Sounds good.

What OS does the builder run on? Also, how do downloads in a web browser behave. I would imagine it might bypass some of the security due to it not being an .exe, or maybe it can be hidden in a .zip inside a .zip easier

It runs on any Windows OS.

Yeah you will have to use a bit of SE and that's where the "decoy" option helps as well.

Scenario: You generate a shortcut called Image.jpg.lnk with a JPG icon. If you select the decoy option, then you can supply a URL to an image you would like to open when the LNK is opened. Then your EXE will execute after the image. If you add a delay then the delay takes place between the Decoy execution and the EXE.

Yes for sending it out, or to be downloaded from a URL it would require that.

But if you get creative, in person with a USB is quite effective.

Is it a must you need to zip it before uploading in a host?
And when the file is in zip, what does the file extension looks like while in the zip?

Qismon - May 30, 2018, 4:03 pm

(May 30, 2018 12:57 AM)ezefab1 Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Is it a must you need to zip it before uploading in a host?

And when the file is in zip, what does the file extension looks like while in the zip? Yes needs to be in a zip, if you try to upload a .LNK most of the time it wont upload, it will just upload the file the .LNK is pointed to.

In this case it would be Powershell.exe MSHTA.exe or Regsvr32.exe

And the extension will always be .LNK but on a Windows machine mLNK.jpg.lnk looks like mLNK.jpg.

If you search around I'm sure you can find some HEX editing techniques that would even permit that when viewed in a ZIP or RAR that you don't see the real .LNK extension.

To everyone waiting for me to send them mLNK.

I just came online and am checking all the PMs, thanks for being patient.

Thank you sir for the free UAC bypass you published willingly or accidentally in your Preview Video ?

Looks interesting what you did there with the decoy picture. Would be interesting if the user clicks it when he has no internet connection. So for example if he likes the picture and wants to save it. Wouldnt it be better if the .lnk gets replaced by the decoy picture? Or what if the .lnk gets delivered via usb to a mostly offline computer. So inserting a picture and startup into the .lnk script could be more efficient. Just some thoughts while i watched your video.

You are welcome! ?

The .LNK script is not sent with the .LNK, you host it online and its downloaded in memory.

If no internet connection is a problem then yes it can be done still, but the script would need to be on the USB and any moving parts already embedded into the script.

As well if internet is needed you could add a simple loop that checks for an internet connection and sleeps if there is no connection. Another freebie have fun.

Code function checkNetwork() {
    $checkNetwork = Test-Connection -ComputerName 8.8.8.8 -Quiet -ErrorAction SilentlyContinue
    while($checkNetwork -eq $False) {
        Start-Sleep -s 30
        $checkNetwork = Test-Connection -ComputerName 8.8.8.8 -Quiet -ErrorAction
        SilentlyContinue

Its a .lnk which is a shortcut. You will need to put it in a .zip.

Works like a charm

There is a video on the OP check it out!

Jacque Fresco - July 10, 2018, 11:57 am

Pro: whenever a connection to 8.8.8.8 comes up the program will continue doing its job downloading the files

Con: there will always be a process in the taskmgr

(Jul 10, 2018 08:19 AM)Qismon Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) PHP Code

        $checkNetwork = Test-Connection -ComputerName 8.8.8.8 -Quiet -

Pro: there will only on startup a process

Con: it is not running if their is a internet connection comming up while computer is running

PHP Code

<?php function checkNetwork() {
    $checkNetwork = Test-Connection -ComputerName 8.8.8.8 -Quiet -ErrorAction SilentlyContinue
    " if $checkNetwork
= False { - im not a ps programmer so what should happen is that here the script exits
        EXIT!

on a case where the computer gets only sometimes a connection the first code would be better, but running a process on a machine watched by a technical can be to obvious.

Can the lnk itself bypass UAC? Or the payload is the one that bypasses UAC?

Because lnks usually don't trigger Smartscreen but UAC always pops up.

The lnk itself there is a UAC bypass setting on the software, mate.
If you use powershell payload it will bypass SS

Other Ink builders I'm 99% sure were nothing like this. Other Ink builders you need the .exe and .lnk in the same folder. This you ONLY need the .lnk

The icon will stay as the one you selected, it will not change.

Yes I only use icons from shell32.dll or imageres.dll

So every Windows system will have them and no extra icon is needed to be sent.

You could convert the .LNK to a Base64 string then stick it inside just about anything.....doc, xls, vbs...etc

Just need a function to reconvert it as a binary file to disk certutil does this easily.

In the video looks like its working fine but what happens when you download the output lnk from the internet? will that pesky 'Open File - Security Warning' message pop up? You should have uploaded the lnk to the internet and re-downloaded it just to show us how undetectable it really is, it would have taken you just an extra minute in that video.

Wow your FIRST post!

It takes an extra minute to read the title (SmartScreen Bypass)
LOL (facepalm)

If you are talking about this: <http://prntscr.com/kkr6jw>

Then that ALWAYS happens with ANY file that is downloaded off the internet, unless using a 3rd party application such as SKYPE (not skype web or the NEWEST Skype since it is like a Skype Web version.)

If you are talking about this: <http://prntscr.com/kkr72c>

The best Microsoft is doing is AMSI, and well....its easier to bypass than UAC which is NOT a layer of security either so I wouldn't worry too much.

