Thread: [What's Stopping You From Making Money? \[Let me help\]](#)

MegaByter - April 26, 2018, 6:15 pm

As a long time HF user, I remember when I was a broke 16-17 year old browsing the 'Money' Section of these forums desperately.

I'm in a great space now, and want to help where I can. I'm not selling anything or asking anything from you guys.

Let me know what your biggest hurdles are, mine years ago were:

1. I didn't have much cash to invest.
2. I didn't have a bank or credit card as a 17 year old.
3. I didn't know where to start.

Comment, and I'll reply with the best advice that I can. ?

- No cash because finding a job is impossible in my country.
- Only my personal p.p. account as credit card (worst thing for Ewhore).
- I don't know in what method i have to invest my time.

Royac - April 27, 2018, 4:56 am

I have been searching a long time for a good money making metod
But I dont know where to begin
I tried affiliate but it was difficult to get traffic

Okay, tell me what country you're in, how much $ you have to work with and how much free time per week you have.

Do you have any digital skills? (Photoshop, video editing, writing in english?)
If so, sign up with Fiverr, PeoplePerHour, and utilize them. Also, you can go to reddit r/slavelabour and do small tasks for people.

Also, it looks like there is a high demand for writing articles in swedish, doing swedish voice overs, etc... on Fiverr. Go get em'!

So I can better answer your question.

I love the drive my man, are you in the US? if so $200 is plenty to start hustling on the internet.

Some ideas for you:

1. Pay $14.95 for a Che-g-g subscription, and then on reddit r/slavelabour, (and other places) offer to unlock answers for $1-$3. Do this a few times a day, profit.

2. Find and buy .edu domain email accounts, (Im sure there is no shortage here on HF) and resell them on reddit r/slavelabour or wherever you can. These are in demand because people can get amazon discounts, Spotify subscription discounts etc...

I can tell you more ideas once I know what country you are based in.

Perfect, go to reddit r/slavelabour (jeez I keep mentioning this sub-reddit im sorry lol) and there is many people who need help with Java and programming.

Furthermore, hit up Fiverr and PeoplePerHour, offer Programming help, offer to write articles, essays, whatever it takes.

Its tough to give you advice with just $5. But it is still very possible to keep flipping that. But I suggest you go out and grind out however to get $150-$300 my man. Then get back to me.

1. I got BUCK so thats not an issue

2. No free time, after 8th of this month tho literally ALL of my time will be dedicated to making money

3. My issue I guess is wasting my time doing things that aren't guaranteed money, like building decent sized instagram accounts but letting them grow inactive and not monetizing them. I need a linear path that I KNOW has money as a kind of "light at the end of the tunnel", if i don't see fast returns I start to sidetrack which is my issue.

ColdFury, its really good that you are self aware of your faults, that is a good start. But I'll tell you now, if you don't have the patience to grow and build something, you will forever be chasing "quick cash" and thats no good. If you're from the states, I reccomend flipping items on eBay, I can tell you there is money to be made, and you don't need a lot of patience, but you must be persistent and think a little outside the box. i think this is a good start for you.

Building Instagram accounts is getting a bit saturated, and too many fake followers etc.. If you don't have genuine engagement, you can't make money from a large following.

Instead, get a spotify account, create good playlists under the Genres and artists YOU KNOW AND LISTEN TO. If they are good, you will get people following them, and if you have a decent following on a playlist(s) you can charge artists to put their song on it for a day or week or however long to get their reputation out there. This is a good investment of time.

1. I didn't have much cash to invest. ?

homoneekeri - May 6, 2018, 10:57 am

1. i didn't know how to make money

2. i really thought that these pajeet threads such a "how to make money" actually provided good knowledge and didn't get in touch with succesfully people

3. was too young, only 14-15 years old so , limited brains (yes its really big boost between 14-15 - 15-16 - 16-17- 17-18- 18-19 years. your iq increases much when you get older..)

If someone at that age reads that, listen: you don't need to make money yet.

study hard, study, i'm not saying your should study at school but study something important. like psychology. It's important thing to have skills to control (manipulate) other people.

and . don't try to make money. you have that time later. your parents are paying your food and house. you dont need money anywhere yet.

when making money, knowledge is most important thing. without a knowledge you are nothing. you don't need to be clever to make millions. you need just knowledge. knowledge. knowledge. knowledge.

when i founded cryptos and affiliates i did understand that -- only knowledge.

in 3rd world, you need to work 10 years to get 20k$. in online, you need just to subscribe a Ontology newsletter to receive airdrop worth 20k$.

It's crazy how much knowledge limits people.

tl;dr
find succesfull people and ask how they got rich. if you are native english you have so big prefecence comparing to non-native.
You find so many english-speaking people who you can get to friends in online. Yea. Get friends from succesfull people. don't partner up with stupid poor people if you want to get rich. they can only do crimes

I had and still have that problem. I can't English.
I'd be most likely multimillionare already if i knew how2speak english

I have enough money but work long hours and unpredictable hours
Bring home around 3500 a month but trying to work a bit less (stress on body and health)
Have around 2.5-3k a month to put in thought about dropshipping(buying a reputable instagram and making a shopify store to go with it)

yoghiHD - May 6, 2018, 2:53 pm

i have a full-time job (7am to 4pm) my salary is quite good but i am always looking for a new income.
what stop me is that i am very afraid to start something that i would never finish. for example: dropshipping. i am afraid to order the first product because 1) from cina to my country (italy) it requests a lot of time (40-60days) and i am also afrai to waste money.
i've invested in crypto but i am a "long-holder" so i will probably check my portfolio in few years.
i also don't have any other skill. i don't like programming. i use my free time only playing video games (league of legends) and i would seriously love to stop it.
but i don't have the power.
i have many dreams in my life and wasting time playing is a pain. but i can't stop it.

Get inspired my man! You are living in the age of the internet! Anything is possible.

1. Make a paid Facebook Group about something you are passionate about where there is something of value that you and your members add, and enough value to be able to charge people $1-$15/month to be a part of. A friend of mine charges people for his FB group where he posts his stock picks.
2. Maybe take 3 hours of your 6 free hours and be a virtual assistant through Fiverr/Peopleperhour

Hmm, since only 1-2 free hours a day, I say open up instagram, find a niche you know well, and start looking for smaller accounts (5k-50k followers) and if they only have good engagement, offer the owner to buy them, if you are lucky, you'll find a kid owner who will let one go for a good price.

Acquire a few who have REALLY GOOD ENGAGEMENT, keep growing them and in the future you will have built a valuable asset(s) passively.

Another thing you could do is arbitrage, buy from germany's amazon for cheap, sell on germany's Ebay for more expensive.

The UK ebay is a gold mine. Flipping items can get you some good cash. I will give you an idea and look something up real quick:

Okay - Here is a product idea to easily flip

1. Find a lightweight jewelry piece like so: <https://bit.ly> [WARNING: potentially infected]/2G5xpLL
- click on "29 sold" and see that 17 have been sold just in April at 17 GBP. This is decent demand.

2. go to Aliexpress and find the exact same : <https://bit.ly> [WARNING: potentially infected]/2KSx8z
- The exact same is priced at 6.62 GBP. (Free shipping also, might take a while tho).

And #3 = Profit! Keep finding similar items that you can flip, and keep putting up listings on eBay, when your phone buzzes and you have a sale, just go ship it at the post. Easy side cash that can actually pile up.

TIP: FOLLOW TRENDS, 2 years ago I made thousands of $ on the side selling Fidget Spinners when they were hot.

Just an idea. Cheers.

I'll go off of you telling me you have Video editing skills. How about Starting a youtube channel(s) that has an educational or informative niche in a creative way, content that can and will always get views because it doesn't expire example: How to tie a tie. Make a channel oriented around one subject matter and provide value in videos that help people. Each video will bring you residual income forever if you follow these guidelines.

