After you've made your payment, your account details get emailed to you INSTANTLY. Make sure you check your JUNK folder as it may be there.

Our VPN has a really unique feature, our client gives you the ability to make certain sites use your real IP while you are connected to our VPN. This way you can use HackForums, while connected to our VPN, using your real IP, while all other sites use the VPNs IP.

Watch the video below to see how you can browse HackForums while on our VPN!

How to port forward with our VPN!

Features:Auto Updating Server List

Built in Password Changing

Site Routing - You can make some websites use your real IP while all other websites use VPN's IP (Perfect for using HF while on VPN)

Built in Server Status Monitor

DNS Leak Protection

I've been getting a lot of questions about if servers have DNS leak like some other VPNs that are sold here.No CrypticVPN servers ever have DNS leak.Here is a test I took from DNSLeakTest.com from our Netherlands location today. Note: I used the "Extended Test" option which does a very extensive test. As expected, there was no DNS leak. All our servers are set to use Google's DNS, so that you are always safe. Screenshot of the test: <https://i.imgur.com/XwPiOgk.png>Note: Some crappy DNS Leak testing websites (such as <http://dnsleak.com/>) may say there is a leak, but if you WHOIS the IPs that it says are leaked, you will see they are just one of Google's many IPs.

Yes, just waiting for the DNS changes to propagate properly.

Website is accessible through HTTP though! <http://crypticvpn.com>

VPN remains down until propagation finishes unfortunately.

Dan Smith - April 11, 2018, 4:37 pm

VPN is up again. If you're experiencing any issues connecting to the VPN, try adding some other DNS servers for the time being. DNS is slow to propagate but the servers are up and running!

Google's DNS servers are very slow in propagating our changes. You can access the VPN by changing your DNS servers to another provider.

Ympker - May 16, 2018, 1:52 am

Company rep using vulgar language in public channels of communication (Discord) and not seeing why to behave otherwise. I for one would not like to be treated like that. Words such as "retard" and "fucking kid" are in no way reflecting a professional approach to communication when it comes to representing a company. It's not about whether the other entity is in the wrong and you are in the right. It's not about whether the other entity uses vulgar language or not. It's not about whether this is ticketing or Discord. Once you are opening up a (public) channel of communication you, as a company rep, are expected to stick to a certain kind of behaviour. A professional one that is. Standing above vulgar accusations from other entities/clients.. It is true that I am not a customer of your service but speaking as an individual, I wouldn't stand for this. Leaving it here so people think twice whom they sign up with.

I for one would not like to be treated like that. Words such as "retard" and "fucking kid" are in no way reflecting a professional approach to communication when it comes to representing a company. It's not about whether the other entity is in the wrong and you are in the right. It's not about whether the other entity uses vulgar language or not. It's not about whether this is ticketing or Discord. Once you are opening up a (public) channel of communication you, as a company rep, are expected to stick to a certain kind of behaviour. A professional one that is. Standing above vulgar accusations from other entities/clients.. It is true that I am not a customer of your service but speaking as an individual, I wouldn't stand for this. Leaving it here so people think twice whom they sign up with.

I called out a spammer in the discord channel, who was posting links to his vbucks store. If you can't handle a bit of 'vulgar language', please crawl back to your safe space.

We've never been anything but professional to our clients, but spammers are not clients.

So why not mute that spammer or cordically invite him to leave using nornal language. There is no need for a vulgar outbreak. Just do what you have to and be done with it. Working yourself up is not helping. There are 2 types of spammers: a) AFK spammers which auto spam and you can just kick them directly. And b) those who still argue and discuss who you can then cordically and mannerly invite to leave making use of your "house right" as the discord server owner. In both cases no vulgar language is needed. Won't reply after this as I've pointed out what was bugging me. In fact Black Phoex (your support agent) who kicked me from the server was doing a good job. He replied to both my posts on discord while staying calm and professional and explained to me in a fine way why he wanted to kick me. Nothing wrong with that.

Spammers waste everyones time, time I should be spending helping customers. Just like this time you're wasting right now. I have all the patience in the world for customers who need help, I have none for literal time wasters.

Hey,

The service works on all devices/OS that support OpenVPN.

For linux, you will need to download OpenVPN, and connect using the config files available on the client area.

If you need more details or have any issue, better open a ticket or join our discord server, this thread isn't for support inquiries.

Hey,

Yes it is possible. It is the same procedure as on Windows.

There is a video tutorial on the first page of this thread, you can also check our FAQ:

[https] crypticvpn[.]com/faq.php

The listen tool is for Windows only, you can alternatively use netcat on linux:

Code ncat -nlvp <port#>

It's a very old client and I didn't build it. I'm developing a new client but in the meantime, if you don't trust it, you can use the general OpenVPN client.

It's a legal statement, we can record all we want but all traffic is encrypted so that would literally be useless. This is why it says "raw TCP/UDP data", which would just be undecryptable gibberish that no one can use.

