

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Possible to use a laptop as second display?

Recognized - March 24, 2018, 8:11 pm

Is there any software or something that can allow me to use a laptop as a secondary display for my PC? My secondary DVI port is somehow broken, and I need to use two screens today, so don't have time to have it fixed.

Anybody have any ideas?

TwistedTechnologies - March 24, 2018, 8:13 pm

The only way I could see this working is if you could open up your laptop and sever the screen's connection from the motherboard.

Couldn't you also do whatever you need to do on your laptop? (Assuming your laptop is powerful to hand whatever tasks it may be) and plug your main monitor onto your laptop?

Recognized - March 24, 2018, 8:15 pm

(Mar 24, 2018 08:13 PM)TwistedTechnologies Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The only way I could see this working is if you could open up your laptop and sever the screen's connection from the motherboard.

Couldn't you also do whatever you need to do on your laptop? (Assuming your laptop is powerful to hand whatever tasks it may be) and plug your main monitor onto your laptop?

Sadly no, heavy programs at work that my current laptop wouldn't be able to handle. Thanks for the suggestion however.