i recall some years back i met a girl her family was shit they grandfather was glorified for being in the wars a hero, they said.
not all those that march home carry their humanity back with them she was regarded his favorite always getting the best gifts i thought it was for real and sweet as sometimes she joked about it i just didn't see the painful sarcasm then her grandfather died we drank all night

she told me her story i didn't know what to do all i could was to be sorry turns out most of her family knew but they put their respect for their grandfather before their sister, their cousin, their daughter. all she could ever do was cry and accept then one day she was just gone no good byes

just gone