Hi,

It's a false positive, some AVs flag it because of a function to update servers statuses. We're working on it. It is safe,you can use the openvpn client alternatively if you prefer.

We use CloudFlare's DNS servers, they're considered very safe and there's no upside to using our own DNS servers.

Have used this server for about 6 months now but not putting up with it any longer.

Just giving my honest opinion

They also banned me in there support discord for posting honest opinion there, So I thought would post here.

Also would like to add more times than not the speeds are absolutely atrocious.

We banned you from Discord because you kept spouting irrelevant bullshit and cursing at people trying to help you. You were downright abusive and we don't want that kind of behaviour in our community.

Where you at? I pm'd you like a week ago and no response.

A while ago my CrypticVPN.exe randomly deleted when I tried to open it one day, so I went to the crypticvpn website to re-download the client and upon trying to download and open the cryptic vpn installer, my Brave browser, Windows Defender and Windows Smartscreen all triggered. I never have had this issue.. my VPN never needed an exclusion in Windows Defender, but now it does require it.

I suspect maybe this VPN is selling its data/was infiltrated by law enforcement regarding the raiding of Luminosity, Orcus and OmniRAT, and the police want full control/information over your PC/data. (This is conspiracy though as of now. Until I hear a response I am not going to trust to even run their installer on my PC)

Dan Smith - July 15, 2019, 6:34 am

Hello everyone.

First off, my sincerest apologies for being away for so long. I do not want to go into the details too much but due to medical issues I could not use a computer for the past weeks. I run this VPN on my own (with Blackphoenix as staff) so when I'm for whatever reason incapacitated there's nobody to take my place which is unfortunately what happened.

In my absence, I've noticed Windows Defender has suddenly flagged the Windows client for some reason, which sucks big time. I'm going to try and speed up development on the new client but in the meantime, please use the OpenVPN client with the configuration files provided.

Some servers are offline due to me not being able to respond to abuse reports or manually pay bills, I'm working to get them back up.

I'm also trying to reenable PayPal payments this week, I may have found a workaround.

The servers that are online should be working just fine (including port forwarding), please let me know if you're having issues.

Again, my apologies, I know this is not the level of service you guys expect from me. Hope you understand and just know I'm working to get everything running smoothly again!

And who are you? You're newer than me so I guess I could ask you the same.

Edit: Oh and to answer your question or whatever that quote is: Of course a VPN server needs to know your IP when you're connected to it, otherwise it would not be able to work at all. If you think a VPN can work without ever having your IP, you need to take a basic course in computer networking. So yes, when you're connected your IP is stored. But after you've disconnected, this is thrown away. We do not save any data like IPs or connection times.

We have a privacy policy, I suggest you read it instead of making wild assumptions about how I've set up my system.

I am not making any accusations or assumptions. I am simply reading openVPN's policy (the client you suggest to use until Win Defender no longer flags your software as malware).

And no, I am not new here on this forum. 6 years of activity means "new"? ?

You are a brand new VPN owner that purchased this VPN's site, source code, etc from the previous CrypticVPN owner. My gut personally makes me distrust you, but that is besides my point.

"Of course a VPN server needs to know your IP when you're connected to it, otherwise it would not be able to work at all. If you think a VPN can work without ever having your IP, you need to take a basic course in computer networking"

Did you not read my reply? I guess I will re-paste it for you and others.

Me in reply to you suggesting openVPN until your "new" client is released:

(OpenVPN's site)

"Standard PPTP and OpenVPN server log contains connection time, real IP address of a client, as well as a set of instructions showing connection status. The presence of real client IP addresses and connection times allows to accurately identifying each client."

So from that little block of text alone, you can see that OpenVPN logs connection time, real IP address, and a set of instructions showing connection status. Coincidentally, law enforcement can easily contact your ISP instead of your VPN provider and see connection times, IP's, etc, so the "no log VPN servers" don't really matter at all.

I am a long time user of this VPN and too be 100% unbiased and honest, ever since the original creator sold the project, it has turned to utter trash. At least in my opinion. The speeds are very slow for me, the servers are always coming up and down, there aren't a ton of options for locations, and the support is just awful.

Anyway.. it works sometimes, that is all that matters I guess. But I am very disappointed in CrypticVPN's new ownership. It is not what it used to be.

Sure mate, I've owned this VPN for about 1,5 years now which I don't actually think is "brand new"? I guess it depends on interpretation.

Our client also uses the OpenVPN protocol, so there's literally no difference between using our client and the OpenVPN client. Please go spread your misinformation elsewhere.

This has always been there. It's merely for legal purposes as it's impossible to record any data. Everything is encrypted so recorded data would be useless.

You reply to this but not the other people complaining?

Dude, none of the servers even work. You are technically scamming right now and falsely advertising, because literally 0 of your servers work.

Your client is detected as malware by Window Defender and Chrome recently + your servers haven't worked in weeks. This is not sales trashing so don't even try to say it is.

You respond right away to someone copying and pasting your TOS and privacy terms, but you let customers sit here idle while you waste everyones money and time.

