Thread: New tobacco ciggs. Heater devices.

So I bought this Phillip Morris IQos device, and got a bunch of packs with the ciggs. Its interesting taste, smells and tastes of baked almonds and its clean tobacco. I havent smoked a real cigg for like 12 hours which would never happen otherwise. I was interested, are they really 95% less harmful, has anyone tried that shit. Is fillip morris going to kill me? I somed usually around 1 pack of Davidoff Gold per day a bit less. Any advice?

For some reason I always feel like these things are like what normal cigarettes where in the past. Doctors used to recommend smoking to clean your lungs and shit back in the day. Makes me wonder what they'll say about these things in the future.

I dont know, like logically it makes sense this one in particular to be healthier, but I have the feeling, I am changing one drug for another far worse and more addictive.

Very true. I'm still worried about Vaping but it seems harmless (minus popcorn lung) and its only PG/VG, flavor, water and nic so idk.

True, it shouldn't be more harmful then actual cigarettes. Never actually properly tried it myself though. Is it any good?

If I am not mistaken it's only harmful in large doses. Then again it's still nicotine so it's not really improving anything.

I think that those would be an improvement from regular cigarettes at the very least.

There have been studies done and nicotine alone is not a carcinogen, however it's the flavors and the effects they have on the lungs that I'm concerned about. Popcorn lung is related to a chemical that is not in use widely anymore. As long as you don't get your liquid from China you should be OK. Plus in the rare cases of popcorn lung they were exposed to large quantities of the chemical.