But be creative.

im not sure what to do about paypal. i mean its a good service but im scared to do stuff like shopify and not use paypal cause i think it makes a huge difference on how many people buy your stuff. i wanna use paypal but they're so quick to permanently ban you over anything and it's not exactly easy to just make a new account with the same name over and over again.

i think its stupid in games or anything else they at least warn you once before you hitting you with the hammer but the second paypal sees you doing anything they instantly ban you for life and hold your cash and shit it fucking sucks.

-- Syfer1234, the only reason you think PayPal is too strict or bans people too much is because you have spent too much time on HF lol. Its pretty straightforward, don't do sketchy business. Provide all of your true information and use it for legal purposes, in over 10 years I haven't had any issues with PayPal.

Side Effects, I completely understand and agree with you, having your own Personal, Creative Space is very important. If you can't find it at home, I suggest you go to the closest public library and set up your laptop/headphones and be productive there every day. Or if you live near a college campus, just find a study spot anyone can access and set up shop there. Good thing is, this is an easily fixable problem. Good luck :)

I just started my first online business venture:

I'm trying to help people better understand the enormous potential of their brains. So I created a training system that involves the training, six courses, training books, and all these things that I just released for sale.

It's still in the early stages so I haven't had a ton of profits yet, but I would love to hear your advice.

Here's what I'm doing.

Right now I'm trying to get people to book appointments with me so I can hopefully close sales.

- Social Media Outreach and Messaging
- Content Creation (Facebook, Instagram, Youtube, and my Podcast)
- Marketing Funnels Set Up (Landing Pages, Email Marketing, etc)
- Experimenting with cold calling -> closing process

The thing is right now, I don't have much cash flow going on to fund a lot of promotion yet.

The biggest thing is I need to drive traffic to my landing page and lead magnet.

Thank you,

I greatly appreciate it

Kenny, I do like the idea of an All-in-One Course you have going, but you will want to get very specific as to what the course is meant to achieve upon completion. "Helping people realize the enormous potential of their brains" doesn't describe anything. Since you haven't given me much details on what the course covers, I can't really say which direction you should go towards, also depends heavily on your target demographic and cost of the whole package itself.

You have got the right idea as far as funnels and content creation, Just truly help people learn and achieve something and they will come.

Hope that helped, it was tough with the limited information provided.

I'm not really sure of what i want to do, i mean i'm undecided between programming or making some money on the internet, i don't want to get methods i just want some good source where i can start with and something to read and get knowledge. I'd like to try dropshipping but it seems so hard to do, i'm afraid from wasting my money on facebook ads for then not getting traffic at all, any advice?

(sorry for my bad english i'm still learning)

My biggest hurdle, is having no startup capital.

I have tried to do dropshipping a few times with shopify but never make anything before the end of the trial period.

Tried dropshipping on eBay and LOST money due to the whole "customer is always right" BS.

Ewhoring is becoming redundant and draining for me, even though it makes decent enough money, I'd like to do something outside of staring at cocks all day.

I get what you're saying, here's what they get:

Price $397

-7 Weeks of Training where they get the following

Learn how to use and implement memory techniques to learn faster.
A better understanding of their own learning and creativity potential.
A set of tools to keep improving their mind and life even after the training is over.

Here are some more specific details:

Each of the phases comes with the training exercises, a course, and a training book:

Phase 1: Focus on developing visualization skills and creativity training
Phase 2: Focus on making any types of information memorable (Numbers, names, symbols, etc)
Phase 3: Focus on organizing the information you're learning in the brain into structured stories
Phase 4: Focus on creating associations for new information you learn to incorporate it into existing neural nets
Phase 5: Focus on learning to use techniques such as the memory palace to organize information
Phase 6: Focus on learning some final techniques like mind mapping or the mind tree for taking notes and aiding the other memory techniques. In this phase, I also give some tools for continuing the mind-development journey so they become a sort of 'scientist' investigating their own brain.

If you need any more information please let me know ?

Affiliate marketing requires little no no capital!

Basically: Take great products/courses/services that already exist and sell them for an affiliate commission!

Try retail arbitrage on amazon and ebay! Literally scan barcodes in the store on each of their apps, and you can see what they're going for, what selling fees are and how you'll profit. It's also very fun!

1. I don't have that much cash to invest, but I can invest up to 25$ maybe, depends on what I am doing.
2. I live in Bulgaria.
3. I am not sure where to start and some things that people suggest aren't available in my country, I can translate anything from English to Bulgarian and from Bulgarian to English, I type ~140 wpm based off typeracer, so I can translate huge texts or type down an interview or something.
4. I have a lot of free time, since I'm in college. I see a lot of people recommend e-whoring, but I don't feel comfortable doing that and have no idea how to start anyway.
5. I've ordered over 100 products from aliexpress, but for my own use. I guess that would be profitable if I buy from there and sell stuff in here, but if I sell anything it's gonna be on a website like ebay, but the bulgarian one.

PS. I am looking for any income at all, small income, steady, I can learn a craft if I know it's worth the time. I've tried some things in the past like PPC, but that's a waste of time. I've sold league of legends accounts, world of warcraft accounts and such, but can't do that anymore. Any help/advice is appreciated.

Happy Holidays MegaByter,

My name is Mario. Exactly one year ago, my Shopify dropshipping store was making me about $3000 USD per month, so I decided to leave my $4000 CAD per month 9 to 5 job. I figured I could make the same amount of money and more with the dream job I always wanted and no boss, no schedule. It was a big move in my life. Fast forward to May 2018, my store made me $33,000 in sales in a single month which about $12,000 USD was in profit.

That moment I thought I was set for life but I guess I learned that anything that can go high quickly can also fall as quickly. My niche died and spend the following year testing new niches with not so good results. Ended up losing thousands of dollars in Facebook Ads. I figured I was doing something wrong somewhere so I paid someone $1000 for advanced mentorship, but he pretty much didn't help me. So this month I dropped completely dropshipping and started my SMMA company. I already got my first client which is nice, but it will take a little while before I start making enough money.

In the meanwhile, I'm looking for something short term and good money. I'm really not looking forward to go back to a 9 to 5 job. I have money to invest, I have Facebook Ads and Google Adwords knowledge, I know web and app coding, I have A LOT of time. I'm just not sure what I can do. I saw your thread so I figured maybe I could get a few ideas from you. I'm a bit desperate lol I hate not seeing any money coming in. I would appreciate any help.

I know in Bulgaria and surrounding countries it is difficult to flip on eBay or amazon because the bulgarian eBay just doesn't have a big market and people don't online shop much anyway, so that would involve working on the UK eBay's etc... so I say stay away from that at this point.

With $25, you don't have investment capital, but what you do have is your time and I can tell you have the drive and motivation.

So, what I recommend is sign up on Fiverr, and PeoplePerHour, maybe even upwork. Take a few days to research market niche's and find something you can learn to do or already know how to do (such as translation services you mentioned) and create some Gigs.

Heres a suggestion: People love animated whiteboard videos, learn how to use a software like videoscribe, become really good at it so you can produce videos fast and offer your services on the sites I mentioned, you will win!

Tips:

- When starting out, be willing to work for very little money, but have great Quality work and customer service, word of mouth is all of the marketing you need.
- Always deliver your gigs on time and offer revision, people love that.
- Raise your prices over time as you gain good reviews and establish social proof that you are good at what you do.

Good luck!

Hey Mario,

Wow, this sounds just like me about 15 months ago. First of all, congrats on your Shopify success, don't put yourself down, a lot of people can't achieve results like that with drop shipping. Seeing that you have, I see a lot of potential in you.

Also the $33k month you had isn't what's impressive to me, I'm more impressed at the 37% profit margin you managed in that month.

