Create a ton of content and it won't seem like so much. 50 posts gets you a ticket, or 17 threads with a byte or two left over ?

Based on the fact that members don't make a ton of threads compared to posts, if you make 5 threads and 35 posts you can afford a ticket.

Honestly a great idea. If you got 10 people to work together you could each earn 1000 bytes and have your chances substantially increased as the raffle is in a week so not a lot of people will be able to earn more than a ticket or two.

When creating a lottery the owner has the opportunity to set a starting prize. This is taken from the owner's Bytes. After that, each entry adds to the prize pool.

Keep in mind that there is a "House Cut" and "Owner's Cut".

Current HF House Cut is set to 10%. For this specific lottery the Owner's Cut is set to 0%.

Example of how the percentages work...

Prize: 1000

House Cut: 10%

Owner's Cut: 5%

House Earnings = $(1000 - 10\%) = 900$ (which leaves $1000 - 100 = 900$ remaining)

Owner's Earnings = $(900 - 5\%) = 855$

Final Winner Prize = $1000 - 100 - 45 = 855$

Tomorrow we will update the page so that the current prize reflects the prize AFTER cuts.

CURRENTLY it shows the prize before cuts. We will adjust that tomorrow. (Jul 4, 2018 06:16 PM)

They will go to Help Bot: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=3583467>

There is no current use planned for them, but they will at least be stored there. Before we thought to keep them in Help Bot we had it set so that the House Cut was a blackhole (Bytes disappear).

This thread best suits in Member contest section(or separate section for lottery) buddy
I will collect bytes to enter this

But it would have been fair if instead of giving all 10,000 bytes to 1 member you could have splitted bytes to give for at least 3 members. So the members get higher chances of winning. That was my opinion but its your contest so you can do anything you want

I don't think we will do that. Once r00t has permission to start Lotteries I think one winner is fine. They won't get as much attention as mine imho and may have much smaller prize pools.

I'm also thinking this system could be used to pick winners in Contests.

After doing some quick math current chances of winning the lottery are:

1 tickets 0.29% chance of winning

10 tickets 2.97% chance of winning

If anyone wants to increase their chances of winning, we can go 50/50 on the winnings. Just PM me, you must have 10 tickets though.

Yeah, it would pretty much ensure fairness throughout the section, you could even consider setting it as a requirement for giveaways where the winner is picked at random chance.

I think it's better to keep it to 1 ticket per person because I think when everyone has 10 tickets it might put people off from wanting to participate, last time there weren't as many participants as I thought there would be.

But yeah, I think the overall buyin could be a bit more expensive since people have had a fair bit of time to farm bytes now.

The whole point is to gamble and put the amount of risk you want. A 1 ticket limit would be horrible
