Thread: [How eBook Sellers Fake Payment Proof \[GIFs\]](#)

Kify - May 6, 2018, 1:17 pm

Alot of people are still believing in simple payment proofs and are throwing money at ebooks because of the 'proofs' provided.

The point of this thread is to show you how easy it is to fake proofs (even gifs)

Simple screenshot:

Spoiler (Click to View) Things needed:

Chrome or FireFox

Login to a payment processor or anything else you want to fake (I'll be using my PayPal balance for this example)

Faking:

Go to your PayPal homepage or whatever you want to fake

Highlight your balance and right click on it

Click on 'Element Inspect'

Now a little box pops up, just change the value which has the same value as your balance into whatever you want

If you can't find the value you need to edit you can press ctrl + f and search for the value of your balance and then edit that

Close the Inspect Element window and there you have your proof

Gif Proof 1:

Spoiler (Click to View) Things needed:

Chrome or FireFox

Gyazo or any other gif recorder

Login to a payment processor or anything else you want to fake (I'll be using my PayPal balance for this example)

You'll need to element inspect your balance to what you want to fake it to, if you don't know how just follow the tut above this one

Faking:

Save the entire page by right clicking and just save the page

Don't change anything and just make sure that it saves as .html

Go to the map you saved it to, click on the html file and open it via your web browser (right click -> open with -> browser)

Now just record your gif and you can refresh the page without a problem while your recording, make sure not to hover over the url/path bar since we'll have to change the url, it should look like something like this:

Save the gif and go to <https://ezgif.com/maker>

Upload your gif and select 'Overlay'

Open a new tab and go to your PayPal balance or whatever you wanted to fake
Make a screenshot of the url, like this:

Save it and go back to EzGif and upload it as an overlay

Click on Upload Image and drag the URL to the URL bar so it masks the path to your faked html page

Now just click on generate image, wait a few seconds and save the .gif Mine turned out like this:

Gif Proof 2:

Spoiler (Click to View) Things needed:

Chrome (Haven't looked for plugins like this on FireFox)

Gyazo or any other gif recorder

Login to a payment processor or anything else you want to fake (This does not work on PayPal as far as I know)

Faking:

Go to <https://chrome.google.com/webstore/detail/word-replacer-ii/djakfbefalbkkgdgnhkkdiihelkjdpbfh>
and install the plugin

Once you've installed it, right click on the 'wr' icon and click on 'Settings', make sure that it's enabled

Click on 'New', put your current balance in the first textbox and to what you want to fake it in the other textbox

Enable it and reload the page you want to fake, it should automatically change to your fake balance, you're now ready to record your gif

Please bump this thread once in a while, alot of eBook sellers are still scamming people with these fake proofs and they'll probably never see this thread because it gets burried after a couple of days.

nice, but u probably shouldn't have posted this

Copywriter - May 6, 2018, 1:28 pm

Bruh... LMAO.

I was like hmm, inspect element is pretty easy to do.. but then when I saw the refresh thing.. DAMN.

lmao now all "3000$/day" ebook sellers will report you

synr - May 7, 2018, 6:15 pm

Ohhh nice lol, sadly people will still buy ebooks :(

Victor - May 7, 2018, 6:25 pm

Lmao all the ebook sellers are going to flock to report your thread, rip this thread

Kify - July 30, 2018, 4:57 pm

Bumping this since I see alot of new threads popping up with gif proofs and I'm sure alot of people will fall for them

Jay - July 30, 2018, 5:43 pm

Imfaoooo people selling money making ebooks are crying

Kify - August 14, 2018, 3:02 pm

3 out of the 3 stickied money making ebooks in the premium sellers section use the fake gif proof I posted here, they didn't have that before this thread lol kinda regret making it now
Still bumping though cuz it's too late to junk lmao

Gen1e - August 16, 2018, 8:03 am

Thanks for sharing this :)

I wish omni would put a sticky on this.

XzoRcisT - August 16, 2018, 8:40 am

Wow lmao this definitely needs to get stickied.

Nice work sir!

Bear - August 16, 2018, 10:49 am

Who wants to pool in money to get this stickied lmfao :P

zeroday - August 16, 2018, 5:41 pm

I don't understand why you posted this. The people that need to see it (new people that wonder about the site and see all these money making methods) will never see it. You've just helped these people that sell money making methods fake their proof.

I do agree with you strongly.

Riyu - August 16, 2018, 6:14 pm

Thanks for spreading awareness. God damn ebook sellers are so shady.

What is common sense to you, may not be known for other people, so thank you for this.

Now that you posted it, I've started to see some seller threads possibly doing this, and it's a bit scary... and lame.

Thank you for your public service.

p1001 - January 2, 2020, 8:00 am

Great info! Knowledge is power.

GreyGorilla - January 2, 2020, 10:26 am

You better remove this thread since it will create more scammers.

rapponchichi888 - May 16, 2020, 9:19 pm

Thanks for the heads up.. definitely another thing to consider when doing business, in fact with anyone online these days. Cheers

Xamarin - May 20, 2020, 9:27 am

Nice release. The last method is actually the most dangerous one, cause you can't really "combat" it, since everything seems legit. Unfortunately there are ways to do it without an extension as well. In any case, a nice small writeup!
