

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Is it ok if im 23 and i dont work

Account of the Gods - April 1, 2018, 2:55 pm

My parents tell me go work and try to make me feel guilt by using various verbal offences, suggestions, arguing and jelling.

But I have more time for CPA if I dont work so if I dont work ill reach financial independence faster.

Am I right or in the wrong? How to make my parents let me NOT work for longer?

Deany - April 1, 2018, 2:56 pm

Find a job you enjoy doing then

Account of the Gods - April 1, 2018, 2:57 pm

(Apr 1, 2018 02:56 PM)Japanese Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Find a job you enjoy doing then none of them bruh

Agency - April 1, 2018, 3:02 pm

I know that feeling was moaned at for so long about being unemployed ended up getting a job and leaving behind my online stuff. Why dont you just talk to them and set things straight or explain look this is what i want to do and i believe i can do it give me time

DenizZ - April 1, 2018, 3:04 pm

It's not okay if you don't work unless CPA gives you a reliable income.

hello98321 - April 1, 2018, 3:06 pm

bro your fine. working is for chumps

AU Subi - April 1, 2018, 3:06 pm

(Apr 1, 2018 02:55 PM)Fuarkkkkkkkk Tbh Srs Ngl Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) My parents tell me go work and try to make me feel guilt by using various verbal offences, suggestions, arguing and jelling.

But I have more time for CPA if I dont work so if I dont work ill reach financial independence faster.

Am I right or in the wrong? How to make my parents let me NOT work for longer?

You are in the right as long as you're genuinely putting in equivalent work to a full-time job or at least close to it. Don't get sucked into the automated income bullshit dream. DO NOT give in to your parents pressure and get a fulltime job, it will make financial freedom very difficult to reach, as you will be working too much to realistically start a business unless you have insane levels of discipline and spend all your off-time in your business. You will be unable to quit your job to start a business because of bills and will be locked into a shitty situation that you don't want to be in.

If you do your research this is a very winnable argument by the way, the only denial to it is delusion and old-fashioned mentality. If you feel like you're on the verge on being kicked out, a part-time job wouldn't be a bad idea. You can definitely start a business while working part-time. Hell, it might even be beneficial, as you could fund your business.

Account of the Gods - April 1, 2018, 3:16 pm

(Apr 1, 2018 03:06 PM)AU Subi Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) You are in the right as long as you're genuinely putting in equivalent work to a full-time job or at least close to it. Don't get sucked into the automated income bullshit dream. DO NOT give in to your parents pressure and get a fulltime job, it will make financial freedom very difficult to reach, as you will be working too much to realistically start a business unless you have insane levels of discipline and spend all your off-time in your business. You will be unable to quit your job to start a business because of bills and will be locked into a shitty situation that you don't want to be in.

If you do your research this is a very winnable argument by the way, the only denial to it is delusion and old-fashioned mentality. If you feel like you're on the verge on being kicked out, a part-time job wouldn't be a bad idea. You can definitely start a business while working part-time. Hell, it might even be beneficial, as you could fund your business.

i try 12hr a day with breaks for eating and working out. yeah i basically think same as you. thank u minimalist - April 1, 2018, 3:26 pm

If you're living alone and are able to manage your own finances, I'd say it's fine. If you're living under their roof but are able to contribute financially, that'd also be fine. But if you're still a liability for them, you should respect their wishes and keep that a side gig while working towards financial independence.

SIM-2223238 - April 1, 2018, 3:28 pm

they don't give a fuck about you doing a physical job or not, they just want to see you financially independend. if you make the cash show em the cash and show em that there's way much more income from CPA or whatever you're doing

SupremeLV - April 1, 2018, 3:30 pm

I'm 16 and don't work but I play sports in the summer and shit so if you ever make it professionally then you are good :)

test - April 1, 2018, 7:09 pm

Are you really close to being financially independent or are you just saying that to justify being lazy and not working? If you really are close to being independent then show your parents the proof. Show them the money and help them understand exactly what you do.

