Thread: Just Brought A Rolex With Gift cards On Amazon XD

let it rain - April 29, 2018, 2:38 pm

Just to keep this short I sold a lot of my bitcoin, Ethereum, and Litecoin. In exchange for Amazon gift cards, some may wonder why i preferred amazon gift cards; this is because a lot of my purchases are made on Amazon on a daily basis.

Also, this is Rolex I purchased:

The moment when I could have got it for you cheaper :)

i know the conversion rate is tempting but amazon isn't good anymore like it used to be maybe with prime but stuff like that there's better prices and shit. i prefer ebay over amazon now because everything is cheaper and the shipping is almost always free without prime. still if you get amazon gc for like 70% the face value then its probably good

"There are no customer reviews yet."

Hate to say it but you probably got scammed.

How have I got scammed I brought off of Rolex??? ...

FamousHater - April 29, 2018, 3:22 pm

looks fake op

gg to u

look around next time

gring0 - April 29, 2018, 3:22 pm

Pretty nice lol. When most people think of rolexes they think about a $50,000 watch

GlobalX - May 2, 2018, 4:54 am

It can't be fake nice job man test - May 2, 2018, 4:57 am

I would have just bought one that looked identical from Bali or China for $20.

GlobalX - May 3, 2018, 5:06 am

Read PM i just sent you bro!!!

Siciliano - May 3, 2018, 5:09 am

Looks sweet, but I also think this is fake mate, do not purchase so expensive stuff from amazon.

My aunt bought a fake Rolex and it still cost her like £1.2k lmao, she's pretty wealthy too so for her to buy a fake it must've been a pretty expensive one

A $20 replica watch won't look anywhere near as good as the real thing, and the movement would be shit. Cyclops window would also be horrible I imagine, probably no magnification at all.

Very very very nice watch, although you could probably have gotten it at least 10% cheaper..

But if you're happy with the cop and satisfied with the watch, I'm glad on your behalf. Hands down for your exchanging skills :)
