a copyright in court. Any obvious corruption would be found.

hittingp - March 20, 2018, 8:27 pm

It would be fairly blatant for them to do that, since there would be a rather large paper trail of the corruption. Even if a few employees were to do this, a swift civil suit would get the rights turned over to original owner.

Stillerleser - March 20, 2018, 9:09 pm

(Mar 20, 2018 08:11 PM)Omniscient Wrote: CITE I feel like you misunderstand how copyright work. You can legally challenge a copyright in court. Any obvious corruption would be found. Oh yea true that.. Like bro that shit must be crazy all the challenges etc..

Also i dont see how they have experts in every category to assign the right ownership?

Example Intel probably has copyright on certain chip designs etc.. But if this was just invented.. Who would know enough about something so high tech at the time to give a proper copyright and give ownership unbiased?

Cyclone007 - March 20, 2018, 10:24 pm

Wait, they aren't already? Perhaps maybe they aren't corrupt exactly, but I'd bet money there's a level of favoritism and or special treatment with the organization. While I see it as a very beneficial and needed process, there's definitely a lot of flaws in it that frankly, I don't agree with.

Theocritus - March 20, 2018, 11:24 pm

im sure some corruption always exists