Thread: Run4Me Weird Behavior With ESET NOD32

FalsifiableMeme - June 7, 2018, 7:33 pm

I crypted my file, and it shows up as clean during scantime AND runtime on my VM with ESET, my friend's PC with ESET, and even VirusTotal(yes I even scanned there to confirm). They were all up-to-date as well.

However, when I scan on Run4Me, the screenshot says that ESET detects it as Win32/Injector.DVCR during scantime. Why is run4me giving this detection, but every other source is not.

Maybe they need to reset/reinstall ESET on their machine?
