Thread: Discord: Why its shit and why to avoid it.

ARIANA - May 5, 2018, 10:03 am

I had a Discord account with a year of nitro prepaid. I was a semi-partner (they sent me shirts and shit) and a member of the hypesquad and bug hunters. So yeah, I was pretty helpful to them.

My account was disabled. Which is what Discord will do when they perm ban you. Proof:

Why was my account disabled? Well... heres where the fun starts...

The reason I was given originally was this:

Now... Yes I was a member of several NSFW servers and no, none of them were related to content involving minors. I have been informed by members of a server that ONE user posted cheese pizza and then reported the server on a different account, this resulted in the whole server being deleted by Discord staff and all members being banned despite the fact that only one person broke their ToS.

Now lets delve more into their ToS. Absolutely no where does their ToS state that being in a server where someone else breaks the rules make you liable for their actions. Yet according to their "Trust & Safety" team it does.

My response to their orginal email stating why I was banned:

I submitted a BBB complaint to the BBB for LA and SV. Which was reviewed by them and forwarded to Discord Inc.

I am still awaiting their response.

Now lets delve more into their Trust and Safety Team and their foolish actions.

I'm going to provide several links that show the complete idiocy of the Discord staff member "allthefoxes"

<https://www.reddit.com/r/discordapp/comm...h=4e093ff2> (bans a user for nothing and changes his story many times)

<https://www.reddit.com/r/discordapp/comm...h=ff7b3f7f> (bans a user for having an opinion about furies [allthefoxes is a gay furry])

<https://www.reddit.com/r/discordapp/comm...h=ce9fa1cf> (proof they ban whole servers based on 1 user report)

allthefoxes is the main member of their Trust and Safety Team. He is an LGBT Furry SJW. Perfect mindset for moderation of a major social platform!

Here I chatted with someone from the Discord staff team who then blocked me because he didn't want to deal with me:

allthefoxes avoiding me completely, he states to create a ticket:

Then when I do create a ticket he responds with this:

As you can see Discord is against free speech, lets their staff ban whoever they want even if they don't break the ToS and don't care about their users.

Can't wait until Omni adds XMPP so everyone will stop using their shit service.

I find this a Justified ban. If you have a discord community, its your communities responsibility to ensure non of that shit goes on.

Especially CP, if anyone can just join, thats on everyone whos in the server. I have numerous servers that i use daily, and it is heavily moderated.

You also have no case against them. You acc is against under their choices. Thats lying saying if i do something on HF and omni bans me but it wasnt against the rules i can sue him?

Participating in a community and not taking actions against is just as bad in MY op.

When it comes to CP you should do anything you can to get the person fucked even if it means feds. Its a communities responsibility to ensure its safe. Discords bans are justified, they banned the community for not taking direct actions against the user.

Did you even read the post? Someone joined the server, posted cp then reported the server on a dif acc. I wasn't even awake at the time of this happening...

Your failing to get the point of this thread.

Discord banned me for no reason. I was a member of a community and someone who didnt like the community posted cp then reported the community and we all got banned.

Being a member of a community where SOMEONE ELSE violated the terms of service does not make every member of the community liable for that ONE PERSONS actions.

Literally read the Discord terms of service before trying to justify their actions...

YOu should know whos in your community. Dont be in a community unless you know them. You're technically still in legal violation anyway for recieving CP. Thats like someone sending you CP and saying "Oh i was asleep" its still partaking in illegal activity thats disgusting. You should monitor your communities and not blame a single person. Its your entire servers fault for letting someone like that In. If someone did that in my servers youd be sure feds would be with them the same day.

as long as you keep it to yourself imo. But the thing I dont agree on is that you directly say Discord is shit and bad. You're basically saying that its shit because you get banned if childporn gets spread.

Also, Im sure there are not many people on here that are in servers dedicated to porn related stuff. Discord is great for gaming, communities friends etc.

You're point is pretty much invalid to me. If you rather use XMPP because you dont get banned when CP is being spread, your choice (Not saying I allow CP, I just cant do something about it as an individual) . But dont claim we are SJW's and their staff team are full retards.

