Currently I don't own a store, those earnings are from a person i'm mentoring. (He let me put it on there).

I owned a store back in 2017 and made about $400-$500 a day, so like $12k/month in revenue. I'm trying to save up a few thousand to start working on a store in an untapped niche so I can scale it heavily.

EDIT: If you're wondering, how come you don't have money if you made $12k/month? I was like 16 and didn't know shit about managing money, spent most of it on designer clothes and other shit.

Yea I know what you mean about money management lol. Back when I made a good amount with CPA, I would spend it on bullshit instead of being smart with it.

I'm extremely interested. It's just a lot of money. I'd understand if you had proof of recent earnings, etc.

Why not start a small store on the side? If you can show me earning if even $100/day I'll happily purchase this.

So i purchased the shopify store setup and Windows made me a really nice looking store, gave me some tips on how to get potential customers, and the store took around 2 days to make.

I litteraly got sales the past few hours after the store was done. The products that he chose one of them were winners and i'm making pretty good money about $150 or so a day and I havent scaled yet

Vouch from me thanks Windows again.

SpeedWolf - August 2, 2018, 1:12 pm

What makes your service unique, instead of using things like fivr... ?

I know Shopify services and 1&1 mentoring is unique to find on HF, but it doesn't mean it can't be found elsewhere for possibly the same price or less, although it's not much of a deal trying it out your service, just saying that you have to be pretty legitimate to provide such service in the first place if you get where I am getting at.

I would give you a tip as of what you could do; Since is HF revealing your identity is sort of a no brainer thing not to do but, you could and it is recommended that you think of qualifications that you might of accomplished or you think have in your mind from long period of experience, which is essentially listing your skills in more detail...

Another thing, you generally haven't included which most on the marketplace do provide, is FAQ. Which are questions that even if you don't ever get asked frequently about it, is a good thing to create a friendly environment for a potential customer you might face, in case they have any queries in advance. Although I have spotted that you have attempted doing something like FAQ but only on a single question or two which won't generally do the job for you essentially.

The last thing I would say is, you do have potential to sell your service in whatever price you desire, but you have to re-think the techniques you use to present your service, vouches don't really matter in whatever cost, 2-3 vouches are pretty much fine and stacking lot's of them doesn't really create a good image, when it's essentially making the potential customer confused.

The only logic I can give to you is, each "$" spend means that quality has to be higher..., overall don't picture this as a sale trash but as a good foreshadowing review of how your thread is potentially performing in a buyer perspective.

If you found this helpful, then send me a rep :)

Deleting comments? You're clearly hating on me in both of my threads, if you wanted to buy it we can use a middleman till you make sales.

I own an actual service not some shitty ebook

So you get an already setup shopify store with products and custom desc etc, and also mentorship?

Only marketing needed pretty much? And how much would you recommend to atleast have to invest besides the $350?

PM me if u want