Account of the Gods - April 2, 2018, 12:26 am

(Apr 1, 2018 07:09 PM)testaccountplsignore Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Are you really close to being financially independent or are you just saying that to justify being lazy and not working? If you really are close to being independent then show your parents the proof. Show them the money and help them understand exactly what you do.

im not close yet thats the pr0bl3m scam. - April 2, 2018, 1:35 am

If you're making a living off your CPA shit then you're fine

If you are not able to sustain yourself without the help of your parents you should stop being a useless degenerate and find part time work to pay for yourself at the very least.

However you simply need to work to get life experience. You're still a child at 23. Let that sink in.

(Apr 2, 2018 12:26 AM)Fuarkkkkkkkk Tbh Srs Ngl Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) im not close yet thats the pr0bl3m

Get a fucking job loser

Imagine having to ask your parents for money to go on a date or money to go out with friends
hahahahahahah

Fuckin sort your shit out and stop being lazy

Account of the Gods - April 2, 2018, 1:48 am

(Apr 2, 2018 01:35 AM)mael Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) If you're making a living off your CPA shit then you're fine
If you are not able to sustain yourself without the help of your parents you should stop being a useless degenerate and find part time work to pay for yourself at the very least.

However you simply need to work to get life experience. You're still a child at 23. Let that sink in.

Get a fucking job loser

Imagine having to ask your parents for money to go on a date or money to go out with friends
hahahahahahah

Fuckin sort your shit out and stop being lazy

I think I have already worked in my life in at least 10 places. Why would I need more "life experience"?

scam. - April 2, 2018, 1:51 am

(Apr 2, 2018 01:48 AM)Fuarkkkkkkkk Tbh Srs Ngl Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think I have already worked in my life in at least 10 places. Why would I need more "life experience"?

Sorry I just assumed you were some neckbeard neet.

Still get a job though it's unfair on your parents.

test - April 2, 2018, 1:54 am

(Apr 2, 2018 12:26 AM)Fuarkkkkkkkk Tbh Srs Ngl Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) im not close yet thats the pr0bl3m

Surely you can show them 'something' right. At worst you get a part-time job to pay rent and enough to support yourself which will still leave you plenty of time to work on your CPA career.

Account of the Gods - April 2, 2018, 1:56 am

(Apr 2, 2018 01:51 AM)mael Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Sorry I just assumed you were some neckbeard neet.

Still get a job though it's unfair on your parents.

if not the money I earned, i would consider it wasted time. no life experience. maybe you learn a bit about people (especially these shady ones) when working, but truth is the people who work less in their life are winners, no losers

scam. - April 2, 2018, 2:00 am

(Apr 2, 2018 01:56 AM)Fuarkkkkkkkk Tbh Srs Ngl Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) if not the money I earned, i would consider it wasted time. no life experience. maybe you learn a bit about people (especially these shady ones) when working, but truth is the people who work less in their life are winners, no losers

That's not nessicarilly true. Life doesn't just hand you gold my man

Personal question but how much time a day do you spend on your 'cpa' and how much have you made from it spradebassen - April 2, 2018, 2:06 am

(Apr 2, 2018 01:56 AM)Fuarkkkkkkkk Tbh Srs Ngl Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) if not the money I earned, i would consider it wasted time. no life experience. maybe you learn a bit about people (especially these shady ones) when working, but truth is the people who work less in their life are winners, no losers dont even try to fucking argue with this guy ???

you got the mentality of a 16 year old teenager

Barney - April 2, 2018, 3:36 am

Find a job you love doing and you'll never work a day in your life. If you find something that you like then they are happy because you don't reply on them and you have money.

lilbetch - April 2, 2018, 3:42 am

If your parents are asking you to contribute financially then I would consider getting a part time job. If not then go for it and focus all your efforts.

