Thread: x2 L33T Giveaway

SecretAchiever101 - April 3, 2018, 4:10 am

Ok so basically,some days ago I applied for Ub3r and my application was denied.So I made a thread pretty much asking why I got denied because I dont consider myself a LQ member and asking for some advice as to how I could get accepted next time I apply.That was when Elitas told me I was leeching off my threads only asking questions and not actually contributing to this forum.I gave it some good thought,he was partially right.So from this time on I started pming members who had or have a problem trying to solve it or help them and generally contribute to this forum in ANY way I can . This l33t giveaway is only the tip of the iceberg and a token of appreciation to this community that helped me grow my knowledge.I am not planning on stopping contributing ever to this forum.This is just the start of it.Nuff said!

If you want to participate to this giveaway all you have to do is make a short post explaining why do you believe that contributing to the community is a big aspect of keeping this forum healthy.Winners will be announced on 4/4 + 8/4 and will be chosen randomly

Dont even bother applying IF: You have a scam report still opened and NOT resolved
Have negative reputation

GOOD LUCK TO ALL APPLICANTS!!!!!! ?

Hello friend I'd like to apply for this contest.My response will be brief but comprehensive.

Helping is pretty much a circle.If somebody doesn't help and steps out of it,then somebody else will do it too and the circle will eventually fade away!

I really hope I can get this but if not,oh well that's ok!

Good luck to all applicants

Well I believe that contributing to the community is a big part of keeping this fourm healthy because if everyone is taking information away from hackfourm and no-one is contributing then there would be an unequal ratio between healthy Ness and unhealthy was so in short if everyone is taking information away and none is contributing at one point the community will start breaking apart and falling away, hope this makes sense lol and good luck to everyone

Hello I am new to this, so I'm going to attempt this contest and give it my best shot.

I see this forum as a healthy community because everyone gives great advice, helps everyone, and supports everyone. It's like a giant internet family. I enjoy helping others out and giving what knowledge I do have to others. And I know if I need any advice or need to learn something I can simply ask. Giving to the community will continue to benefit not only this forum but every person on here, both on and off the internet.

plexy.timex - April 4, 2018, 12:22 pm

Thanks so much for this chance to win an amazing offer of I33t OP.

I believe that contributing to this forum is a big part in keeping it healthy because it does no one any good when people just take and don't give. I believe that contributing makes this forum a place that all people can learn from each other and when you contribute your ideas other people bring theirs. This makes not only you a tad bit more smart, but others as well. Contributing shows that you aren't just taking peoples hard work, but giving back as well. When you are someone who contributes it shows HF that you are a member that is high quality, wants to keep good going around in a circle and most of all contributing shows your respect back to all the people who have helped you or have not helped you in the past. Hackforums is not just what you can get from people, but what you can give to others in order to make everyone here successful.

Good luck to all participants, thank you for this opportunity one day I am going to do the same. Thanks for the motivation.

Contribution:

Every community needs contribution. It adds to the foundation of the community, whether it be the community's reputation and how it may be perceived by its members and/or outsiders, or just keeping the community healthy and active inside and out. When people contribute, it strengthens the layer of trust that current and future members have and will have in it, and this only makes the life of the community last even longer. For instance, some communities and forums are brought down or die either due to lack of funding, or just the toxicity that could occur in the community in general. Contribution can solve both of these dangers, by possibly fueling the life of the forum/community, or allowing the community itself to be able to see through the cloud of toxicity that may occur within it, and this prolongs the life as well. In conclusion, the concept of contribution and donation is a major deal within online communities and real life communities alike. The donation and contribution of others is not about the thing(s) being donated but the thought that was put into it; and this may be a cliché saying, but it is nevertheless true.

P.S. thanks from all of us for the giveaway!
