Would you find HF more enjoyable if some forum game or interaction was involved?

I've had ideas to add various games/activities to HF which I would hope inspire members to be more involved and active.

Example concepts:

1. Crypto Market Exchange - Fake exchange for top portfolio each month with a winner who gets an award.
2. Monster Game - Anyone remember this? <https://hackforums.net/battle.php> It was a teaser page when Pokemon Go was huge for about 10 minutes. I still think having some type of monster pet game on-site could be enjoyable. Maybe a bit too childish though, I can't be sure.
3. Gambling - Obviously not for real money but I could add some point system here which would allow additional choices for point-based games. And actually I used to do this on HF about 8 years ago when we did run a points system.
4. Fake Hacking - I could write up pages and scripts and making hacking member profiles or other things part of a game/challenge on HF or even across the web.

Does any of this sound of interest to members? Now that we're moving forward pretty quickly through projects I'd like to get more feedback on some of these concepts.

Mac - May 5, 2018, 3:01 pm

1 and 3 seem like they'd be good additions. A lot of people are interested in cryptos, so one I think would have the most interest and engagement.

Punisher - May 5, 2018, 3:03 pm

I think it would get a lot of people involved, it's a great idea

I love the last idea, a "hacker vs hacker" type of game

Tesla - May 5, 2018, 3:03 pm

I don't know if this would be possible but if you could setup an in game point system you were talking about and we could play blackjack and poker live against another. Again I have no clue if this is even possible at all but that would be awesome

Eccy - May 5, 2018, 3:04 pm

I love the sound of the first and third, I'd love to see those added.

Biggy - May 5, 2018, 3:05 pm

I'm diggin' the idea of gambling for some HF points. It would be a good idea to spark some activity.

Points can be obtained by posting/creating a thread/etc, then can be gambled and later redeemed for prizes. Like maybe an award, or some other HF incentives. All sounds like fun to me.

Eccy - May 5, 2018, 3:07 pm

Yeah that sounds good, purchase things like username changes if you aren't upgraded, or purchase an upgrade (obviously a lot of points needed).

Omise - May 5, 2018, 3:08 pm

On site gambling would be great, especially if the points had some sort of value on-site. Community funded jackpots and contests have been on my mind lately, but I saw that gambling on HF was against the rules - but if done with a point system it could be just as fun.

Points could be obtained via posting, reaching milestones, and account upgrades.

Ya that would be dope to redeem them in for awards and such

Ace of Spades? This seems perfect for it

Frankey - May 5, 2018, 3:10 pm

1 and 3 sounds nice to me. I think they will fit amazingly with the audience on HF. I am not sure about number 4 since most people that I know on HF are not really into hacking/coding but if it would be from extremely easy to hard I guess it can work too. I don't really have an opinion on option 2 since I am not sure what the idea is behind a monster game.

It's really nice to see that new features/things are being added to HF! I hope it'll be awesome.

Zexi - May 5, 2018, 3:11 pm

1 and 3 are sick ideas. Allot of people into crypto and gambling on HF.

Eccy - May 5, 2018, 3:15 pm

Yep or maybe extra PM inbox space or a certain color in your name etc. Well we don't even know if this is going to be added. So let's stop with thinking of rewards ;D

Nate57 - May 5, 2018, 3:20 pm

i think the only suggestions you made which makes fun is the gambling part, rest is kinda lame.

Saltpeter - May 5, 2018, 3:22 pm

The idea of gambling worthless hack points in a few simple games is pretty appealing to me. We would just need something to work towards with those points. The Ace of Spades award possibly?

Crystallize. - May 5, 2018, 3:28 pm

All of them are great so any would do it.

Maybe make a contest every month for most winning "gambler" and winner gets ace of spades award.

Bluffer - May 5, 2018, 3:29 pm

I would love any form of gambling. Because gambling... is great.

Pronouncer - May 5, 2018, 3:33 pm

3 is a good idea, but i dont like the others. Good luck tho

webdev77 - May 5, 2018, 3:34 pm

I'd personally be most interested in numbers 1 and 4.

Prepper - May 5, 2018, 3:51 pm

I think 2 and 4 are something to consider for sure and although since this is technically a general/multi purpose forum with the way it is currently used not sure about in its past days but with the name still being hackforums it wouldn't hurt to add the fake hacking option either.

Either way in my personal opinion hackforums falls under the general/multi purpose forum and for its future it needs to expand into other things as well so adding games, points and gambling just creates a more user friendly and more fun platform for people to enjoy.

