Thread: Advice you would give to yourself when you were 14-16?

LuvXo72 - April 28, 2018, 10:50 pm

What sort of advice would you have given to your 14-16 year old self? For me it was nothing because in my opinion life has honestly guided me in the perfect direction but I know some people are different and i'm curious.

Enzio - April 28, 2018, 10:50 pm

Invest in BTC and cash out once it reaches 20k.

Caliban - April 28, 2018, 10:53 pm

Buy BTC you faggot and stop the video games

LuvXo72 - April 28, 2018, 10:53 pm

Ok I meant life advice not BTC inb4 everyone says the same thing

N?ght - April 28, 2018, 10:54 pm

once you make over 20k$ dont gamble it you fucking twat

Deany - April 28, 2018, 10:54 pm

There is no advice to give myself. I was already DOOMED.

Wake - April 28, 2018, 10:55 pm

Don't gamble or spend all your money on takeaways.

Brill - April 28, 2018, 10:58 pm

i would tell myself to stay in school so i didn't have to do it afterwards. not really regretting my decision now though

Bluffer - April 28, 2018, 11:00 pm

Depends when in the year that I was 2014.

It would either be "Stay in regular school" or "Go back to regular school".

I was depressed about it for awhile but got over it, I feel like I'm a few years ahead on the people I went to school with who are still trying to make it as 19/20 year olds and selling their shit in fb groups for $10, $20 and I've been making money online since I was like 17.

Hmm, maybe I could advise myself to carefully think of what college course should I take in the future because I'm finding a hard time on my course rn because medical course is not my forte.

Almonds - April 28, 2018, 11:13 pm

I would tell myself to stay on hack forums instead of wasting my time on growing up and experimenting.

ToXiiC - April 28, 2018, 11:16 pm

When I was 14 it was like $2 for 1 BTC. I would have told myself to not give a shit about any other attempts at success and throw every $2 you get into BTC like a fiend buying crack.

Armada - April 28, 2018, 11:18 pm

Any advice I'd have for my 16 year old self, I would not listen to.

Like if I told me 16 year old self I'd join the military one day, I'd tell my older self to fuck right off... lol no joke.

La Vida Loca - April 28, 2018, 11:20 pm

Keep going no matter what , don't let depression consume your emotions and affect your learning ability.

Life's been tough for me back then. But earning money online is what keeps me happy and stay alive. I feel grateful for that.

I'd tell my 14-16 year old self that prostitution would make me far more money than the shitty jobs I had at that time. Like, far more.

ZeroOne - April 29, 2018, 2:43 am

I would probably tell my 14-16 year old self to stick to one major going through bachelor's instead of switching it 4 times.

I would also advice my 14-16 year old self to invest in Bitcoin. I think Bitcoin started 10 years ago, in 2008, when I turned 14.

I would definitely make myself start training in the gym by the age of 15. I was very skinny back then and I didn't go to gym because I believed in the myth that bodybuilding stunts your growth, when all along it actually did quite the opposite because it helps with testosterone and growth hormone. Either way I'm happy I started 4 years ago.

Definitely do my homework, get good grades and try to get a degree by age 21.

for me it'd be that i'd say to my self not to start drinkin until i'd be at least 18 years old because i started when i was 13, looking back on it it was a stupid mistake.