As an ecommerce guy myself, I know that sales mean nothing and profit margins mean everything :
P

I also quit my 9-5 when my ecommerce business took off, and I am never going back.

Kind of angers me that someone took that $1000 for "mentorship" and left you unsatisfied.

I know exactly what direction to point you. (Same path as me)

Without sounding too sales-y, Feel free to send me a message and we can chat further!

As far as SMMA though, I feel like everyone is trying to have at it. If you bring something unique to the table and give your clients monetary results, keep at it. If not, don't focus too much of your time on it.

Thanks for the reply and encouraging words!

Yeah man it was crazy, first week I was hitting about 50% profit. Ads were performing like CRAZY haha! First weekend, I made $4500 in sales. I still remember exactly the dates. Saturday I was at a party, my phone blowing up in sales. I was so happy lol! That's how much it affected me. Miss that, I know I'll get there again soon enough!

For the "mentorship", I called my bank and chargebacked the money but the guy could still win the case so I'm waiting for the verdict. I provided a lot of info though so I'm confident I'll win this case. Alright, I'll see for the SMMA anyways not putting too much time so far.

Great to see we have a similar story! I will PM you for sure! Appreciated it.

1. Make a bank account. Get your parents to help you out, its pretty simple, they can be an authorized user of it.

2. Make a PayPal

3. Make a website you can post blogposts on, post short and simple and VERY specific articles like "How to cut out the background in photoshop" and with decent SEO on your blog, you can get traffic. Then you decide what you want to do with that traffic, run ads? or maybe link them to your fiverr gig, where you offer your photoshop services? Get creative.

Xandirx, the fact that you have very humble and realistic starting goals is a great sign. $10 a day can easily be achieved if you are willing.

If you really have no money, (and anyone else with absolutely no money to invest) do this:

1. On the "Letgo" app, go to the "FREE" Section and browse people near you (5-10 miles)
2. Look for something preferably small and lightweight, but mainly something you can resell.

Like This:

<https://imgur.com/a/HrrgtWG>

3. Look it up on eBay (SOLD listings not just offers), and if theres profit to be made, go pick it up! Repeat 15-20x until you have a few hundred that you can use then get back to this thread :)

Like This:

<https://imgur.com/a/y8vPEBV>

Boom. After eBay fees/paypal, you're looking at a clean $32
Go after it!

Haha well, first off I guess I have to give you credit for making 5k/mo from ewhoring, even though I don't like that business model, props ?

Since you have little to no money to invest. Heres an idea you can implement to leverage the fact that you have time to invest.

1. Go on Flippa.com, and look at the domains that are selling/people bid on.
 2. Get a feel for what people pay for and then hit up Godaddy or NameCheap and start researching what domains are available.
 3. Buy 1 or 2 potential winners for $8 each and list them on Flippa. You can get lucky and make 10x-20x your money this way.
- Take your time to research and find what domains are likely to resell quick. This is key, dont rush into buying.

You would be surprised how many people have made a lot of money from this, therea re hidden gems/Domains that you will stumble upon that will resell, this involves some foresight though. Like if you bought solareclipse.com 1.5 years ago, people would have paid crazy money for it in order to sell solar eclipse glasses when the big one happended, as so many google searches would have given this website tons of organic and free traffic.

Cheers!

Very easy way to make money with no money, is the following:

1. On google maps, look up as many businesses as possible (massage parlors, tattoo shops bars etc...)
2. Evaluate their websites, you would be surprised how many businesses have horrrrrible looking websites.
3. If their website is bad, Email them (Make a proposal email template and mass send it) and offer a whole professional makeover for $197.
4. YOU DONT HAVE TO KNOW HTML TO BUILD A WEBSITE THESE DAYS -- ANYONE CAN!
5. Go to SquareSpace or Duda and use their drag and drop builder to create an awesome website!
6. Get creative with your approach, maybe every 1 out of 100 emails will be a client, maybe less! But you have the whole business directory at your finger tips (google) so this isn't a problem! I have done this in the past when I had no money and a lot of free time. It works.

Cheers!

Hey friend, sounds like you are in a situation that requires stability.

The problem is you have $0 to invest and a family that is depending on you.

Sometimes you have to put your head down and grind it out. I suggest doing this irl thru a job or gigs on craigslist like helping people move, etc...

Evaluate your strengths, look at what jobs are in demand on sites like Upwork, and create a profile, offer your services for cheap, provide quality work and build up your client base. Its a compounding investment of time so it will pay off in the long term, its hard for someone in your situation to grind for something like this when it sounds like you are in need of $$ now.

Hope I helped.

First thing that comes to mind is how dirt cheap Facebook ads are for Brazil.

Find a way to capitalize on this! Sell trendy t-shirts, dropship, etc... Get creative.

You can literally reach millions of people in Brazil for less than $100...

You can probably get $0.02 per click, and even if 10 out of every 1000 clicks buys something, thats $20 spent on ads only, but 10 purchases which even at $4 profit per item puts you up $40

Since you brought up ecommerce, I'm going ti run with that.

Amazon to ebay drop shipping can be profitable, however I'm not informed on if thats against Amazon's rules or not.

A quick google search led me to an Italian classified ads website "bazario.it" go on there and pull up eBay in another tab.

TIP: When you have two different markets like this, there will always be items that differ in prices and demand, this is what allows for flipping. Money is made between the lines! So go and read between the lines and find some products with a margin difference between the two platforms and profit.

1. Start a blog, this is very easy to get up and running.
2. Either niche your blog down or let it be have all types of content.
3. Whenever there is a trending event (ex: Lebron James scores 70 points), write a blog post/article about it, using good SEO, in hopes your website will receive organic traffic through the big trend everyone is searching on google.
4. Repeat for every trending topic (big or small)
5. Monetize! If you're writing about a basketball trending topic, maybe include affiliate ads for NBA jerseys on the side. etc.. Or just run ads period. Get creative, doesn't have to be ads, could be an affiliate link on a basketball video course.

Whatsup boss, you can very easily make $100 a week work!

Heres a business model to look into:

Printful is a service that creates on demand shirts, make designs that sell, sell them on etsy, ebay, shopify, wherever really, and then when you get an order you just fulfill it using Printful.

Tip: You can link Printful to etsy and automate this!

Its an amazing opportunity I believe.

Good luck!

-18, havea job, but just want to find a more fulfilling situation in life where I could make money doing something I like only making about $600 a month but I spend most of that on either drugs or food which is something I have to fix but just cant

I dont know if these count as skills, but:

I've done some essays for friends in high school(paid me ofc), and some that were/are in college too.

They always wanted me to write their essays again so I guess I was good at that to some extent?

Besides that, after a year and countless hours of practice I can say that I can play guitar.....to some extent, as in, it sounds good to me idk if it would sound good to other people lol. But yeah that's pretty much it

My goal by 20 is to be living on my own and have better management of my life so I can better spend my income.

I don't really want anything big music-wise just to be able to eventually make enough money playing it to pay for basic necessities like a car, apartment/house, etc.

So yeah hope you can give some advice on how to handle my situation man!

If I am reading that correctly, you are from a third world country?

Being in a third world country with little no no money is tough, however I do have advice for you.

Having access to a laptop and internet is very powerful my friend.

With the internet at your fingertips, you have all the knowledge you could ask for, you can learn any skill you would like.

My advice is to use your free time and learn a skill, become great at it, master it. Then, you can offer your services to others online.

(For example become a photoshop master/graphics designer)

One skill that is valuable is video editing, if you are really good at it.

Good Luck!

I am glad you realize your faults, but now the next step is fixing them. Get rid of the drugs man, don't be a slave to instant gratification, instead, use that money for long term build.

