Thread: [Providing Tutorials? \[Solved\]](#)

No Sports - July 21, 2018, 7:48 pm

Already answered!

Hello,

not sure who / where to ask, so I create a thread here. Probably this will to the least harm.

I have a lot of tutorials about Coding (especially video tutorials from Udemy (warez disallowed), Udacity, Pluralsight, Team Treehouse and Code School). Is it allowed to provide these here (since its piracy)?

I could upload them on mega for example.

Best regards,
thanks!

No piracy is not supported here, piracy is for pricks

To pirate a game and to share knowledge are, in my understanding, two very different things.

Under common law they are the same. That's why I asked. So since "piracy is for pricks", I assume it is not allowed to share these tutorials?

Thanks for your answer.

They are looked at differently and that argument was used against the DMCA. But nonetheless, they are still copyrighted and protected.

ok, thanks! Understood!

@DenizZ: of course, but first you should read "how to be a useful part of a discussion" ?
