I think it would be better if the default option was youtube when inserting a video, right now it's in alphabetical order and daily motion is the default.

Let's be honest most videos that get posted are bound to be youtube by changing this so that youtube is the default it's 2 fewer actions the user has to perform when inserting a video to their post.

Just a quality of life thing I guess, since this is going to be I quote "the best website on the internet" or something to those words.

I know this is not a direct solution but you can manually type the [yt] tags instead of letting go of your keyboard and using the button.

I thought about this last week but honestly is it really worth the trouble for them to change? You just gotta move mouse down a little bit more.

Obviously it will take a little trouble but collectively it makes life easier for the vast majority of the community for just a few lines of code.