My claim of them being SJWs is related to the reddit posts I linked where he banned a server because they disagreed with him.

I personally think you refuse to accept responsibility for your community. Discord's bans are justified, if you don't affiliate with disgusting people you have no problem at all. That's all on you, they give you a free platform, they give you everything you need. If you get banned blame yourself as you can't point a finger at anyone else. The majority of us use discord and never have a problem because we ensure that everything is moderated.

You're banned, you're banned, get over it and don't partake in communities like that. You are solely responsible for who you receive messages from.

The entire issue, which you're completely avoiding, is that the server you joined was solely dedicated to non-consensual pornography.

Sure, you didn't post the images, but you DID join a server which is dedicated to this type of stuff.

I don't know if this is the case or not, but you have failed to reply to the HIGHLIGHTED text stating that the server is solely dedicated to the disgusting genre of pornography. You either joined a server for this type of stuff and are purposefully trying to ignore that point, or else you're an idiot who didn't join it for those reasons, but is too stupid to address that point which is the exact reason that guy said he banned you for, yet you keep responding saying you didn't share the images which is NOT the reason.

Even then you'll be more then fine, depending on your actions. If you report it instantly and get law enforcement involved, you'll be fine. Now if you just let it slide and it happens again in the future, then you're in deep shit.

You are right though, it depends on the country. No country is perfect and no justice system will always be fair. For example the guy with the "nazi dog" in the UK. The fact that that case got so far is astonishing.

I understand how stupid this situation is and it's really unjustified in my opinion. I agree that their staff might be retarded.

But I still love how Discord works, how it can be used by developers and teams to develop projects and work on a different kind of stuff, just as they would on Slack, but everything comes free here. Sound and video quality are okay, and they are still working on it now and then.

People will still use it and it has killed Skype, TeamSpeak, and many others, mainly because of the possibility of having free servers.

First you threaten them with legal action if they dont give you what you want. Now you've gone to the better business bureau over something so silly.

Have you stopped to think the reason for your ban might not be because that person posted cheese pizza on the server but because of the other reason "posting non-consensual pornography".

Have you contacted anyone else who was on the same server as you to see if everyone was banned as you think?

Or did you indeed break that rule and are just bypassing when they've said that as the partial reason of your ban?

Now dont get me wrong its pathetic to ban you for something that another person did.

Now to my final point why the fuck does it matter what the staff members sexual orientation is? This is 2018.

I'm getting a gigantic headache from reading the replies to this thread. The stupidity of people saying it is the OPs fault. You guys actually think there is a 100% method to stop people from posting inappropriate content? With the logic I'm reading, if someone signed up on HF right now and quickly made a thread to post illegal porn, then Omni should be arrested.

"BecaUSE ITs yOUr JoB to pREvent ThiS". Are you serious? If he's offline and someone does this, what the hell is he suppose to do? People have lives, people need to sleep. Why do you guys think companies hire tons and tons of staff? So there is almost always someone available to help. But no, of course everyone wants to use the logic of "wELL hE pOStEd iT aND You FaiLEd To pREvent it, Its yOur ReSPOnsIBILITy."

Let's apply this logic to emails. People have access to email databases, FULL OF EMAILS. So if someone uses a database to mass email hundreds of people regarding an illegal hacking service, then I guess those hundreds of people should be punished for having the email come to them? "bECaUse tHeY sHOuLd Of pREvenTEd IT".

I don't bitch often on here but come on people this is just silly. I'm sorry you got screwed OP, ignore the clueless people blaming you.

(May 5, 2018 10:03 AM)ARIANA Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Notice to staff: Omni said it was ok for me to post this so please check with him before closing/deleting my thread, thanks.

I had a Discord account with a year of nitro prepaid. I was a semi-partner (they sent me shirts and shit) and a member of the hypesquad and bug hunters. So yeah, I was pretty helpful to them.

My account was disabled. Which is what Discord will do when they perm ban you. Proof:

Why was my account disabled? Well... heres where the fun starts...