I'd recommend that you fix your VPN, but I don't think you know how considering you just up and bought the VPN out of nowhere and nothing has been improved or fixed.

The service is abysmal, If you can't run a business don't..

Dan Smith - August 10, 2019, 5:33 am

I see your complaints and I hear them loud and clear. The truth of the matter is that as most of you know, PayPal has shafted me and has made it impossible to receive payments. PayPal was (by far) the largest share of income, I'm right now using my own money to keep the remaining servers online. This is however not sustainable which is why I'm trying to sell the company. If the company is not sold soon I will unfortunately be forced to shut down.

I feel fucked. PayPal has single-handedly taken down the business I worked my ass off for. It's not fair but then again, life isn't fair: you just learn to deal with it.

I get that this isn't the service you're looking for, but I also hope you understand I'm keeping this alive with my own money and that there are unfortunately limits to that.

Just two servers are up now, Robin is bringing up more in the coming week.

I was a Lifetime user of old cryptic (gocryptic) vpn. After using it 5 months, it is ended. Can I still use my membership on this new one?

While I feel bad for you, Robin has honored lifetime subscriptions going back to 2016 (basically paying for them out of his own pocket). He told me he wasn't going to restore your subscription from 2014 and that then you threatened to trash talk on this thread. Gtfo dude catlover000 - May 20, 2021, 4:36 am

I talked with new owner of the vpn about honoring my life time membership and he said that "Sorry, your account is too old, I can't restore the subscription for you" the ones who will buy this vpn should aware of that your life time (or any type of) membership can be canceled saying like " I m sorry dude too much years passed. You have lived more than 5 years"

Trash talk? I mean I wrote him that if it is his last decision not to give membership i will respect him but I will inform this situation to forum. Which side of that is considered as "trash talk" and "threat"? Btw it is so strange you didnt replied me for days and after this made up "threatening" scenario going on you pop up here in seconds.

You bought a subscription for a completely different VPN from a completely different person. Robin has been more than generous to the community, I don't see why he should give you a free subscription to this VPN.

Anyways, I'm not here to argue on his behalf. If you disagree with the decision, take it up with him, but I think he's being fair here.

Other users who are honored for their membership do so. They were also in different VPN which is owned by a different owner. Your point is meaningless. If you dont want to honor lifetime users coming from past you shouldnt mention it. If you would limit your honor you should mention it in your post with limitations. As I say it on convo with new owner; I wouldnt even try it if I didnt see your and cryptic's posts. If my membership havent been brought from old data base, it is not my fault.

I would just write "it is written that life time members will be honored but they didnt mine, aware when you buy this vpn" nothing more. I had talked with him. He said what he want to and i did same. Our convo be left on discord but you came here in a rush and accousing me "threats" and "trash talk" more then that spraying blame on me :D So it is you, you should say these to yourself mate.

Some food for thought

If you have a policy of honouring old subs from 2016 you should make that clear in your thread And the site to avoid situations like these.

The better way to handle this would have been to apologize to the customer advising them you cant honour that lifetime subscription And offer the customer a 10-20% discount on a new subscription.

Obviously Its too late now but hopefully you can try that approach next time.

Customer service is key to running a successful business and it was my number 1 priority in every business I've ran. That's something i took pride in and what made my VPN one of the top while I ran it on HF

If your account still exists, your subscription should still be valid.

Just like with any other VPN, you never know 100%.

shitmaster - September 24, 2021, 9:13 pm

Just curious. I'm not sure if this has been asked before. Is there a possibility to use an alternate DNS server with your VPN other than the defaulted Google DNS. Something like Alternate DNS, Cloudflare DNS, Adguard DNS etc etc?

If you use the OpenVPN client, you should be able to manually override the DNS servers.

But you're right, Google's DNS is not a good option anymore. I'll forward it to Robin, make sure he switches it to Cloudflare.

If you can still log in to your account and the subscription is still active, then you can use it. The new owner left the database exactly as it was.

Hi,

Yes, there is a custom Windows client. Amount of devices is based on fair-use and there is no hard limit.

I'm Stanley HF's helper bot. The OP (original poster) of this thread wants everyone to see this page and has elected to bump it to the top of the showthread listing. Since HF doesn't want a ton of LQP (Low Quality Posts) this is the best method of bumping your content. There is a small ?yte fee for each bump. Any OP can bump any of their threads on HF from the linked icon on the top of their first post.

If you haven't already read the first post of this thread we encourage you to do so.

Hello,
Is it still working and being updated?

angellomichel387 - April 5, 2022, 4:54 pm

I do not recommend
I paid for the lifetime versions on 10/30/2021 $ 30
via paypal
and the account is blocked when I wrote to the support, I have been writing with them through discord for 5 days and nothing
ordinary will stretch and I had no time before and I was quiet since November he has only been writing to them for 5 days and they can't unlock the account I paid for scammers

I have no clue what you're on about. You claim a PayPal payment, but also say that you've disputed it, and that automatically gets your account terminated. So I don't know how to be more clear about this.