If you have $300-400 a month as capital, I feel retail arbitrage is best for you.
Go to a local Nike Outlet when they are having 30% off sales, download the eBay app, and scan every shoe you see with it. Then in the "filters" select the "sold" criteria to see how much each shoe sells for.

Evaluate the demand and sales price history for the shoe, if its worth it, buy it! I used to do this for fun with friends, and when Nike has 30% off sales, there are literally shoes you can get for $15 that you can flip for double.

Just remember that the eBay + Paypal fees at around 12% of the total sales price.

Good luck!

Don't look for 'methods', methods people share on here get saturated and are mostly for quick cash, if they even work.
Instead, think long term and think building something.
I know most people on here are teenagers looking for a quick buck to buy a laptop or cool things with, and I get it, I was there too.
If you want quick, legit cash, its easy, get a job. Nothing wrong with that.

But you should build something online, whether its a blog, a youtube channel, a spotify playlist (can be valuable), etc...

I don't have a 'method' my friend, I have a business. I would love to help you out but you have to give me more information, like how much time and money you have to invest, if you have a bank account/paypal, what are your skills, what country you live in etc...

Hey there,

I see you said you like HTML, but let me tell you right now brother, don't waste your time, HTML developers will be out of business soon, it is so easy to make an awesome customized site with drag and drop services like Squarespace, Wix etc... Anyone can do it.

However you can use this to your advantage and maybe set up a service where you create websites for businesses, stores, etc..

You can look up business in your country, check out their websites, if they even have one, and either way, contact them via email or phone call if you want and offer them a package to remake or create their website professionally. You can even upsell other services to them once they are your client.

Tools you will want to use: SquareSpace or Wix.

Good luck!

I'm in the U.S.

I'm a type-1 Juvenile Diabetic

Age: 20

Money to start with: Uh, $7 BTC

Problems:

Daughter and wife at home - raising a child and having a family can be super expensive.

Medical bills - I have insurance, but I'm in so much debt you wouldn't understand how bad it is.

Since I'm a diabetic, I tend to miss a lot of work. Finding it hard to keep a job.

Anger issues/ADHD/OCD/Depression/Anxiety - These are fucking great things to have. Am I right?

Tried starting my own webshop (Dropshipping) - Advertising was a bust, and niches never stuck.

Tried dealing Pot - It's legal in my state to have and grow recreationally, just can't sell. Plus everyone already has a dealer.

Tried growing social media profiles and selling - Poo.

Trying to allegedly rat people and do some shitty things - spreading is harder than it seems.

Tried picking up scrap metal and bringing it to a scrap yard - I own a Honda Civic. C'mon.

Tried reselling items, finding free stuff on Craigslist, selling on FB. - People are hoarders and don't know how to get rid of shit.

However, I work hard and do the best I can. I'm driven. I'm focused (Most of the time, diabetes gets in the way of that. I can explain if need be.) I try, and I try. I just can't seem to succeed. I'm planning on opening my own dispensary here within the next few years, but I can't do anything without going to college and I don't have the luxury to do that like some people do. Banks would look at me and my credit and say "What the hell?! Get the fuck out of here!"

I'm really down for almost anything, as long as I get paid. I'm looking to get paid per job, so I saw that you said something about the r/slavelabour on Reddit. Might try to do something there. Make a little extra cash. However, I'm looking for more of something along the lines of more than $20 extra bucks a week. I'd like to maybe make it a side job I do when I can but make along the lines of a $2000/month job. Where I can work from home, make my own schedule, and actually get to spend time with my wife and see my daughter grow up.

If you have anything in mind, please. Do not hesitate to let me know. Anyone. Please?

Thats great that you have 400 Euros coming in per month + the 500 you currently have saved. If you want to keep building this, I always reccomend flipping items on eBay, whether its nike shoes, or anything you can find on sale.

However its good that you are aware you must build up something rather than make a quick buck, and for this, there are many routes you can go. I'm not sure what you are good at or passionate about, but here is an example that can work for you:

1. Since you are a CS major, create a fiverr gig like "Will help solve your java homework problems" for $20 (or something specific)
2. Create a programming blog, and IMPORTANT: *Fill it with great articles that help people solve specific problems, example: "How to fix an out of bounds error on a 2d array" do your research here and find out what specific problems people are searching for on google. People will stumble onto your article, find it very helpful, and then you can showcase your fiverr gig and this will become an evergreen article that will send external traffic to your Fiverr gig forever, repeat this 100 times and you see where I'm going with this.

Now that was just a random wildcard example, but get creative here, find out what problems you can solve, the bigger the problem, the more people are willing to pay for a solution. Over time you can not only make money off Fiverr, but build your blog up and host ads, have guest posts, etc... Build your blog as a brand as you go.

Good luck!

My first suggestion, I don't know if you have looked into it, but sign up for Uber/Lyft and grind it out as hard as you can, drive for 12 hour days, I mean if you are eligible for this, drive non-stop and start paying off your debt little by little. Or do post mates, either works.

The second thing that came to my mind right away is using your diabetes as a positive. Bare with me here;

I am assuming since you have Diabetes, you are very informed on the subject. Well this can be a plus because look at what I found on google: "A record high number of Americans—40%, or more than 100 million adults—are living with diabetes or prediabetes according to the Centers for Disease Control" Thats a 100 million TARGET AUDIENCE! Do you know how many people search diabetes related problems, questions etc... on Google? A LOT! Create a blog, youtube channel or both and start pumping out diabetes related articles that will help people. This can easily gain traction with the right SEO content and you will be able to begin monetizing your blog.

However don't go into it looking to make money (the blog), instead try and help people by providing the best content on living with Diabetes. Link your social media, build a following, create a community, even a facebook group to go with your blog that people can join and discuss this topic on. I'm telling you it may sound funny right now, but its a viable business model and I have seen it work first hand.

Good luck to you my man, I really hope I helped.

If online isn't an option, try creating a business offline and get clients in the form of other businesses (example: shops, bars, restaurants).
You can offer to help them with marketing, social media, etc...
Online isn't the only option we have!

Im 16 and own a small clothing brand but want to expand and learn more

Its not impossible to find information on business and marketing but it is difficult. I would like to optimize and boost my learning efficiency. Webinars that try to sell a product for most of the session are getting old. I do make the most of any information i can absorb however i would like to filter out the extra noise.

Money is a big problem in my family and i want to do all i can to help out as well as prepare myself for a future of entrepreneurship. But again, finding information other than youtube and webinars is challenging and my family doesn't believe courses are valuable "investments".

My biggest advice to you is hit up places like <https://www.reddit.com/r/streetwearstartup/> and network with other startup brand creators man. Learn from people, and apply it to your business.

Also apply to Merch By Amazon and sell your brand, its great but you won't make much $ off their royalty program, but still no cost at all for you to sell your designs.

Also look into printful, they can create custom clothing on demand, so no upfront cost to you again, if you get an order on your website or on instagram etc.. you just fulfill it with Printful.

Just some ideas. Also, make sure to define your brand and demographic as narrow as possible so you know who to target, you HAVE to start with a small demo audience, and grow from there. Example: teenage skateboarders.

Good luck, I hope I could get you started on your path to crafting your brand even further, also reddit is a goldmine for learning from people who are actually doing what you are focused on.

Time is the most important asset you don't own.

You can't do much without time my friend. If I were you I would audit how you use your time and maybe change up some of your priorities to make some time for business. Work smarter, not harder.

Good luck!

As far as finding jobs relevant to your skills, build something, work on projects that you think are cool and use them for your resume, companies love that.

As far as online money making, hit up the "slavelabour" reddit and do random gigs people need done and make quick cash.

Also, you are on HACKFORUMS with PROGRAMMING knowledge! Use this to your advantage man! There are tons of kids here who are eager to learn programming related skills, maybe make an ebook for complete noobs on how to start programming. Or maybe Youtube video tutorials with a hidden link that people can pay like $2 to unlock the playlist.

