I once met a dude that thought shaving is not okay because of his solidarity with those in the primitive ages who did not have the technology to shave. Not like every technology, simply the idea of shaving defined his solidarity. Weird motherfucker, I fucking dare any of you fucks to tell me I am wrong.

Mr. Robot - April 1, 2018, 12:54 pm

You are wrong, because what he believes is for him to decide so you're wrong.

Simple.

Simple.I have been left standing corrected. You indeed are not a fuck, yet you told me I was wrong. Thank you for opening my eyes, Mr. Robot; may I call you dad?

((Anprim intensifies))

Haven't heard about them for a while.

But aren't you in a way telling me my opinion, which was what I was challenging you to tell me I was wrong about, is wrong? Wouldn't my opinion that his belief is weird fall into the same unquestionable category as his belief?

How is this anprim... It's just a guy who feels like growing a beard to respect the history of where he came from. Nothing in the OP tells us he's anything other than that.

Just saying.

I used to believe Dr pepper was alien juice and I still won't drink the shit.
Lol

"simply the idea of shaving defined his solidarity. "

Key words being his, we are challenging your question of him being a 'Weird motherfucker' to you - he might just be a weird motherfucker so from your perspective you are correct. The challenge is to tell you that you are wrong - the only way to do such is to convince you he's just a motherfucker, just weird or something completely different but not a weird motherfucker.

So technically you're correct in saying your beliefs are different to his, and at this current stage of your life he is a weird mother fucker.

Let's hear some more about why you think him to be a weird motherfucker and we can start to move away from it if we can to prove your beliefs about him were wrong.

But what if he doesn't exist? Where does that leave us. What stage of life am I existing in now, versus tomorrow?

I'm trying to say, are you still my dad.

I mean each to his own. He's not affecting me so I'll keep shaving.

Views - April 1, 2018, 9:34 pm

I actually just laughed out loud in real life at this if we weren't supposed to shave they wouldn't have invented razors that's actually funny.

Mr Meeseeks - April 2, 2018, 3:07 pm

Some people are just weird, but as long as it's not hurting me, I don't mind.

Yea...

I love the shit I just have issues with delusions so I am scared to drink it.

It's mostly faded but I still refuse to drink it