But I do like as one user suggested a game point system, maybe add a point system that can be integrated into multiple things as well

pms - May 5, 2018, 3:52 pm

the 4th suggestion sounds very good actually.

Vanderbilt - May 5, 2018, 4:12 pm

I like 1,3,4 but you are right on the childish sense on 2

luke - May 5, 2018, 4:23 pm

I'd be interested in 2 and 3, they definitely sound fun.

Not quite sure about 4, would only appeal to a small % of the userbase.

Omise - May 5, 2018, 4:30 pm

Three is a great idea, and I would like to add onto it.

Points earned from gambling can also be used in community created contests. For example, I would be able to create a thread asking members to submit their best insult towards me. Each reply would require the user to buy-in to the thread and fund the prize pool with imaginary hacker points. The winner will be chosen via community voting, ideally something like the pole system we already have. The prize pool can then be distributed in percentages to first, second, and third place.

I think that idea could be expanded upon and lead to a lot of fun threads on HF.

TB12 - May 5, 2018, 4:31 pm

1 and 3 sound good since any member in general would be able to do it :)

CYB3RM4N - May 5, 2018, 4:39 pm

I'd be interested in all of the games suggested!

The incentive of receiving an award for being at the top of the leader board at the end of the month is appealing.

TheWHO? - May 5, 2018, 4:43 pm

I would personally play all these games, and I agree it will cause more activity.

Evanescence - May 5, 2018, 4:55 pm

Definitely would like to see 1 getting implemented.

Others are not my cup of tea.

Lavish Living - May 5, 2018, 4:58 pm

Gambling please, player vs player Poker would make me livid plz Omni

BlazinBlunts - May 5, 2018, 5:06 pm

I would play the shit out of 1, 3 and 4.

Elitas - May 5, 2018, 6:02 pm

Hacking member's profiles sounds really fun! You could have a way of members to code their own profiles in order to defend them, and if they're hacked, the hacker can post a comment on their 'hacked page', or something like this.

Seems a bit crazy, but something along those lines would be cool.

Some sort of a shooting game, text-based on the forum could be cool too, pretty simple to make that kind of thing.

Cammy - May 5, 2018, 6:13 pm

I don't like the gambling ideas, I think combining 2 and 4 would be the best to do since it has to do with hacking & technology in general and also encourages that kind of activity more on the forum instead of all this points based stuff

That's just my 2 cents though

Punisher - May 5, 2018, 6:16 pm

EXACTLY what I was picturing in my head. Spot on. I want this.

We definitely have similar ways of thinking Elitas haha

Angel - May 5, 2018, 6:16 pm

Good ideas, but the points system you suggested for the gambling game is not that good IMO, I have seen many forums with this features and I think it useless.

It will be great if you can buy awards that meant for the system like new awards, but then the value of the awards will drop IMO.

Thanks for the update boss ?

FamousHater - May 5, 2018, 6:18 pm

just do #3 and scrap the rest.

Pre-eminent - May 5, 2018, 6:18 pm

1 and 3 would be cool to see on this website. I really like the idea of gambling with forum points, and it would be cool if we had a marketplace for the forum points as well.

Raptor. - May 5, 2018, 6:27 pm

I know fuck all about hacking but feel that a hacker oriented addition would be a neat addition as far as drawing external interest. The crypto market exchange also sounds cool. The points gambling thing is usually pointless on other forums I've found, and I agree with the pet battle being childish.

SIM-2763166 - May 5, 2018, 6:27 pm

I'd suggest adding gamification to keep the interest on the forum.

Currency

Things like an HF currency, to buy additional features on-site. For example: awards,

Reactions

Like and dislike HF posts & threads. Not a star-based system that doesn't really bring much attention

There are many, many more things you could add to gamify the HF experience, bring in more users and keep your current users more interested.

Read these articles and studies, for more examples:

Omniscient - May 5, 2018, 6:40 pm

@Alanox great post and good links but things I already know. What I haven't done is actually implement gamification onto HF in many years. We've mainly focused on Marketplace activity but I think it's time we alter the landscape here and move focus toward some gaming activity. I have other ideas too and I may work incorporate a few of them.

Right now the project list is moving forward very well. We have at least 2-3 more major items on the list and we can begin something really fresh here. The server move coming soon will give me more resources and options to power-up the site a bit and not care as much about how MySQL is going to choke.