Good luck!

Investing is for when you have extra $$ sitting in a bank account.

You don't want to invest, right now you want to grind and flip until you can invest.

If you are 21 + I say grind it out with uber when you are not working, make as much extra $$ as you can.

Well, in any ecommerce business, there will be refunds, expect 4-6% of all order to be refunds. just be transparent about it and if its your own website, tell them to contact you directly for a refund or partial refund maybe.

Make sure you pick products that have a low raw cost so that even refunds don't cost you much.

Making music can be lucrative my man! Don't be so down on yourself, lets figure this out.

If you truly have confidence in your mastering, mixing and beat-making, there are plenty of things you can do!

I'd love to hear your music if you want to PM me it.

Also here are some ideas for you (if you are indeed good at your music craft)

1. Create a bunch of Fiverr gigs like ("Will make a_ style beat for you", "Will mix and master your song(s), etc...)
2. Create a website, brand yourself, link it to your Youtube where you have your stuff posted. Post tutorials on mixing, mastering etc... but get very specific on your topics so you know people are searching for them and can find your posts, example: "How to add reverb to a voice in pro tools"
3. Create a lot of content on youtube like tutorials, your beats etc... and link your description to your website/blog. Build up a audience or community and you can monetize it as it goes, along with your Fiverr gigs.
4. You can sell beats to rappers/musicians via instagram! Use hashtags in IG search, get creative and find these musicians and offer a free sample or a subscription they pay for X amount of beats per month.

Good luck!

1k is a very good start. Although I personally don't like drop shipping as a business model heres a few ideas:

1. Start a service where you offer new/existing local businesses the service of getting them on to groupon, creating the perfect discount deal and getting them more customers. (Example: a new laser tag place opens up in your city, contact them saying how you have helped many other businesses around them get on groupon and create the perfect most enticing deal to get them a rush of new customers.)

You can either agree on a one time fee, or maybe a commission based off every time someone buys the groupon? Just a thought...

2. Look into domain flipping or blog flipping on flippa.com - Maybe buy an existing website, evolve it, grow it and resell it?

Good luck!

Hey bro,

So i'm just going to hit you with the truth and a gameplan.

1. You don't have a way to accept money, so making money online probably isn't what you should focus on right now.

2. if you can, get a parent or someone to help you open a bank account and a PayPal, this will open a lot of doors for you.

3. This doesn't mean you can't build something though. You are very young, I'm guessing you have a lot of time on your hands so start building something, for example, a youtube channel or blog, and in 2 years when you are 18, if you do a good job, you can begin to monetize it with the following you have created, you have to be creative and consistent though and I promise it will work.

4. I guess you can get paid through crypto, so starting a service in something you are good at can be something to pursue.

Also, browse through my other replies on here to get ideas, Good luck!

PS: Don't invest in "methods", invest in people. If you see someone that is clearly doing well at whatever he does, ask them questions, offer them something in return for their help, learn, don't buy methods from HF from people you know nothing about.

First off, its great that you are thinking long term, working on something that you know won't pay off until months/years from now is the hardest thing to do, but can be the most rewarding.

As far as getting quick cash to fund this, there's plenty of ways,

Retail arbitrage is pretty easy, if you are in the US, go to stores like TJ Maxx, ROSS, Nike Outlet, and find shoes to sell on eBay using the eBay barcode scanner on their app.

Maybe find a problem to solve for local/national businesses and make some cold calls to sell them your service. (Example: reputation management, getting them feedback from customers, yelp reviews, etc...

Good luck!

As far as a website blog, I recommend either doing a niche with articles that help a targeted group of people solve problems they have questions to, (example: how to do specific things in photoshop like cutting out a background..)

OR

Identify what you are MOST passionate about, if its Fortnite for example, show tutorials on how improve your aim, write articles on what the Future of fortnite is and how long you think the game will last, if theres an a controversial update to the game that people are angry at, write an article on your opinion so that you can catch the trend etc...

You can build a blog out of anything, there just has to be consistency and passion. Create GREAT content and think about monetization AFTER its established and you have readers.

If I could go back in time and tell my 15 year old self some advice, it would be the following:

1. With no money to invest in anything, find a part time job or find any (legal) way in real life to save up.
2. Use most of your free time to learn skills and business models. (Go on Udemy (warez disallowed).com and go through as many free courses you can)
3. The best skills to know for the current time imo are: SEO, Google/FB/YT ads, and email marketing.
4. Build something until you are 18-19, I mean really build. If its a web-blog about your biggest passions, do it. Be consistent. Youtube Channel is ideal here. But QUALITY OVER QUANTITY!
5. Video games are a huge waste of time, only in moderation.

Just absorb as many skills and knowledge until you are 18-19 and you have some capital to work with to pursue the skills and knowledge that you have learned in those years.

Good luck my man.

Well its definitely not a good idea to fake your age for paypal, or fake any information.

Can you just use your parent's Paypal maybe? Or get them to make one and then use it? This will help a lot.

Alternatives are Venmo, Stripe etc... But I think your age is the issue, however here is something you can do:

There are special bank accounts for students and teens below 18. Check it out with a parent and create one! You will even get a free debit card to use.

Here are your options:

CapitalOne solved the need for teen bank accounts by providing what's called a CapitalOne 360 "Money" account. A Money account is a zero-fee teen checking account.

1. Some of the benefits of a CapitalOne 360 Money account includes:

- No fees or balance requirements
- A free debit card teens can use at any store that accepts MasterCard
- Text alerts to both teens and parents for low balances
- Fee-free ATMs across the country
- Accounts earn interest

2. Bank of America Student Banking: No monthly maintenance fee, online/mobile banking, and the ability to send and receive money via the Zelle online payment service.

3. Alliant:

Available for kids aged 13-17 years old, start a joint account for your child with no minimum balance, no monthly fees, online/mobile banking, and interest rates more than twice that of other teen bank accounts.

4. Chase:

A "high school checking" account is available for students 13-17 years old, without a monthly fee if linked to a parent's bank account. Chase tends to have a lot of fees like ATM and overdraft fees, but this is a good opportunity to teach your teen how to avoid such "big bank" fees.

5. Huntington Bank:

Anyone under 18 can open a Huntington Bank student account so long as someone over 18 is willing to open it as a co-signer or as a joining account. Huntington Bank doesn't provide account details online so make sure to read the fine print when you sign up.

6. Wells Fargo:

A teen account is available to any student aged 13-17, with a parent account linked the account. Parents can place limits on purchases, and students can bank from their mobile phone or online. You can avoid the monthly fee if you opt for online statements.

Once you have a bank account, I think you can create a Stripe, or PayPal or Venmo? You'll have to check.

I'm assuming you are in the USA, as I think these are options for US citizens, but I'm not too sure. Good luck!

I probably should've mentioned earlier that I'm in Canada and I'm not sure if any of these services are offered here. I've tried getting my parents to create a PayPal, but they dismissed it. I'm not well informed when it comes to banks, but as far as I know, I have either a student chequing account or a youth account (TD Canada Trust). My parents don't really want me to touch my account because they want me to save it for uni so that's why I was looking for something like PayPal. I guess I can try use that, but that's just based on what I can do

About cryptocurrency. Should I get into it? I mean, at the very least, should I own a wallet for crypto? If so, what currency should I make a wallet for? I'm aware that there are different cryptocurrencies (bitcoin, litecoin, ethereum etc.) and I just want to know which one should I make a wallet for if I should even make one at all, to begin with

Thanks for being like a sort of mentor to me. I really appreciate it Turned $500 to $5000 no problem. But the issue is my PayPal is limited. I have no monthly bills to pay but feel an urge to have a consistent income as I did in the past.

