Thread: Theocritus' Product Review for "\$450 Adwords Account Method" by 8BallPoolKing

Before I begin my review, I would like to thank you for giving us ("Appraisers"), the opportunity to review your Product.

Product: Method to Create Adwords 450\$ Accounts by "8BallPoolKing"

Now before I get into this method I will talk a little bit about the other aspects of this product. Now this method is not written in an eBook at all, you get it shown and taught directly over video by OP. For me OP did a TeamViewer session to show me the full method. We were probably on the call for at least an hour while he showed me the entire process and how to do it all properly from start to finish. While I think its great and all to be taught this live over video, I do really think having this in an eBook format would have been better, as I would then have been able to reread something if I didn't quite understand it or been able to go back to it at any point should I need to read through any of it again. Though as I stated, there is no written guide for this method as of now.

Now the method itself. Well the method is, as it says very clearly on the tin, about how to create free credit Adwords accounts. You will be able to make accounts that are $350 in base value, and then you should be able to add a $100 coupon you can get per account to get that amount up to $450 total. Now personally I have never gotten a coupon for any of the 20 or so accounts I have created, meaning I have only gotten $350 per account. I don't know the reason why I haven't gotten the coupon at all yet, and it seems OP also does not have a great answer on it, as we have been unable to resolve it so far. At some point I am sure we will figure out the issue though.

Now you should also be able to stack these accounts with a little trick to get each account value up to $700 or even $1050 at the very most. Personally I have not tried this trick yet, as it is more of an "advanced" strategy, with higher risk of getting the account banned. As far as I understand anyway. As I have not tested this personally yet I can't confirm if this trick actually works properly or not, but from what I have seen it should work well overall.

Now as I mentioned earlier I have made around 20 accounts with this method so far. If you were not already aware you will have to spend a little money on each account, but of course way, way less than the value you can get out of each account. When I started using this method the average cost of each account was around $5 to have it setup fully. Now though it is more like $8 per account, or even $17 with a most recent change. The reason for these changes in cost per account is in relation to a supplier you will need to get something from, so you are then in turn able to get the accounts working. This supplier has increased his prices a lot lately and I am hoping the price will drop down again and not stay at this level for long, as the price per account would then start getting fairly high.

From the 20 or so accounts I have created, around 80% of them have worked perfectly and delivered the ads I wanted etc. The remaining 20% of the accounts, in this case around 4 of the accounts, were banned for one reason or another. I am not sure exactly why these accounts were banned, but I am sure I did something that triggered a flag in Google's system somewhere. Anyhow if you do the method to a tee and do it properly, the majority of your accounts should run just fine and deliver results for you in no time.

The setup time of each account will only take you 10 minutes or so when you know the process. It might take you a little longer in the beginning as you will probably want to double check you got it all correct etc. It is not a complex process though and you should get the hang of it fairly quickly.

To make this method work you will need to download a program, sign up to a site and buy a thing or two from a few different suppliers. The items you will be getting from these suppliers is what costs you. As said the current cost per account creation will be around $17 if prices stay as they are right now. If they are lowered again it will be more like $7-8 per account. One of these suppliers you will need to actually interact with to get the things you need from them, meaning you will need them to be online and free for you to be able to do it. Because of this you should probably try to make at least a few accounts at a time.

OP's live video tutorial was overall fine, but it is clear he is not a natural English speaker/writer and communication was not the best during that live showing in my opinion. Also, as I mentioned above, this method has no eBook, meaning you will only get the video tutorial and support from OP about how to use the method. I would really have liked OP to put this method and process into an eBook as it would be much easier for many people I think. I myself took notes during the video tutorial so I was sure I didn't forget anything. If this would have simply been in an eBook format I would not have needed to note all these things down or struggle much with my first account or two. I would really recommend OP to make an eBook for this method, though I see it as unlikely to happen at this point.

The price point of this method though is probably the hardest thing to chew so to speak. I got my copy at $200 as it was a sort of an early adopter/review copy, but now prices are $300-500. I mean yes, this method does work fairly well overall, and it is not that hard to setup either. And sure, you can make a good amount of profit with this if used intelligently. But as the current price per account creation is around $15+, I think the pricing is simply too high in my opinion. Personally, I think the $200 I paid is already more than high enough and I don't think it should cost more than that. Alright sure, I can understand that OP wants to limit the amount of people that buy this method with the higher price, so the method then doesn't get too saturated. But I simply just don't think charging over $200 is fair. Yes, you can make a lot with this if you know how to market, and know how to exploit the method to the max. But as the cost per account has gotten as high as it has, and that meaning you will need even more profit per account to break even or make much money, I do not think the current price is fair at $300-500. I would advice OP to put the price down to around $200 max, and then if needed just stop sales for a little to tackle the saturation issue.

Personally I have spent around $120 for the 20 accounts I have made so far, and I have roughly made $400 or so in profit. These profits are from sending traffic to my own Shopify stores. Now that profit number may seem small, but I only recently found a winning product to sell, so that's why the revenue so far has been a bit lack luster. You can make much more than that if you have a great converting referral or a great store of your own etc.

Final Thoughts

To OP I would really suggest you make an eBook for this method, so it will be a lot easier for people to understand and use your method to the fullest. It would really make it easier for people wanting to make their first account, and also for people that have a hard time of getting all the info on the first go.

If you are looking for a brand new and mostly free advertising stream then this method will most of the time do that for you. You will have to spend a little on each account, but if you know how to monetize and earn money off your ads you should be absolutely fine and make lots of profit in the long term. I think this method is the most useful to Shopify store owners, business owners in general and everyone that wants to advertise their own content and/or products.

Small Update

Now i have seen a similar method to this being sold for $5 on here and also pronouncer made a giveaway for it yesterday i believe. Now these two methods are the same on most points, and they are very similar overall as well. I have not really tried the free method approach personally so i cannot confirm if it works or not, but according to some people it does. Again though as i said, there are a few small differences between this method and the free one, though yes, they largely do the same thin

I think I have seen this method on sale for $5 else where...

Seems like it's the same method through reading the review. Correct me if I'm wrong but it includes the $15 for a specific VCC that isn't flagged yet and won't get billed allowing you to run up 350-400 before acc gets closed.

Yes i did see some other people were selling something similar, though i do not know of its the same method. I cannot say if it is correct or not as that would be leaking info lmao

That's fair enough. I'll probably release my method of doing this, either way good review.