Yes yes! I really like the first idea of the Crypto Market Exchange. ? ?

I think that if something was given at the end, more users will come and play since they would like to earn something out of it ?

Lovely? - May 5, 2018, 6:53 pm

Yea i like the idea with a fake Crypto market, add a leaderboard and a nice weekly or monthly award for being top trader.

There should obviously be a way to obtain the fake coins or whatever to invest, posts, threads etc could give a fixed amount of mBTC(Fake btc ofc) (or maybe restart the omnicoin project for this purpose? ? ?)

Who Soup - May 5, 2018, 6:56 pm

I like all of those options and I think it's a new and creative change that this forum needs.

GhostLikesToast - May 5, 2018, 7:01 pm

Here are my opinions/suggestions about OP:

1- This is an amazing idea that I fully support!

2- IMO too childish for the forum. But, something similar to that game concept could be part of something I'll explain about below this numbered list.

3- I think a points system that we could all use like you've described would help to start up a forum economy(much more than present marketplace eco). This would obviously in-turn bring HF A LOT more traffic and stimulate activity from new/core/vet users. Unless there's something you and I have overlooked Omni, this feature seems to not have any thinkable Cons. In-Fact, it has countless Pros. Needless to say, I fully support this idea and hope to see it implemented!

4- I like the idea of making games/challenges for the community, but I don't think it's smart to encourage the hacking of HF user accounts in any way. IMO instead make something like CTF challenges for HF, or even like you mentioned, you could make fake websites for users to try to hack, maybe even for points or awards?

I think it would be extremely beneficial to HackForums to add a section/place to make/share/play games! This would encourage people to learn coding and share their creations with everyone. And I'm sure the top coders/videogame masterminds of HF will get together at some point after the hypothetical release of this feature, and create magic... aka, an amazing game for all of us(Those not yet motivated enough to learn/code/make a game.) to play.

This Idea might seem a little out there... But any kind of platform that allows people to create art, in any form, will help the community IMO.

Good Example: You could make a community gambling game that uses the points system mentioned before. I'm sure A LOT of people here would use it to gamble points that they didn't even have to pay for. :) I know that would make me happy at least

If you do add the points system, I suggest to have certain restrictions so no new users can obtain/use/spend/trade points, to protect from PSA(Points System Abuse). Maybe require 1 year account life or even better, a required prestige #(since that is 'secretly' calculated) before they can access the feature.

Sorry if any of this seems redundant/obvious to anyone. Just trying to best explain my opinions to you, Omni, and everyone else who's reading. Hoping to get some feedback on this post. What did you think? Post/PM and express your opinion. ? ?

HF Live radio was good fun for the community while it was running. Would be cool if you wanted to support it.

We were getting up to 60 solid listeners for shows, but Radio Staff were not dedicated to it as it wasn't official. There was no special group/badge/recognition on the forum.

I think you should re-consider the idea. Some HQ members have contacted me, wanting to start it again too.

It would provide a great platform for users/groups to do shows, people to sell products and make great content.

I'd ensure its kept neutral, free from any group drama/biased. As well as ensuring HF is promoted in a respectable way.

test - May 5, 2018, 8:50 pm

On-site gambling with fake points could be a great way to put that Ace of Spades award to good use.

Users start with amount of 'points' ($) each month. If you really want to add incentive for users to upgrade you could make Leet members get more than un-upgraded, and Uber get even more than Leet. Users can wager these in poker matches with other users. Not sure how hard it would be to code (or find) a simple poker script that uses on-site points where you can sit at a table of 5 or 6. Once you go bust you are out for the month. Credits refresh at the end of each month. User with the most credits at the end of the month wins the Ace of Spades award.

Adds incentive for users to upgrade if they want more starting money. Adds some on-site competitiveness. Another award that everyone loves to fight for.

The gambling idea sounds fun as hell.

I like the idea that whoever makes the most in a month gets the ace of spades award and gets to wear it for a month. Then if someone tops them next month they lose it, so the award would always be circulating.

I also think that types of milestones would be cool. Like once you've earned a net profit of x amount of HF points, you get a permanent award.

Positive - May 5, 2018, 10:09 pm

The gambling ideas sound pretty cool especially with it being point based instead of real money. The rest of them seem fun as well besides the monster game. Don't really know how I feel about it.

ZeroOne - May 5, 2018, 10:13 pm

Option one sounds really good even though it might be a little more chaotic than expected.