Heres a business model to look into:

Printful is a service that creates on demand shirts, make designs that sell, sell them on etsy, ebay, shopify, wherever really, and then when you get an order you just fulfill it using Printful.

Tip: You can link Printful to etsy and automate this!

Its an amazing opportunity I believe.

Good luck!

Here is a trick for Paypal, go to a grocery store or anywhere you can buy refillable Visa giftcards, get one, fill it with $$, and use that to open a PayPal. I'm not sure if you can withdraw from PP without a bank account, I mean makes sense, where would you withdraw to?.. Haha but PayPal is sort of like a bank account I guess.

Well if you have entered your accurate information and have linked it to a bank, there's no reason it would be limited.

Play by the rules when it comes to these kinds of things! Figure that out first before continuing on your journey. Assuming you have a bank account as well, if not, make one!

There are two things wrong with what you just told me:

1. "I dont have money to start"
2. "My plan is to invest in Bitcoin mining"

Its good to have a plan, but its better to know where you stand. If you have no money, go hustle and grind to make some!

Investing is an option after you have spare income.
Good luck!

I do not have any money to invest and in my country that is Venezuela having $ is an odyssey, I have two jobs and collecting salaries I earn around $ 50, which is enough for me to live. It is difficult for me to have money for investment.

I have been lucky with guides and members who provide free guides but these are to generate income via affiliate marketing or refer people, buying and selling, resales, etc. Here there is a problem due to the above mentioned, the people of my country earn for half eat

I have a lot of free time, my weekend is a long time, maybe even more than 8 hours. the days of weeks, if I find something where I can generate more than $ 20, I will have about 5 to 7 hours to use ..

What I meant by getting into crypto is just setting up a wallet so if anyone wants to send me some coins for whatever reason, I have a way of getting it. I've already gotten a wallet set up already, but I doubt it'll be active at all. I'm not quite sure how this works, but I think the point of this address is for people to send some coins: bc1qxcg9mlsa02dg7mtdhw095q4lqag2paqu0k46kar

Hello, I must say your situation is tough. I am sure you can overcome it though.
One thing that is good for your sake, is that you say $50 a month is enough to live off.

First of all, sorry but I peeked at your post/thread history. I see that you have purchased 2-3 methods from people on this forum for $40+ each.. How are these going for you?

My advice to you would be get a PayPal account that you can withdraw money to your bank from. Then you can do so many small tasks for people online that just require time and little skill to earn way more than $50 a month.

I am assuming you have access to a computer and internet?

In all honesty about the acquisition of the methods I will tell you by PM.

They are quite friendly methods and they lend themselves so that anyone can do it, but I find my barriers to start, why? It's a common question and I can answer it easily even if it sounds like an excuse. The traffic you can generate will be used to use your money for other purposes.

I have my Paypal account, and yes, I have access to the internet and a laptop that we use all at home hehe.

I will write to you privately to deepen your concerns. Thanks for taking the time to respond and interest.

What will happen is you will build a website, put products on it, and pay for advertising, and.....nothing.

You will keep spending money on ads with no little to no sales and you will wonder why.

Because that is what 99% of drop shippers are doing!

You have to stand out, be different, do things that the others aren't be the 1%.

Obsess over the details and you will progress.

Good luck!

What I want to know is how can I receive payments?

Also, do you have any tips related to dropshipping?

Thank you in advance

Accepting payments is tough without being able to verify your age. Its tough, can maybe a parent, sibling, cousin let you use theirs until you are of age?

My advice would be to master a skill until you turn 18, like SEO, and then monetize on it and execute heavy when you can accept payments etc..

Personally, I would advise you to get a job and stack up as much money as you can so you aren't wasting time like you said.

I mean if you aren't running some business online and are booked with your time, then you aren't using your time efficiently at home.

Go out grab a job and save some money that you can later invest.

In the mean time, keep learning and executing, start to build something that you can work on for the next few years and make it valuable.

I would say you could start a mini business-to-business agency, in google type something like "carpet cleaners in london", and go through all the google maps listing to see which one of those companies don't have a website or have a really crappy one. Send them a cold email or cold call, and offer to build them one at a "50%" discount if they refer you to another business owner they know.

Then if they agree, use weebly/squarespace/wix/wordpress/ whatever really to build them a good looking website really easily.

Do it for like £150, and keep repeating, even though its a one time job, you will now have a contact with that business owner and you can upsell them other services when you get established.

Like: "Hey Bob, I remodeled your website about 8 months ago, and I noticed your ranking is bad when you search up "carpet cleaners in london", this is very critical this day and age, because your potential traffic is going down the drain. Its kind of like having a store without any signs and blocking the windows. People need to see your business and you are losing tons of customers. Let me work with you on a monthly basis to improve your ranking and get you more leads." .

You get the point. Haha hope I helped.
Good luck!

If you don't wanna go this route, I say LEARN SEO! BECOME A MASTER. This is such a valuable skill to have, it will allow you to charge people good money to help their websites rank. It may take time but it will be worth it.

Also, you're young and have a lot of time, LEARN EXCEL. This is so valuable to know in business, and also you can again charge people on fiverr to help them organize their data and earn good cash on the side.

As a 17 year old, you have so much time man, learn as much as you can but learn whats important.

This is not a big problem, it is a HUGE problem.

Looking for easy ways to make money is like looking for a Lamborghini to buy thats under $10k
Sure you may find one, but it might be missing an engine and all the tires.

Think of it this way, the harder something is the more value it will bring, the bigger the problem you solve, the more money people will be willing to pay you. The reason lawyers and doctors make so much money is because they either:

1. save your ass from jail
2. save your ass from death.

You probably understand what I'm saying here.

I mean, I'm no millionaire yet, but in my opinion, the best business model that will get you there is constantly creative passive income thats scalable, and not trading your time for a fixed amount of $ (i.e a paycheck).

Good luck.

That's not a lot of info for me to work with, but I would tell you to build. Build something you can keep making more and more valuable.

2-3 hours per day is like 60-90 hours per month. Even if you worked a semi-crappy job to get 10$ per hour that's still close to $1000 for 2-3 hrs per day.

So don't think you don't have enough time, because you do.

I feel like you (and many other's) first problem is that you are looking at Hackforums for ways to earn a living.

All you will get here is talks about CPA, PPD, surveys, e-whoring etc... These are such crappy 'methods' that aren't even business models.

Forget everything you have learned and actually hit up google/youtube.

Take your time to learn about real business models like Affiliate Marketing, Facebook Ads Services etc...

Learn a skill, like SEO, become masterful at it, and use it to its full capacity.

If you really think relying on 1000 link clicks to make $3 will scale to become something, you're lying to yourself.

Good luck my friend.

First of all, sorry to break it to you, but you can't invest in anything with $50.

What you should focus on is turning that $50 into $1000 and starting a business you can scale up. (which is completely possible!)

Read through my replies on this thread to get some ideas, there's plenty, and go execute. Flip that $50 to $1k and then start doing.

Thanks bro i appreciate your concern. yes kind of looking for a method here but i think if it was CPA it's still good because i see people making 5 or 6 figures from it so yes i want to learn affiliate and cpa but even if i search on internet nobody will really teach us everything they will hide their tricks so it's better if i get someone to teach me personally. i see in your previous reply to someone you told him he can build a business with $1k and i already have $3k maybe you can suggest something for me, you also said he can find a crappy job for $10 per hour i want to know if you meant online or offline job because $10 per hour is really good for me, in my country $1k = 18k which means it's more which means $1k is more than enough for me monthly.

There's also Youtubers that make tens of thousands per month but that doesn't mean you can do the same.

TRY CPA yourself, if you can't make any type of money, then realize its not for you. But also do a lot of research before trying, know all the little tips and tricks before doing it.

I wonder where to promote it. (I don't have many followers on social media)

Any suggestions?

