

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Looking for help with Bing Ads Voucher

Boterbabbelaar - May 12, 2018, 10:48 am

Hi guys,

Maybe it is a stupid question but I just cannot manage to get a free Bing Ads voucher of x dollars. I tried it a few times via Bing Ads, but since I do not own a business or I do not have my own website, I just cannot receive the code. Does anyone can help with getting a voucher code for me, or help me with receiving one?

If you got any resources where it is explained in depth how to get a code, please let me know.

Hope you guys can help me since I really want to start my own affiliate marketing program without spending too much money.

Cheers!

Ivex - May 12, 2018, 12:58 pm

Buy a cheap domain name + hosting and host your landing page there, then you have a website. Sorted.

Boterbabbelaar - May 13, 2018, 11:17 am

(May 12, 2018 12:58 PM)Ivex Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Buy a cheap domain name + hosting and host your landing page there, then you have a website. Sorted.

Can I use this website for multiple vouchers? And besides that, do you have any recommendations for hosting services, how much does it cost and is it a one time fee or do I have to pay it monthly?

Tuple - May 14, 2018, 4:54 am

(May 13, 2018 11:17 AM)Boterbabbelaar Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Can I use this website for multiple vouchers? And besides that, do you have any recommendations for hosting services, how much does it cost and is it a one time fee or do I have to pay it monthly?

Man, you can easily search up these things by yourself on Google within a minute, but I'll do it for you anyway.

I highly recommend you buying a domain, however, you can get any free hosting, doesn't matter since you won't use the site a lot.

Here are links to Namecheap $0.48 and $0.88 domain offers:

Link to \$0.48 domains

Link to \$0.88 domains

That's the price for one year, you can just cancel it later.

You can see lots of different cheap domains and just make multiple accounts for hosting if it doesn't support multiple domains for free.

Then just set up a WordPress blog or a static website, put some pictures and text on them, make it look at least a little bit professional and you are good to go.

Then for each domain, just claim Bing voucher. I'm not sure how exactly that works, but reading your original thread, you may need to make new Bing accounts as well.

Boterbabbelaar - May 14, 2018, 4:58 am

(May 14, 2018 04:54 AM)Tuple Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Man, you can easily search up these things by yourself on Google within a minute, but I'll do it for you anyway.

I highly recommend you buying a domain, however, you can get any free hosting, doesn't matter since you won't use the site a lot.

Here are links to Namecheap $0.48 and $0.88 domain offers:

Link to \$0.48 domains

Link to \$0.88 domains

That's the price for one year, you can just cancel it later.

You can see lots of different cheap domains and just make multiple accounts for hosting if it doesn't support multiple domains for free.

Then just set up a WordPress blog or a static website, put some pictures and text on them, make it look at least a little bit professional and you are good to go.

Then for each domain, just claim Bing voucher. I'm not sure how exactly that works, but reading your original thread, you may need to make new Bing accounts as well.

Thanks a lot ?

Sc00by - May 14, 2018, 9:04 pm

I'm pretty sure you can also just make text ads on bingAds and as long as your URL's aren't mismatched, and your tracker is set correctly you should be fine to not need to make consistent landing pages if that's what you're going for.