Thread: QOTD: What is your source of income? Do you have multiple streams of income?

AnonymousRevenge - June 12, 2018, 10:34 pm

So! Question of the Day!

So the question: What is your main source of income if you have any? And if you do, do you have multiple streams of income or just one? If you do have multiple streams, maybe name off a few?

So I work as a social media marketer and hope to establish my agency sometime around the next 2-3 months. I invest in cryptocurrencies and do some affiliate marketing on the side. Dropshipping is also one of my streams of income, which takes about 30 minutes to an hour of work a day (very little time). I have about 3-4 streams of income other than my main one and hope to make even more than that before starting college. Hope to see some hustlers down in the posts! Smile

King 69 - June 12, 2018, 10:35 pm

I don't have a source of income, yet, but I am trying to find a method here on HF and I am willing to invest/buy the right methods.

Shuxas - June 12, 2018, 10:38 pm

Well as of now I dont have any source, but Hopefully soon I will, and itll just be a simple irl job, nothing online.

SIM-1097664 - June 12, 2018, 10:45 pm

Work a full time job, 36 hours one week and 48 the next. Not too bad since they're 12 hour shifts so that's only working 3/4 days a week, plus its pretty lax and I can do shit like browse on here lol.

Working on some side stuff at the moment too.

Salodm - June 12, 2018, 10:52 pm

Work only you pay a salary to pay your rent.

Sounds like fun buddy! I worked an hourly job once and I hated it, so I changed my lifestyle to make it so I can work whenever, wherever I want. Besides some meetings and such with some clients, I'm pretty much free.

2 main streams of income that take up most of my day. I help run a social media marketing agency and do SEO consulting for private companies. Also @op you do quite a bit for just starting going to college keep it up man!

AlphaIndustries - June 12, 2018, 11:09 pm

I've got my own company in solar panels, which is keeping me busy for around 50-60 hours a week. Other than that I sometimes make cheats and resell them for a quick buck.

At least do some simple affiliate marketing, takes some patience at the beginning but it becomes autopilot at the end! Invest some time into researching how to make money online and you'll be on your way to making $1000+ passive income per month if you do it right.

What I'm doing right now is building up experience and trying to run my own business so I won't be slaving away for scraps after college. And hey, mind PM'ing your discord? I'd like to talk to you about your SMMA and SEO business, kind of on the downside right now and my client isn't making as much progress as I thought he'd be.

Good way to start hustling buddy, keep it up! Maybe import some stuff from Aliexpress or DHGate in bulk and sell those on the side too! Or even better, make a bundle (ex: Bundle1: 1 shirt, 1 hat, 1 pen. Bundle2: Pair of socks, sunglasses, and a wallet.) Could make you good money!

Might buy some soon after I finish a few years in college, wanting to build my own house :) and coding huh? That's a great side hustle buddy, you can find people to make cheats for, they'll pay good money. :)

Haha it's not too bad. The pay is good for no college, I like what I do, I like the people I work with, and I like the environment. Sure I'd rather work from home and shit, but I really can't complain that much.

That's true, when I worked hourly I used to at least feel a little less lazy, actually felt like I was doing some good amount of work. Even though I get that feeling now, it's just that sometimes sitting around gets me thinking about a lot of stuff and then the starting college stress gets to me lmao.

Surprisingly profitable. Every 6 months I get like 500-800 tests and double the number of quizzes.

I currently have multiple sources of income, and am working on building additional ones. This is what I do with my free time, so not only is it my career, but also a hobby that I enjoy. While my developer is in a third world country, I live in the US.. and have been blessed enough to be in a position to have completely change my developers life financially.. thru his hard work, and dedication to coding a lot of my projects. 7 years working together.

L?G?ND - April 29, 2024, 3:06 pm

Fortunately, I've established multiple incomes and could retire if I lived within my means. Receiving benefits from the military is a blessing, but owning a business to bring in an additional income helped solidify my financial freedom. Although I have a full time job as well, I don't necessarily depend on this source of income. Having that freedom allows me seek out better opportunities, especially when the work environment is or turns toxic.

Wow, Demon. What a throwback.

Put a fat fucking smile on my face.

Time goes very fast dude. Very very fast. Each day feels barely in the hours. That's the cost of being insanely productive.

AltPump dominated the scene, being the first of its kind; a Web-base, non downloadable solution to a problem which destroyed my competitors.

Still to this date there has been no eyes on any competitors building what I built. I built something truly insane. Comprises of multiple servers all communicating via sockets facilitating user trades in millisecond reaction time based events is just crazyy.

It's just truly sad that the crypto market in itself was deep in the bear market and that understandably had a huge negative impact as an overall. Nonetheless, a great showcase of what I am capable of, and in some ways it has paid off with the likes of the new partnership I found myself in, as you know... :) :)

I really appreciate you tagging me dude.

Typically I am a high powered salesman, but I am not working for a company at the moment. It would be unreasonable to expect that I could attain the level I was sustained at the job, but I do not think it is out of this world to start making something happen.