Tested on windows 10,download works but UAC is not bypassed(fix it)

Imlerith - August 24, 2018, 12:21 pm

Does it bypass WinDefender runtime?(ik if you scan it on any site it will come up as powershell etc... but if you actually run it will be detected, i tried some of the public LNK exploits and they all get detected :(

Also does it drop ur payload in Appdata or Temp folder before executing it ?

And does it also show a small popup window for a few seconds before executing the payload ? i hope thats only for the powershell method, because the public LNK exploit worked with that and it always opens that black popup window so if the user closes it then it wont work :(you can avoid that by going into properties and selecting minimized window, but if someone is super careful he will ofc notice that below aswell, so do your other 2 payload methods like mshta and XML also suffer from this problem ??

Ren And Stimpy, think logically

if someone tried to use a multi-client account

then he would not try to run the key generator on the same PC each time

I can show you screenshots of the launch of a key generator on several PCs how can they be all banned?

Rudiger Smoot - September 19, 2018, 7:52 am

Please show proof I even downloaded from the link you sent me. I can prove I didn't. It has never, EVER been clicked on or used for a very simply reason - when you sent it I was on a Chromebook. I switched to this Lenovo Win 7 laptop to download, which is when I saw the insane rant from you two - but, if you check, you'll see the link still has not been clicked or the file downloaded, never mind activated or a key generated.

I will happily live teamview the activation of the generator and you can see live it's first install.

Seriously, this is just daylight theft.

This is a SALES thread and not support. You can contact me if you have issues

(Yes you have waited 24 hours, I had something come up yesterday and had to leave my computer. Sorry I can NOT be online 24 hours a day!)

Qismon - October 18, 2018, 11:00 am

All copies sent out, please check PMs if you were waiting.

As for those that complain about waiting 24 hours...really you think we just shit code?
If i was online 24 hours a day the code would be shit.

When I am not online for a few days is when I am actually coding and new features/updates are added.

Be patient and stop shit posting here or you will wait longer, if you have a problem then PM one of us, better to PM RenAndStimpy as he gives support.

If you have a question he can't answer he will direct you to me. Thanks!

Actually it is FUD.

If you are getting detection when execute then your STUB is not fud, which mLNK is NOT a crpyter

This is a SALES thread and NOT a support thread.

Been using this for a while now, seems to work just fine.

One question, already asked by PM, but probably interesting for more people:
When i put the shortcut in a zip and people download it, they get an open file warning:

<https://i.imgur.com/Gv73Xzg.png> is there a way to get rid of that?

RenAndStimpy is going to be offline for a few days, if anyone wants to purchase or needs support just send me a PM or write me on jabber.

Online and open for sales! ?

immortal1 - October 30, 2018, 11:02 am

You should also mention that your product is not FUD.
the .hta payload and .xml payload are heavily detected. I'm not even going to bother checking ps1.

You're intentionally misleading people.

Before you say "This is not a support thread' & to PM you, I already have.
I PMd you about this issue, and you said you were working on a new version.... That was days ago.
This product is more or less useless until the payloads are refud'd.

i sent you the 250$ for ebek 2 days ago why didn't you reply?

Ren And Stimpy - October 31, 2018, 6:41 am

We are NOT misleading people at all. V2 is being worked on and all lifetime members who have v1 will receive v2.

As stated Version 2 is being worked on. It is impossible to make version 2 OVER night. You need to stop posting on the sales thread and contact us on Skype, PM or XMPP

You do not scan the .hta or the .xml the .lnk is what you send dude

STOP posting support issues on the sales thread!

This is NOT The EBEK thread.

It is true, your version has not been updated with new payloads.

I told you in PM that I was working on v2.0, and you keep shit posting on a sales thread.

Someone uploaded the HTA to Virtustotal, this happens, but I told you before this is not a support thread and RenAndStimpy gives great support to anyone that doesn't act like an ass.

You will not receive v2.0, goodbye.

You can ask support question via PM. Skype, XMPP. Which I do support for MANY projects on HF!
If you ask for support on a SALES thread, you can be breaking the TOS.

Glad you made your own .lnk generator. LOL

"Shitty" software? Hmmm, I think not. LOL (if so it is 100% public source)

V2 coming soon! New options, new tools, new everything!!!!

There will be a few changes in pricing and plans as well and regular updates to remain FUD, new encryption methods, etc. when mLNK v2.0 comes out.

I will like to try this out;

Do it really get 100% Bypass WinDefender | SmartScreen | UAC on Wins 10?

Whats the detection Rate ATM?

Is it stable & reliable?

Waiting ur good reply/answers to decide buying or not.

Yes it does bypass all those no issue

Right now v1 is detected by AVAST/AVG (famous AVs) v2 is being worked on and will be released, soon.

1. Hey guys, when we should expect this 2.0 update?

2. If I will crypt the EXE file and it is FUD on runtime, after creating LNK file AVAST/AVG will anyway detect on runtime?

It is in beta testing now, I am making sure there are no errors before pushing new update, but so far all good so a few more days and v2.0 will officially be released.

If your EXE is runtime FUD it will bypass just fine, mLNK v2.0 is also runtime FUD. The Avast/AVG detection has been taken care of. ?