The reason I was given originally was this:

Now... Yes I was a member of several NSFW servers and no, none of them were related to content involving minors. I have been informed by members of a server that ONE user posted cheese pizza and then reported the server on a different account, this resulted in the whole server being deleted by Discord staff and all members being banned despite the fact that only one person broke their ToS.

Now lets delve more into their ToS. Absolutely no where does their ToS state that being in a server where someone else breaks the rules make you liable for their actions. Yet according to their "Trust & Safety" team it does.

My response to their original email stating why I was banned:

I submitted a BBB complaint to the BBB for LA and SV. Which was reviewed by them and forwarded to Discord Inc.

I am still awaiting their response.

Now lets delve more into their Trust and Safety Team and their foolish actions.

I'm going to provide several links that show the complete idiocy of the Discord staff member "allthefoxes" https://www.reddit.com/r/discordapp/comments/8gc4y9/absolute_insanity_with_account_deletionsbanunbans/?st=jgtmnqvo&sh=4e093ff2 (bans a user for nothing and changes his story many times)

https://www.reddit.com/r/discordapp/comments/8h56c8/antifurry_group/?st=jgtmn6s6&sh=ff7b3f7f (bans a user for having an opinion about furies [allthefoxes is a gay furry])

https://www.reddit.com/r/discordapp/comments/8f6nst/i_reported_a_child_pornography_server_and_my/?st=jgtmq38j&sh=ce9fa1cf (proof they ban whole servers based on 1 user report) allthefoxes is the main member of their Trust and Safety Team. He is an LGBT Furry SJW. Perfect mindset for moderation of a major social platform!

Here I chatted with someone from the Discord staff team who then blocked me because he didn't want to deal with me:

allthefoxes avoiding me completely, he states to create a ticket:

Then when I do create a ticket he responds with this:

As you can see Discord is against free speech, lets their staff ban whoever they want even if they don't break the ToS and don't care about their users.

Can't wait until Omni adds XMPP so everyone will stop using their shit service.

I haven't read any of the 13 pages of replies, but based off your thread, I can see why you'd be pissed.

You were in a discord that distributed non-consent photos, but the fact everyone was banned for being in it is shit. However though, if in the name or the whole theme of the server suggests revenge porn or posting of photos that people may not have consented to have posted would mean you knowingly participated in being there and you knew what you were getting into (Whereas you could have reported the channel and left). If it wasn't themed around that, and it was simply sharing porn images and then someone slipped in some photos of their ex that they now hate, I don't believe that justifies banning everyone.

Not sure why some people are saying you're distributing CP, but it's weird they put CP and non-consent photos as the description when they're two different things.

Bill Gates - May 6, 2018, 12:53 am

Why not use porn hub or the infinite other porn sites at your finger tips instead? I don't get why there is a need to use discord to obtain porn, unless it's for a specific type of porn, that isn't easily obtainable by normal porn sites? What type of porn would that be?

CyberStrike - May 6, 2018, 1:27 am

It's a crap service this way or that way. They log, saw this in a law suit brought against a scambaiting server, and yes that particular server had some issues with a member going rogue and doing some stuff with CP, (not in their server) it was resolved with that dirtbag being arrested. but the community stepped up. You were a partner, that means that you had more of a duty to represent in a positive manner that service. Not everything is about being a admin/mod to prevent things or doing things, you can always talk/influence or use more forceful methods to get others to do what needs to be done, so that is a bad excuse just like being asleep.

Discord banning a channel for porn doesn't seem right though. What kind of pictures were being posted? If it was generic porn stars then I can't see why it was shut down but if it was of like actual girls (twitch streamers, youtubers etc.) then that's another story. All it takes is one idiot to mention the photo to said female and it gets linked back to your channel.

I'd say it was just non-consent photos (of people who were 18+) and not CP as nobody would advertise that shit otherwise. If it was posted constantly I can understand why they did it, but if it rarely happened then I don't believe it's fair. Cause if it was a server known to share non-consent photos then it'd be obvious to anyone joining that it's what the server is about and instead of reporting it you're just participating. Same would happen to a ban evader, if you knowingly know that they aren't allowed to be here and you don't report it, some admins ban both for simply knowing about it and not reporting it.

