Here's a few that I have saved that I kind of liked.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

I like the snake on this one -- not the eyes and text though. Could look nice wrapped around a wrist or something too.

One of my favourite looking ones. I'll probably end up getting this or something similar.

Third one is so dope. The only bad thing about having a photo of the style you want is finding an artist that can do it and do it well.

Vegeta - April 12, 2018, 11:58 pm

This is one I liked a lot, youtuber FaZe Banks got it sometime last year and I loved it.

Wolves, and shit like that on arms is something I always thought looked nice.

Tats aren't really my thing though.

Meh, don't you think colors kinda ruin the tattoo?

Mr. Robot - April 13, 2018, 1:09 pm

Best way to really ask that question OP is show what you already have or give us a theme/interests.
This aint no free dox session my man.

We know nothing about you but by the sounds of things we actually do - you're prepared to get any ol' tat for the sake of filling space.

I'd just recommend looking into double meaning tats.

I think the best way to decide personally is to find a specific thing or theme you are really interested in and take that idea to your artist. Any decent artist will be able to sit down and discuss with you your options and the best way to go about it.

I think there definitely should be a meaning behind my first tattoo.

I agree. I think meaning behind tattoos, while not necessary, is always good. If you're just looking to get some small then maybe a loved ones birthday (or date that they passed) in roman numerals is pretty common. If you have a family pet then some realistic portraits can look amazing.

Pretty funny that you say it.

Because right now my current idea, is to have my little brothers birthday and some kind of a strong bond.

Awesome. While I'm not really a fan of getting common tattoos I've got nothing against it. Go for it.

I pretty much love tattoos. And common tattos, isn't really my thing either.

But there a bigger meaning behind it. We went through a lot of stuff. :D

Otis???????????????? - April 13, 2018, 6:12 pm

You should get an HF one mate.

Sandeman - April 13, 2018, 9:01 pm

I'm a sucker for irezumi tattoos.

Getting my left arm fully sleeved with a japanese style. Geisha, and some elements in October..

My right arm has two medium pieces on it right now (forearm three roses covering almost the whole forearm and a hannya mask on my tricep) planning to finish that one with a full foral sleeve.

Anyways, will get a tattoo of whatever you want if you pay me guys. HMU. LOL :^)

It's very nice esp' the modern irezumi styles. Lots of detail.

Irezumi is the only style I'm a fan of. I'm really not a fan of tattoos.
Though a bit cliché at this point, the only other type of tattoo other than Irezumi I actually somewhat like are roman numerals.

They're simple, clean, and really hard for the artist to fuck up.

It is SO good. I wanted to get it 1:1 just how it is in the photo but any decent artist doesn't like just copying other artists work. I have to try and make some modifications to it myself haha.