Option two does sound a little childish but I'm sure a lot of members here, including myself, would at least give it a shot since we all used to be gamers at a point.

Option three is by far the most option that got my attention, it sounds wonderful. I can see this working out if it was some sort of live poker and/or blackjack. I don't know if that's possible though.

Option four would be quite educational for a lot of members, specially the ones that are not that much into hacking like myself. The award would be enough incentive to get us to try learning and doing anything.

Thank you, Omni. Hope you have a good day/night. ?

Noisy - May 5, 2018, 10:39 pm

Not really a bad idea to be honest. I don't mind having all implemented into the forum, especially the gambling system I am looking forward for that.

Poutine - May 5, 2018, 10:54 pm

You should create some type of cybereconomy around the forum. I know you have tried multiple times similar ideas and it never really was easy to adopt.

I would go with the gambling but I would make it as an API or something easy to implement elsewhere.

I would love to see users sell products on the marketplace and add some type of promotions around the economy created.

You could easily randomize using encryption the output.

Pay 5$ in HF credit for a chance to win from 5% to 25% off your order. Chances to win are located here : (LINK TO INFORMATION ABOUT THE ALGORITHM) The seller receives the token directly in his account but has no control over how much of a deal he received between his 5%-25%.

You would easily help the market get back on track with similar ideas

You could also implement a system for group where you pay a membership through the currency to be apart of the group. All of that would be around the currency created.

I am not on this forum to have fun. If there is no point to play the game I give a low % of my time to it

Idea 1,2,3,4 are very good on paper. But you have to create an objective to it. Awards doesn't help the interaction. Currency is what you want

SIM-1589588 - May 5, 2018, 11:22 pm

I think you should go with the first one. One exclusive award is enough to keep it active since normally people are willing to pay up to 1000$ for an exclusive award.

Vegeta - May 6, 2018, 12:15 am

I like number 3, seems like a neat idea and could see a lot of people using the system as an award would be involved.

Number one is pretty nice as well.

Do you recall Titans Carnival?

Something like that would be awesome. I'd love to help with it too if you're interested. We had a bunch of mini games hosted like 8 Ball Pool and you racked up points during that week. At the end, you were able to redeem for prizes. Our next goal was to make a website out of it and include a form of fake gambling but group fell apart (and I started to slack off) before that happened :(R.I.P. Titans!

If these were done on a seasonal basis (every 2 or 3 months), that'd be sick. Week or two long every few months, it'd be refreshing and enjoyable. XMPP chat would make the experience even better.

A scavenger hunt would be sweet too. As an admin, you could put in some cool Easter eggs places outside of what regular users can do. Titans had hosted one as a teaser to our Titans Casino (R.I.P).

Vitani - May 6, 2018, 4:36 am

I really like the ideas of having a forum hosted game. I really like the idea of gambling with points and the cryptocurrency portfolio.

While fun, I do think the monster game and the hacker game wouldn't have as big of an audience as the other 2. Would still be fun to see hacking challenges hosted by HF itself though!

Maybe it would be an idea for the gambling with points idea to get points by making posts/threads etc and then you can gamble against other users (pointsVSpoints, winner takes all) or gamble on your own for cool prizes with the risk of losing your points + a 1% rep kill chance ?

Also the other idea I mentioned before, let me know if that's still of interest.

Juicy - May 7, 2018, 4:20 am

I used to play some game called epic pet wars when I was younger and loved it, you should do number two haha

N1l0c - May 7, 2018, 7:41 am

I'm a fan of these ideas. Games on-site would be fun

Vyxn - May 7, 2018, 8:40 am

That would really be an awesome additive in this forum and I already love your example.

You may also add mini games like offline dino of google chrome and there's a ranking. Actually, google have a lot of mini games where you can get ideas.

Designer - May 7, 2018, 11:33 am

1. Crypto Market Exchange

I think this will be fun for a bit, but can get boring quickly. The reason I say this is because I'm already involved with crypto and I don't think I would spend a lot of time trading "for fun" vs trading with real money (even for an award). I think a member on here also had a fake exchange game running for a bit, but I don't think it really took off.

2. Monster Game

It could actually be fun to have a pet/monster/creature (every user has 1) that you can train/level up by doing all kinds of activities on the forum. Your pet will age (based on your account age), it will gain skills or evolve by posting, reporting, whatever you can think of. Your pet could have various skills such as strength, speed (idk, combat skills), skills that can be used in battling other players' pets.