Wolf - April 2, 2018, 4:56 am

It really depends how you want to look at it. If they are letting you stay under the condition that you find a job and you are refusing to do so, they should kick you out. Yet they didn't, so it's their choice. If you truly believe, you'll be more financially stable, sitting on your ass all day, than at least being able to find a job, good luck with it. They wouldn't bug you to get a job if you had money income.

2073436 - April 2, 2018, 5:27 am

That's not the right mindset if you want to make enough money with CPA
CPA requires lots of time and you haven't got anything to back it up if it fails

CPA oftentimes fails more than it succeeds so I wouldn't bet my life on it

Regulus - April 2, 2018, 5:30 am

I am 23 and I do not work.

Nik- - April 2, 2018, 5:45 am

I mean it all comes down to your personal opinion, in the back of your head you either think you are right or wrong.

Apocryphon - April 2, 2018, 10:06 am

I want to ask you, do you make any money with CPA? If so, how much have you made in the past 12 months? Are they enough for you to support yourself financially?

mawrek - April 2, 2018, 10:11 am

I think you would be safer with affiliate marketing than cpa. im no expert but i think they are different things. i've seen results from both, and i think affiliate marketing is the best possible passive income that exists, if you know how to do it right

Banter. - April 2, 2018, 10:13 am im 27 and don't work I still have a stable income based from online methods.

never been happier to be honest I get all day with my son and wife.
ive worked in a lot of jobs from factory's to shops to IT companies & yes they paid me and I worked but I came to learn if I don't enjoy what I do for work ill be unhappy in other aspects of my life so I quit and followed what I really wanted to do. never looked back.

I technically yes still work but I work my own hours from home I can be with my family for as long as long as I wish and I make money based on my input per day.

John Player Special - April 2, 2018, 10:28 am

It is not okay to not work on your age when:

1. You still live at your parents house
2. Your parents or other people pay for your food and other needs

3. You are not rich
4. You have depths

But it is okay when:

1. You are financial comfortable yourself on your own
- and 2. you live on your own
3. you dont have depths
- or 4. If you are rich for life.

monstermaash - April 2, 2018, 10:52 am are you able to support yourself financially?

at 23, if your parents are still taking care of you and paying all your stuff then there is a problem.

do you really want to end up living in your parents basement?

NoSuchAgency - April 2, 2018, 10:54 am

Are you making money? Over 1,000 a month?

If no, get a fucking job you unemployed nut.

Ytube - April 2, 2018, 11:05 am

The Rock was unemployed at 23, so I don't think it's a bad thing.

Just keep focusing on doing something you enjoy and maybe try to find a offline job. That way you'll have something to fall back on.

<https://twitter.com/therock/status/980667412134608897?s=21>

Mr Meeseeks - April 2, 2018, 2:09 pm

Do what you enjoy doing, as long as you can financially support yourself.

Jesse Pinkman - April 2, 2018, 2:18 pm

If you're working on your education (seriously) then I think it's okay to focus on your education. If you're out here dicking around using education as an excuse, shame on you.

wit - April 2, 2018, 2:21 pm

(Apr 2, 2018 01:48 AM)Fuarkkkkkkkk Tbh Srs Ngl Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think I have already worked in my life in at least 10 places. Why would I need more "life experience"?
at 23 you should be able to hold down a job,,even part time

i work part time at 19 and still have plenty of time to expand online ventures as well as support myself financially

Account of the Gods - April 2, 2018, 2:23 pm

(Apr 2, 2018 02:21 PM)Hyphonix Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) at 23 you should be able to hold down a job,,even part time

i work part time at 19 and still have plenty of time to expand online ventures as well as support myself financially
And wht u do

Pre-eminent - April 2, 2018, 2:25 pm

If you have a high income doing CPA show the profits to your parents and explain your situation to them. If you're just making a few bucks, you should start applying for a job asap as you will regret it later.