Thread: Having a stoke or something.

Toasties - July 26, 2018, 12:33 pm

Okay I don't think I'm really having a stoke, I just have no idea what on earth is going on.

Has anybody else experienced the feeling where everything goes really loud to you and everything moves really slowly and you feel like crap for awhile?

It hasn't happens to me for years but it's hit me like a truck. Anybody had something like this and or know whats happening?

Enronitis - July 26, 2018, 12:36 pm

Uh.

If you're concerned I'd see a doctor.

moetron - July 26, 2018, 12:37 pm

Sounds like derealization, could you maybe explain in more detail what's happening?

n0XZe - July 26, 2018, 12:38 pm

Go lay in a real cool bath! and chill brudda! its the heat fuckin everyone up!

luke - July 26, 2018, 12:39 pm

Doesn't sound like a Stoke to me.

I have no idea how to explain it, its like somebody has put a loud speaker in my head and its make it feel really light headed and weak.

And everything i see is in slow motion but the sounds and voices I hear a slightly faster and louder.

Doesn't last long but feels terrible. It's gone now.

Keep in mind is winter here.

Possibly not derealization then, I'm not really too sure.

I think you should definitely check in with a doctor about it though because that doesn't seem normal, even if it only occurs once in a while.

Low blood sugar?

Heat stroke?

Panic attack?

Fever? (some fevers can cause weird symptoms like this)

Yeah it could be a panic attack, the others just don't seem right.
But I'm not panicked, I'm calm as.

But I'm not panicked, I'm calm as. I suffer from lots of panic attacks and the feeling of "hits like a truck" "hasn't happened in years" etc sounds like a panic attack to me. You don't necessarily need to be panicked I've had panic attacks from just feeling kinda crappy.

You don't need to be panicked to have a panic attack? That's really strange concept haha. I'll do some research into that. Can you describe your panic attack?

TB12 - July 26, 2018, 1:44 pm

Might be, you lost the ability to spell stroke

Spoiler \(Click to View\) sorry I had to lol

Good spotting didn't notice. Unfortunately I can't edit it on my phone nicksaban1 - July 26, 2018, 2:08 pm

Stroke*

Sounds like anxiety or a panic attack. Not much docs can do about it, but there are mental and breathing exercises that you can do to "control" it.

JAS - July 26, 2018, 2:54 pm

yes yes yes wtf... I get these all the time especially when I'm sick. It feels super bad and everything goes louder and I feel like I'm not alone, Literally, it's insane. I once recorded mine it was like 3 am and I was up late watching videos then it hit me, I literally put my hand out for my phone and tried doing it fast but it took me at least 10 seconds to get to it. I hit the record button and just sad there pale. Shits quite scary.

DenizZ - July 26, 2018, 2:56 pm

Do you happen to use drugs for many years?

Sounds like kundalini energy. The medical symbol with the snakes represents Kundalini. Just google it but in short its basically your energy grid in your body. Trauma, stress ect causes imbalance flow of energy. When your in a safe spot in life, or releasing painful memories the energy starts to flow better. You will feel sick, light headed, vertigo ect. Some people even feel like their head in going to explode. I am not a doctor just google for more info.

yrnGarry - July 27, 2018, 7:23 am

I doubt you would be able to type this thread if you were having a stoke. But this does sound serious, and I hope you're able to go to a doctor to get this checked out

Korvo - July 27, 2018, 7:30 am

Well you should def go see a doctor..

It could be something as simple as you being dehydrated..I don't know how much water you drink, but should try and drink a gallon a day.

Hope you feel better homie.

ETH - July 27, 2018, 7:40 am

Take coconut water whenever you're needed for water it helps you

Ravioli - July 27, 2018, 11:12 am try having a toke instead ?

Heartboy - July 27, 2018, 11:21 am

What in the actual fuck is a "stoke"?

Mr.Cat - July 27, 2018, 11:25 am

Yeah i get that sometimes.. Also every sound that i hear i feel it very heavy inside my head and everything is soo loud... I usually get that sometimes when i have a fever or i havent slept well (or from the heat)

Op take some sugar

BeNT- - July 27, 2018, 11:52 am

I get stoked like every day.

Stoked I woke up. Stoked I had a shower. Stoked I saw my kids, just stoked. It's good to be stoked about life.

Seriously tho, see a dox for your symptoms man
Be safe.