It's not about promoting it off Fiverr, its conquering Fiverr itself.

1. REALLY audit the market. see how many results pop up for your service, see the average price, the value offered in each basic/standard/pro pack on each listing, then add MORE value for the same price etc..

You have to know your competitors before being able to beat them.

2. People need to find you. KEYWORDS are king! If you are selling a voice over gig, type "voice" in the search bar on fiverr, and you'll see the recommended searches come up like "voice over" "voice actor", "female voice over", "male voice over" etc...

Make sure to include these in your gig listing description, title etc.. A nice hack is to even make your username like "VoiceOverBob" and you'll come up even more.

3. Value: if you have a great service people will come, word of mouth and referrals are king.

Think of it this way, if I posted a gig right now offering 100 custom white-board animation videos (2 mins long each) for $5, it doesn't matter that I'll be buried in a sea of whiteboard animation gigs, all it takes it 1 person to find me. They will be shocked at the insane value I provide and tell a friend. "Bro this guy on fiverr has insanely cheap _____, wtf" and thats all it will take. He will tell another friend and that friend will tell another etc... It's all about value and quality of work.

4. Create more than one gig, they're free! Even if its the same service, put a twist on it and change it a bit, the more gigs you have out there the more chance of getting sales, but don't be spammy.

5. OPTIMIZE LISTING IMAGES AND TITLE: This is literally the first two things everyone looks at, especially the main image. Include your value in the main image, use neat text but keep it to a minimum, be visual and clean.

Good luck man.

So you have to audit your self, you have no money and a lot of time. This isn't a bad thing. Time is valuable.

There are many things you could venture into, but its hard to advise you when I don't know what you are already good at.

A VERY valuable thing you could do is for the next few months, watch as many videos, free courses etc.. on SEO and become a master at it.

Then you can begin your own SEO consulting business and also do Fiverr gigs etc.. SEO is so valued and underrated.

Sure, this is a good route. You could start with Amazon's affiliate program.

Set up a bunch of youtube videos/blogs etc.. and creatively drop your affiliate links into your content.

You'll keep learning and branching out once you start, like with anything. So go do it!

Good luck!

I LOVE THIS QUESTION!

1. SEO! - This is such a valuable and underrated skill to have, I mean think about it, this is the only thing standing in the way of being able to place whatever you want in front of thousands of people of whatever specific audience you want, for FREE! Learning how to work Google's search engine, which literally everyone uses to look up....everything, is valuable beyond belief. I would learn this if I had the time.

2. The second would be Excel, it would more be for personal use, I feel that if I was masterful at Excel, I would be so organized in my business and personal things that it would boost my productivity significantly.

Thanks for asking this.

I sort of peeked at your post history to see what you were into, and my advice is don't waste your time with these "FREE METHOD [$1000/day] AUTOPILOT" B.S posts on HF.
Most of them are either CPA links they hope to make a few bucks off, and the rest have allterior motives.

That's great you want to go legit, I recommend it 100000%. You can't build a business e-whoring, its more like a job.

If you've succeeded in e-whoring, it means you have good communication skills if you can finesse weirdos into sending a stranger money.

So I say lets start with Sales. I think you would do well with B2B sales, we just have to figure out what service to sell.

Start with yourself, your environment and your resources.

I wish I knew which country you were in, but if I were to go back to 17 years old, and I had $300 saved up, and I am living in the USA with lots of free time, this is what I would do.

1. Have a time-for-money method where I can earn reliable income in exchange for my time, to invest in online business.

For example pick up a part time job somewhere, or Pick up the eBay app, and drive around to discounted retail stores to flip items on ebay or even amazon. I would do this as much as I can to save up $$.

2. Begin building a business with long-term potential: This one takes patience but is the real valuable asset.

I would probably start small and offer a service to bars, restaurants, hotels etc... where I would manage their customer review side of things. Like replying on yelp to every feedback, or on their facebook page etc... This takes no time, money or tools, so I would promise them more reviews, and more satisfied customers which will help their brand. I would convince them I am a hungry-driven 17 year old and be willing to do this for them at $99 per month. I would try and scale this, but building relationships with managers and owners of businesses will help later, which is why I am doing this. As time progressed and I saved up more money, I would begin upselling my current happy customers different services like, website optimization, or maybe graphics work (new logo, flyers...) which i would outsource to people on Fiverr of course.

I have to get back to work but you get my point.

Good luck!

Not being rude at all, just observative, but judging from your grammar I'm assuming you are not located in the US/Canada/UK, so I'm not sure what resources you have access to, but $5-$10 is very doable, if this is your goal, I 100% reccomend you check out Fiverr, find a unique skill that is in demand like making Youtube Channel art or something and undercut your competitor's pricing, which it looks like you can afford to do if your goal is $5-$10 a day. Even one sale a day of your service can get you your goal.

Good luck!

a) You got views on a partnered account and didn't monetize your video?

b) You got views on your monetized video but didn't reach the $100 payment threshold?

c) You just didn't get close to enough views to matter

A word of advice, if its not legal or against a company's terms of service/policy, don't do it.

I've never had an account from YT get removed. There is money to be made there, but you can't be blackhat in the real world.

Also, don't look for "methods", especially like most of the ones advertised here on HF, blackhat + money making dont mix in the long term. Look for something real, that can last, and you can build.

I can't give you advice until you learn to think differently about making money.

If me and you found a marijuana plantation in the wild, you would probably grab as much as you can hold and run off to sell it on the street, I would make an LLC, and try to figure out how to legally supply existing dispensaries in States that have it legalized.

(Stupid example, I know) but you get the idea. You have to change your way of thinking.

I'm not gunna kick some happy-go-lucky sh*t at you and tell you that you are "amazing, not worthless!"

But really though, change that attitude bro, you are capable of SO much, as we all are, you have no idea yet because you haven't found that opportunity for you to kick ass, maybe because you don't know where or how to look for it.

Google "businesses I can start from home", read up for an hour, get ideas, and you will keep going deeper and deeper in the rabbit hole, then maybe go to reddit's entrepreneur section and keep going deeper, you will find something that sparks your interest. Trust me.

Get off Youtube, netflix, PS4, whatever, until you find something to get you out of that funk.

Before I recommend anything, have you tried to sell your skills on Fiverr/PPH? Sites like those?

I know logos on fiverr are the most saturated market ever. But there is Peopleperhour, upwork, and many other approaches you can take to get customers.

also @ OP

Why do you need google accounts with local reviews done on them?

So you're in Hong Kong, Aliexpress flipping in CHINA, is just pointless, lol. Everyone there knows how cheap manufacturers create products for. So forget it.

If you don't have a laptop, (not sure where youre posting from) this is a big issue, obviously, which you are aware of.

Do what you can to get a laptop, because without knowing the local language idk how you can get a job, unless...its an english teacher job? I know those are huge in China. Look into that.

You have many things working against you, I'm not really sure why you would put yourself in a country where you don't know the language and don't have enough money for a laptop...This one is tough.

(Feb 17, 2019 03:06 PM)MegaByter Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Start with yourself, your environment and your resources.

I wish I knew which country you were in, but if I were to go back to 17 years old, and I had $300 saved up, and I am living in the USA with lots of free time, this is what I would do.

1. Have a time-for-money method where I can earn reliable income in exchange for my time, to invest in online business.

For example pick up a part time job somewhere, or Pick up the eBay app, and drive around to discounted retail stores to flip items on ebay or even amazon. I would do this as much as I can to save up $$.