3. Gambling

I think I like the idea of having fun, quick offline and online multiplayer games to earn/spend points or even just rank on leaderboards (per game based). Not necessarily gambling, but other types of games too. These (mini) games could possibly also co-exist with a pet/monster/creature system where you can earn points or whatever.

4. Fake Hacking

Will honestly require a lot of work to make it interested enough to play and keep it interesting. Remember "Hacker Experience"? It was a game that was hot for a little while, browser based hacking game: <https://hackforums.net/showthread.php?tid=4452999> / <https://legacy.hackerexperience.com/index.php>

You were/are able to do missions, buy software/hardware, do puzzles, hack other players/systems, level up within clans, earn badges and more.

Conclusion: I think 1 will get boring quickly and won't be that interesting for the forum, a combination of 2 and/or 3 could be interesting, even for people that aren't that into it (they'll still train their pet or whatever by posting and being active). Fun quick games are.. well.. fun, so there's that. I think having a per game based leaderboard will probably be the most fun, with possibly an overall leaderboards too. I think 4 will be too much work to make it interesting enough.

Narrate - May 7, 2018, 11:46 am

The only options I see being viable are the betting system and the crypto exchange.

The monster game seems like it would get boring really fast (unless it's implemented with the betting option and you can bet points somehow), and the fake hacking seems like it would need to be super complicated for it to be fun. I feel like the points system would be the easiest and best option to implement as there's already a lot of examples out there you can work off of (that is if you plan to build one from the ground up).

NoSuchAgency - May 7, 2018, 11:50 am

Yes for all of them especially the monster game. Sounds fun asf.

Confound - May 7, 2018, 9:02 pm

This all sounds so fucking cool tbh. I would be most interested in Crypto Market Exchange game as well as some gambling/point system games on the forum. This would really be enjoyable.

Kill Joy - May 7, 2018, 9:43 pm

If the crypto market exchange game is created, perhaps we could create a token and tokens can be rewards for it redeemable for awards/upgrades.

4tl3t1 - May 8, 2018, 2:53 am

Nice! Number 2 looks funny haha xitoxic - May 8, 2018, 9:34 am

I would definitely take part in the Crypto Market Exchange game, that's my field haha

Androctonus - May 8, 2018, 2:17 pm

Anyone remember dragon eggs? That was fun.

CryptixHacking - May 8, 2018, 3:03 pm

I can say for activity it should help no doubt as for it being more enjoyable that is questionable I feel.

I do think a game of some sort should work best though,

A "Fake Hacking" game would be very nice if setup and designed correctly im sure.

Question is if a "Fake Hacking" game was made, Should it emulate or act on methods and payloads to make it more realistic or be pure fake.

As if it was a OS networking "Fake Hacking" Emulation system that can actually help teach users im sure it would get tons of attention. But this could be questionable im sure due to legal issues you cant make its hacking all to real.

Another idea if I may suggest maybe a AI bot where users dont always have to use search but the AI bot you can ask it any question you have and it can reply based on data it finds from its database or even better from the forum itself.

A very smart slick AI bot where you can ask it almost any hacking related question and get a solid reply back. Then maybe have users get awards if the AI bot uses data from a thread or post you created, Like thread/post linked most to for reply. Also you could create some funny replies to some hidden questions or such like hidden nuggets.

But yes I feel a AI hacking bot would be best if not that then maybe a "Fake Hacking" game.

(May 5, 2018 03:00 PM)Omniscient Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Would you find HF more enjoyable if some forum game or interaction was involved?

I've had ideas to add various games/activities to HF which I would hope inspire members to be more involved and active.

Example concepts:

1. Crypto Market Exchange - Fake exchange for top portfolio each month with a winner who gets an award.
2. Monster Game - Anyone remember this? <https://hackforums.net/battle.php> It was a teaser page when Pokemon Go was huge for about 10 minutes. I still think having some type of monster pet game on-site could be enjoyable. Maybe a bit too childish though, I can't be sure.
3. Gambling - Obviously not for real money but I could add some point system here which would allow additional choices for point-based games. And actually I used to do this on HF about 8 years ago when we did run a points system.
4. Fake Hacking - I could write up pages and scripts and making hacking member profiles or other things part of a game/challenge on HF or even across the web.

Does any of this sound of interest to members? Now that we're moving forward pretty quickly through projects I'd like to get more feedback on some of these concepts.1 and 3 would be a good addition with the theme of HF.

