Thread: If you are a non native English speaker come here.

Mr. Robot - April 3, 2018, 8:31 am

Seriously, don't put it off any longer. It's worth taking the time to add to your browser and it will help your communication skills overall in the long term.

<https://www.grammarly.com/>

100% free add on that will let everyone understand you and respond better. I often avoid helping Indians as an example due to reading the threads and replies. In no way is it meant to come across offensive to you, this is an English speaking forum and we can assist you better if we can understand you better.

It's a win for you and it's a win for us.

(Might also help the younger members on here)

Just trying to help the overall performance of how users interact on threads. It's amazing how many users will help you on a thread based on how well written it is.

In this case I think it's just the type of language they are coming from usually has the biggest issue with communication. All the words are there just with missing letters or extra in some cases. Makes things difficult to read and less likely to get a proper response.

I use this all the time even though I'm confident in my writing skills. It's always nice to have reassurance when sending over important e-mails or docs. Would recommend to everyone tbh.

spradebassen - April 3, 2018, 8:40 am

I am Indian and I feel insulted. I although have added this to my browser.

Meow - April 3, 2018, 8:42 am

I've been using Grammarly for a few months now and even tho my English is intermediate/advanced it's still nice to see what my frequent mistakes are. I mostly use it when writing English homework and here on HF.

CyberAlien - April 3, 2018, 8:43 am

I have this extension for like a year now. Definitely a life saver.

Dar?k - April 3, 2018, 8:47 am

I never used anything like this before. I could give it a try.

Tree of Life - April 3, 2018, 8:47 am

Bro How Do I Download? I Cant Download Bro Gives Error When Downloading So Cant Download? Can U Help Will Give U 500 Rupees Thx Msg Soon

but for real, this would be super handy for those who don't speak English. It gets annoying when non-english speaking users make a thread and it's just like.. what? I might download it to see what the fuss is about.

Mr Meeseeks - April 3, 2018, 8:51 am

I have used Grammarly for a long time, and it can be useful every once in a while.

Frankey - April 3, 2018, 9:06 am

I have it installed especially for you, not that I am from India though :P

Nate57 - April 3, 2018, 9:19 am

Mr. Robot - July 13, 2019, 3:17 am

Honestly no clue. Kinda wish I had one to be honest.

ririki - July 13, 2019, 4:20 am

If grammarly wouldn't collect that much information I am open to it otherwise it's another data mining software which I rather avoid.

This, also it makes you lazy.

But it's perfect for non native speakers/writers :)

LordMadara - July 13, 2019, 5:48 am

Are there many built-in languages?

If yes, I can finally communicate with the Chinese, they have a very advanced level in blackhat

James Burnham - July 13, 2019, 5:52 am

I used to use this, but it was making some text fields to not show up correctly. I had to disable every time I was contacting support on a site that I use frequently. But yeah, it's a great tool to help you communicate.

Condasoft - July 13, 2019, 6:39 am

I have great adoration for anyone who is learning to speak the English language, learning our language gives you a lot more opportunities in life given that 20% of the global population speak English, with that being said it can be frustrating when people don't speak it properly especially with all these neat little add-ons that are available it's worth noting though that programs like Grammarly are not perfect and their dictionaries still need to learn a lot.

Mix - July 13, 2019, 6:57 am been using Grammarly for about 6 months and its great! good shout robot.

debian - July 13, 2019, 7:31 am

I speak English so good I would never need grammarly.