I know its only been a day but have you had any more responses from Discord that aren't in the main thread? Saying you'd come after them legally I'd not be surprised if they started getting defensive and not responding anymore.

But that shouldn't justify every single person getting banned. What I am trying to say is obviously one of the pictures got leaked and the person who it contained made a complaint or something. If that was the case I could see everyone who posted in that channel being punished. In the end it's only a Discord right? Just make another one.

Yes you got unfairly banned, but why participate in servers like that, there's other free pornography sites other then a discord server. I'm aware NSFW by no mean violates DISCORD's ToS. You got banned for being in servers that condone the use of CP. If you were a no-ranked in the server you most likely wouldn't of gotten banned if the server had more then 25-30 server members in it. I was partnered through DISCORD and I once never had a problem w/ the staff team. I think you are just blowing this entire thing up for no reason at all.

edit; if there is ever a court case in this, the court will favor DISCORD side for terminating and removing anyone involved with this. Just saying they'll use it in court too.

maelstrom.vortex - January 3, 2019, 2:34 pm

I know that it's many months later now...but this still feels worth stating:

I don't necessarily agree nor disagree that you should have had your account banned based on what you've said, but the way that you went about contacting discord officials and communicating with them is likely why you did not get the resolution you had hoped for.

Your email, for a start:

-The formatting itself (individual lines with single statements and a space between them), it absolutely awful. It physically pains me to look at that--not to mention read it.

-Each line in your email is entirely lowercase aside from the two references of Discord ToS, which makes you come off as though you don't care about the communication--you didn't even capitalize "I".

-Not to mention that you made a completely unfounded threat on top of that: "if my account is not unbanned i will be taking legal action"--legal action over what? because they banned you from using their service which they are completely free to do as they see fit? Or does this go to your claim that they are "against free speech", because the only real reasons a business would be held legally responsible for such a thing is if it is either a government/government-funded institution, or due to discrimination in such a way that violates one's natural or human rights...which freedom of speech is not one of.

Moving past the email:

Quote:He is an LGBT Furry SJW. Perfect mindset for moderation of a major social platform!

This remark of yours is entirely unnecessary. While I personally tend not to get along with people of such a description, there is nothing inherently wrong with identifying as those traits--certainly nothing wrong enough to prevent them from being able to do their job. And, quite honestly, I fail to see where that particular remark came from, though I'm a little off-topic now.

You said that you chatted with someone from discord staff team who then "blocked me because he didn't want to deal with me".

And, honestly, both screenshots that you sent of your conversations with Talon and allthefoxes, you come off as incredibly touchy and quick to judge. Not just that, but both of them were very polite to you, and very straight to the point; they just weren't engaging in conversation there...as they had already (multiple times) told you that they don't offer support via DM's.

Saying things like "I was banned for made up rules", "according to reddit history", "then how do you explain", and "if you can point out where [...] then my ban can remain" makes you seem really really toxic, pretentious, and entitled.

I moderate a lot of discord servers and I will tell you right now that nobody likes to be spoken to that way and really just makes you sound like an idiot.

Your upset and frustration with the happenings are no excuse for blatant disrespect towards the discord staff and complete disregard for genuine civility when speaking with them. There is an absurd amount of passive aggression in every single one of your responses, and even if you were not in the wrong to start I'm sure that after experiencing those interactions they determined that the platform is better off without you using it.

P.S:

Quote:I had a Discord account with a year of nitro prepaid. I was a semi-partner (they sent me shirts and shit) and a member of the hypesquad and bug hunters. So yeah, I was pretty helpful to them.

this just...agh I don't even have words "so yeah, I was pretty helpful to them" that's...absolute garbage. If you have an issue with having prepaid for Nitro, you can take a closer look at their policies surrounding that, and/or ask about that specifically to be refunded or something. Aside from that, though, it's just a social platform. There's plenty of them. There is absolutely no need to be so upset over it.