As for fake hacking i don't think it would be a good addition since not many know about hacking stuff including me and won't be used by much.

Cooligan - May 9, 2018, 5:28 am

I know I already mentioned this to you, but since we're talking about games/things that would possibly interest the community.

My idea is only certain members would be allowed to host one, but allow members to host raffles on physical items that are worth far more than the entry price of said raffle. This way members could have a chance at winning something very expensive for a very small amount of money and would also add activity.

Like I said, I know I already got an answer from you regarding this so if it's the same answer that's perfectly fine, however I just figured since I saw this thread and you asking that I might bring it up again and see if maybe the idea sounds even remotely good?

Totally up to you bossman. ?

We do this on some other sites and the people who participate always have a really good time.

Fish - May 9, 2018, 5:41 am

Froggy - May 9, 2018, 9:42 am

Points system sound cool to me

Omniscient - May 9, 2018, 12:40 pm

I think for a Crypto Market Exchange game I'd try to offer a crypto prize each month. I might even try to get ICO sponsors willing to offer their coins as the top prize. I think given the current climate and market for cryptos that this has more long-term viability than you realize.

Quote:My idea is only certain members would be allowed to host one, but allow members to host raffles on physical items that are worth far more than the entry price of said raffle.

Raffles are a form of gambling and not allowed on the site. There are legal issues with having raffles so they won't ever be allowed here.

I disabled lots of features to just show for my portfolio. I can always boot it all back up?

<https://consensus.fun/exchange.php?coin=ETH>

<https://consensus.fun>

If Omni doesn't end up adding it, I do not mind running a HF version of the site and giving our prices every month or so.

(Site might take a while to load - I just put it on a $1 a month server..)

And oh, there was 153 members using it: <https://consensus.fun/leaderboards.php>

The introduction of the points system opens a whole lot of possibilities.

1. The fake crypto exchange sounds like a good idea. Maybe use Bytes to acquire the fake currency? Not sure how well that would work, since it would require assigning a dollar value to Byte, but it certainly sounds interesting.

2. Don't really care much for the idea of that game.

3. Again, gambling with Bytes seems like fun. While people don't incur losses that carry real world consequences, they'll still get the thrill of gambling. Something like Bustabit, and even betting seem interesting.

4. Regular CTF hacking contests (something like HackTheBox and OverTheWire) on HF would be very cool! Perhaps reward the winners with, Bytes?

southpaw - July 1, 2018, 8:24 am

Also some type of lottery system with bytes? Where you choose numbers for the month, and if you guess right you get an chance to spin a wheel for an award or other rewards if you was the only one guessing that number. If more than one member guessed the number then the bytes will be splitted with the members guessing the right number.

I think there is much potential with bytes!

It would be fun if there was a game connected to Bits that allowed users to expand their internet empire. And they move up ranks through earning bits and exchanging them for ranks. Starting with Script Kiddie and going up to Bill Gates or something. And instead of your monsters idea: being able to buy hacking and internet related items: Buy 100 White Hat Security Experts, Buy a Crypto Currency etc and then these items help generate more bits hourly and then users compete to create the biggest internet empire.

Yeah that's what I meant, sorry for the confusion haha. Almost like old school Mafia Wars but internet hacker/businessperson and simpler to be forum friendly.

For example, you earn 1000 Bytes through posting and you can buy the virtual item: White Hat Hackers that cost 10 Bytes each. You buy 100 and each one automatically makes you 0.5 Bytes per day. Thus you build an 'empire'.

This would cause users to battle to get the most 'Bytes' and there'd be a rank system depending on how many Bytes you're making that would be internet themed. With the lowest ranking being, for example: Script Kiddie and the highest being for example: Bill Gates.

I understand it may be a bit too much to make, but it's a cool idea.

Tic Tac Toe unfortunately is pretty biased. If player one goes in any corner and then player two goes anywhere BUT the center, then player one can guarantee a victory.

Same with Connect4, except with Connect4 player 1 has a 100% guarantee of winning.

Tic tac toe, chess, etc

This idea sounds really nice. Just from the perspective of engaging site users. WHat uses do bytes have as of now aside from buying signatures? I can't find anything else on it.

1 and 3 seem like they'd be good additions. A lot of people are interested in cryptos, so one I think would have the most interest and engagement.

Amazing all the work that was accomplished in a few years. Hopefully the next 2-3 years will have some great additions to HF as well.
