

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Marketplace & Threads etiquette

iamvexatious - July 11, 2018, 4:02 am

Hey!

I'm just wondering what the rules are around making new threads when you have changes to your product are.

For example I have one I'm planning to re-structure the pricing on and want to re-do the thread, I'm not able to edit the post & bump as I haven't upgraded yet (one of these years) am I right to just make a new thread & link the old one for any vouches or can I contact someone to allow me to edit it.

May seem simple but I wanna make sure I do the right thing from the get-go, Thanks!

minimalist - July 11, 2018, 4:04 am

We can't edit threads for you after you've hit the restriction, but you can contact us to close your old thread and post a new one.

iamvexatious - July 11, 2018, 4:06 am

(Jul 11, 2018 04:04 AM)minimalist Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) We can't edit threads for you after you've hit the restriction, but you can contact us to close your old thread and post a new one.

Oh easy enough, Do you mind if I drop you a PM with the threads I want closed or best to use the contact button on the top right?

minimalist - July 11, 2018, 5:53 am

(Jul 11, 2018 04:06 AM)iamvexatious Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Oh easy enough, Do you mind if I drop you a PM with the threads I want closed or best to use the contact button on the top right?

Not at all, feel free :)