2. Begin building a business with long-term potential: This one takes patience but is the real valuable asset.

I would probably start small and offer a service to bars, restaurants, hotels etc... where I would manage their customer review side of things. Like replying on yelp to every feedback, or on their facebook page etc... This takes no time, money or tools, so I would promise them more reviews, and more satisfied customers which will help their brand. I would convince them I am a hungry-driven 17 year old and be willing to do this for them at $99 per month. I would try and scale this, but building relationships with managers and owners of businesses will help later, which is why I am doing this. As time progressed and I saved up more money, I would begin upselling my current happy customers different services like, website optimization, or maybe graphics work (new logo, flyers...) which i would outsource to people on Fiverr of course.

I have to get back to work but you get my point.

Good luck!

How would you go about contacting bars, restaurants, hotels etc?

Problem with english teacher job is that they want a person who lived in the west for a few years most of time or with a degree at least. Most bosses here have mentality of you should be happy i gave you a job.

Edit: I do have computer but its in living room of my house and i live with parents. Its very annoying. Its old and slow too, when i use computer parents start asking me to do something on computer for them, like play a movie or something for them or check news for them.

Hi MegaByter!

First off, i think its pretty inspiring by you to take the time to answer all these comments!:))

I live in Denmark and work a full time job in my gab year. i work as a waiter, so i usually have a lot of freetime before i have to work. Im willing to invest a couple hundred bucks.

i really want to find something i can invest my money and be passionate about. In the past, i used to sell Instagram services, but i found it hard to promote anywhere(did on ebay for a while but got taken down, so i used facebook but feel wierd as i post from my personal account). I think my problem is im not very confident when its about money. I treat money with care because i dont want them to go to waste(I know you have to invest to make money most of the time). Thats why i didnt even get a website for selling IG services, i just did it manually :P

I know you are not a "money method machine", and its not what im asking, but its nice to get some directions from someone who is in the game:)

Great day to everyone

I say expand on your previous venture and continue with social media services. Just make it a bit more official and add more services. You can market the services on your own website using SEO, on forums like these, Make a youtube video that people wanting these services would search up and link your website etc.. in description. Just create a bunch of funnels like this.

I'm not sure why you are referencing BOTs and Botnets, what does that have to do with Youtube? You can pursue youtube if you are creative, unique content, and consistent. Your content has to really have value on Youtube for you to succeed.

And what exploit?

Advice: stop looking at "hacker" related money making ideas, they are a dead end.

Have you tried a blog about something you are VERY passionate about? When you don't know where to start, this is a great thing to keep yourself busy. Also, look into amazon affiliate program for your blog, or just in general.

Affiliate marketing is also something you can look into in general. Look up ClickBank. People post their digital products for people to sell for a commission split.

1. Go out and make some cash to invest with. Grind, hustle, work, whatever it takes, it isn't hard, I promise.
2. Don't think outside the box, think between the lines. You don't have to invent a new app, you can make money with existing markets, the new security cameras coming out are so cheap/inexpensive, you can start a company where you set up security cameras for $400 per house. Buy 4 cameras for $20 each, and do the rest yourself or hire someone to do it for you.
3. Organize your day. Manage your time wisely.

Honestly my biggest hurdles are:

1. I don't have much cash to go investing large amounts anywhere.
2. I've wasted a lot of time just working and paying for bills and materialistic things that hasn't gotten me anywhere really.
3. I know a little bit about a lot, I can go into multiple fields and not just be a complete noob but actually learn pretty quickly on hand. I'd rather put my computer knowledge to use and start learning more in web development or something else but every book or video I turn to doesn't help me learn. I end up nodding off or putting it down after a couple of pages because I end up with so many unanswered questions.

Focus on whats already working.
Figure out how you can scale what is currently making you money.

Outsource work that is time consuming so that you can focus on scaling. Double down on whats already working! No need to look for other methods.

Luckily for you, we have the internet. I guarantee there are things you can do for income that you didn't even know.

Go to Fiverr and browse ALL categories. See what services and gigs people are offering, guarantee that you will find something that you can do or just resell.

If you're really out of ideas and are willing to learn something, go to animaker, its an awesome software that lets you build animated videos pretty easily, learn the ins and outs of this software and charge people for animated vids, I would pay for this service, a lot would.

Man with 10k, and a good internet connection, there's tons of opportunity.
You are right, it can just get overwhelming because there is so many options.

Fear of failure is a real thing, nothing to be ashamed about cause a lot of people have that way of thinking, even I at times. Unfortunately, failure will creep up on you no matter what. What matters is if your going to pick yourself back up and stand on your own 2 feet and try again. But fuck all that Being scared shit, the only way for you to get better is to be more of a risktaker and be proud that you took a chance and still failed because even winners lose and losers win. Overcoming that fear is what separates boys from men.

But fuck all that Being scared shit, the only way for you to get better is to be more of a risktaker and be proud that you took a chance and still failed because even winners lose and losers win. I'm way to pussy to drop cash on these $30-$80 methods on HF showing you how to make hundreds a day. Just sick and tired of hearing the same shit about dropshipping, cpa, and shit like that. I have no problem working for my money, just want to do something from home and be my own boss. I can invest $100.00, also located in SoCal.

rcurran92 - June 20, 2019, 5:15 pm

I honestly do not know where to start... I would love to do something that can be run on the side of my day job. I make decent money for anywhere else in the US, but in NJ its as if I live in San Francisco. I want something supplemental but I have no idea where I should be focusing the little time that I have.

Any advice would be greatly appreciated.

I can find money to invest but I can't afford to be wrong.

Don't mind putting in hard work at all. Looking for a way to make money from home.

Hoping to scale it to the point I can stay home with my family.

Any tips are appreciated. Leaning toward e-whoring on twitter or snap. Did PPD once upon a time during the fileice days.

I don't care if it's 3 different methods at the same time. Just looking for help ?

I'm in a great space now, and want to help where I can. I'm not selling anything or asking anything from you guys.

Let me know what your biggest hurdles are, mine years ago were:

1. I didn't have much cash to invest.
2. I didn't have a bank or credit card as a 17 year old.
3. I didn't know where to start.

Comment, and I'll reply with the best advice that I can. ?

My job is based off a degree qualification so I can always go back and find work in the future but I'd love to let it go and find something else that makes more money ($2.5k a month).

I just have no idea where to start

If you have a stable income, then that means someone has validated your skill(s).

Take the skills you have which allow you to earn an income, and use them online.

Whether its freelancing, or perhaps making an agency where you delegate work to other freelancers.

Or maybe teach others the exact skills we speak of. And get paid for it.

Bring home around $8000 a month but trying to work a bit less

You're bringing him $8000 a month?

Invest, invest, invest. Put some of that into tech stocks and recession proof stocks. (Mcdonalds, Netflix, Apple, Amazon...) Hard to go wrong there.

There's no shortcuts. May I ask what you do?

(Jun 12, 2019 04:28 PM)A + Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I could get a job and be making a solid $10-$15 per hour which I would like to do as well.

Online marketing doesn't seem worth the hassle. I've probably made 5k over the last few years, but we all know that you can't live off of 5k in a couple of years.

I usually go for affiliate marketing. I get how it all works, but it's a little too tedious for little results.

How can I make a living doing this stuff, because I'm in a little bit of a bad spot. I run a Twitter with over 1k likes, work social media to pieces. Just no results to really speak of. What should I do? What did you do? Definitely open to new ideas.

This may be hard to hear, but it sounds like you need to break your way of thinking and reconstruct it.

Kind of like a broken bone that hasn't grown in right.

At the end of the day, you can't go wrong by:

1. learning a valuable skill (PPC Advertising, video effects etc...)
2. working on that skill for the next 2 years.
3. document and put out content while you learn. (this will become your portfolio)
4. Watch your opportunities grow.

-Generally bad money making skills lmao

Making money online is the same as making money off-line.

Become great at a valuable skill, create active and or passive income with it.

Compound your income using this skill until you are amazing at it.

Then hire others to do it while you become the beacon of finding jobs.

After this there are tons of way to monetize.

The bigger the service you provide for society, the more you get paid.
