Thread: Wireless headphone

LazyNotStupid - May 31, 2018, 9:47 am

I'm looking for a good wireless headphones for gaming and music listening.
Don't need a mic.
Any recommendations?

I'd probably not spend more than 200€

Any preference? Such as over-ear?

Could try the Corsair Void, Logitech G533, G930, Or a G933.

I would wait and see what others have to recommend though, Do note if you do get something that has a Micro-USB charge port as those can break rather easily when wearing the headset whilst charging.

I've heard good things about G933 and steelseries arctis 7, not sure which one to buy though.

Well, I have a G933 and for the price I paid, It wasn't that bad. Somewhere around 60 was what I paid. The only complaint I have is that they don't support Linux.

Check out Philips Fidelio X2

They're awesome

i purchased the HyperX Cloud wireless headphones. They where great but felt like they lacked in sound quality and would not work with my bluetooth TV. Took them back abnd got the steelseries Arctic Pro and they are amazing. Work with PC,PS4,XBOX,TV everything!

My G933 is the same. It uses a USB port but as long as the 3.5mm jack on the end is connected to the source audio it works. Even came with cords for RCA support.

Ack cloud anything pass.....

Speaking of wireless and all, whats the encryption on the things in question, i mean so that all your neighbors can't listen in just for a joke when your making funny sounds on porn sluts 5000 site then we turn it in to a YouTube that goes viral with a pic of your face!
