

Forum: Hack Forums

Thread: Is this legitimate?

Tyler Durden. - May 2, 2018, 6:34 am

Hello,

So recently I sold something on eBay, and the buyer asked me through eBay messaging if he could send the payment directly through PayPal.

I said yes, but I haven't sent him the product yet due to this.

This payment just looks different, and is in fact a bill, which is not something I am familiar with on Paypal.

I was afraid it was some kind of trick or something, because the 60$ doesn't show in my balance.

From Paypal Homepage:

Spoiler (Click to View) [img]i.imgur.com/yHUHYal.png[/img]

The bill it self:

Spoiler (Click to View) [img]i.imgur.com/r7Z2Y0t.jpg[/img]

[img]i.imgur.com/r7Z2Y0t.jpg[/img]

Do you think its a valid payment or what?

Deutsche Bank - May 2, 2018, 6:45 am

Invoice scam.

do not ship the items until the amount shows up in your paypal balance, and you have a payment notification email from the correct paypal address - check the domain is correct and not a fraudulent one.

good luck with your business

2SLickZ - May 2, 2018, 6:46 am

Never deal offsite when you're the seller using eBay.

The buyer always win if you do that, don't be stupid.

gianni - May 2, 2018, 6:56 am

Maybe you should learn what an invoice is and then you will find out the answer to your question.

THE RULER - May 2, 2018, 6:58 am

Report him to ebay as well, fucker will be banned.