Thread: can you help me to find a bug \(vulnerability\) in my universty website

r3el - May 20, 2018, 10:10 am this is the website : (hec .dz) (delete spaces in the url)

im want to hack it, so please help me to find any way to hack it

0xB9 - May 20, 2018, 2:34 pm

If you don't even know how to find vulnerabilities then how in the hell do you think you're going to know how to "hack it"??

I'd recommend you not try to hack your schools website without permission since that's illegal and you seem very inexperienced and will most likely get caught...

But with that being said... you can easily see the website is using WordPress, so there's your start.

Nope, I gave you a start.. now it's up to you to learn something on your own.

Nobody is going to hold your hand and do everything for you, you're going to need to learn to take the initiative and do stuff yourself especially when trying to hack your schools website without permission...

What is your reason for wanting to do this in the first place?

Do you have any idea how many people I have heard say this? You're an idiot if you try this, regardless of how "fine" you think you'll be. You are not familiar with this area, quite obviously; and that only makes things worse. We are trying to keep you out of trouble.

BxSlider v4.1.2 (2014) is used on that site and is vulnerable to XSS. There are several more outdated and unsupported plugins being used. Other than that they have followed the guidelines in hiding wp-json/wp/v2/users and keeping Wordpress updated to 4.9.5.

If you don't care for school then let your parents know I am sure that they will save money as this is probably a private school. Get a glass which you can fill up with water and a clothes iron before hand when you tell them .. yup honest job a "Makwagi", of course you may have to apprentice first but it will keep you busy, get you money, and more than likely won't have a website that you can think about hacking.

Here is a bit of history so you can better convince your parents:

Go focus on your education.

Sometimes help comes in the form of good advice and if I wrote anything in a condensing way I apologize.

Scrat - May 25, 2018, 11:47 am

Oh lol there will be a golden article about you dude if you get anywhere that is.
I'd suggest you to learn some more about privacy and how to hide your ass on the web if you're to do this.
Also posting on a public forum that you'd like to hack your schools website is a very dumb idea.
Stay safe my man!
