Thread: Deleting Facebook messages permanently both sides

qqhf - May 3, 2018, 2:23 pm

There is a method that I don't know how to activate, maybe some one does on here.

You can lock out a Facebook account and freeze all its messages.

It gives you an error similar to "This message has been temporarily removed because the sender's account requires verification"

If you dont verify the messages within a certain timeframe, Facebook permanently deletes the account and ALL the messages

Anyone have a clue?

Might be in the Security settings? Not sure if I've ever heard of such a feature on Facebook.

pms - May 4, 2018, 3:32 am have not seen this before, you sure that he didnt just block you?

Don't think this is possible, I've seen accounts go dead and the messages remained "From a Facebook User". Not sure what happened here, possibly flagged for spam.

He might just blocked i think....

That hasn't been a thing for about a year now? It's no longer "Facebook User" if they're blocked, their name is bold black, unclickable in messages.

Now his profile is completely erased off the face of the Earth.

Trust me I assure you it's nothing to do with being blocked

Maybe the guy you're talking about is dead? Facebook wanted his death certificate to make sure? Once they got it they closed account?

pejvol - May 6, 2018, 4:56 am i haven't seen this before but i would like to learn that thing it's quite useful

SysAdmin - May 6, 2018, 5:03 am

That happens when someone reports the Facebook profile as a "Fake Profile", I believe. I'm guessing this is to prevent spam and has nothing to do with any other methods. It's simply done to prevent people from having alternate, fake profiles about.

It is easily solved by confirming your identity.

Then bang he never confirmed his identity and Facebook doesn't like storing Fake profiles so they erase everything completely

This has happened to me with my facebook accounts, It happened because you need to verify your account but until then it's locked and the messages turn like that, not sure if the same thing is happening here but just saying.

That's what I said in my reply? You just re-worded it, lol.

The method I'm sure would work, is to just report that account as spam, using VPNs/proxies and multiple accounts. I'm sure it wouldn't be too hard to make a thing that does it for you?

luv. - May 6, 2018, 8:59 pm

Brother I don't think Facebook perm deletes any messages from their side at least

Still wouldn't delete their messages permanently, as this is a very noisy attack. Solved by confirming their identity aswell.

Unless they're innactive on Facebook.

Vyxn - May 7, 2018, 9:10 am

I don't think there's an option with that features. I just checked my messenger and I found nothing.

qqhf - May 7, 2018, 10:17 am

I'd appreciate it if people could stop commenting that it's not possible.

Here's more proof that it is possible. This is his account after a while.
