I am not one of those who brag about things and this is more off a thread to express my gratitude towards HF instead of bragging about the money I earned since I am already aware people here make way more than that here. So just like every other noob I ended up buying an ebook here which I do not regret so much since it motivated me to earn online and with twisting and adding my own way of doing things in the e-book methods I could quickly scale up my earnings in online methods commonly found here(not e-whoring) here into a recurring passive income of $350-$500 which is a decent amount in my country since I live in a third world country but I did not stop there and have always been continuously trying to learn things here, make friends with similar mindsets etc. Luckily i ended up with a project that I found on HF (Wouldn't like to name it) they paid me minimum american wage which any of you can imagine is extremely good money in a third world. I've invested much off the money in ETH and rest in paying debts and few personal expenses. I hope i can scale my income much more. I've been planning to experiment with shopify. This thread is to motivate all those people like me that are living in third world or second world countries wondering how good their income would be if they were in First world countries. Well with internet there's no geographical limitation to earnings anymore you don't have to go states or Canada you can earn the same or even more here. I am super super grateful to HF i could never contemplate such level of earnings at such age in a third world country!

Thank you Hack forms! (I intent to buy L33t to pay back to the community)
Super grateful to all people here!

That happened to me as well.

And I felt so amazing when, after weeks of research, I finally got some success

Good luck from now on :)

Congrats man, getting leet like you said is a wise idea. I'd suggest getting Uber after and some of those $20 awards as well. You'd be surprised the difference it makes on this site (getting vouch copies, people prioritizing you in conversations, deals, etc)

Nice, I don't live in a third world country but I still found your thread to be very motivating great job.
