

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: How to open deal dispute?

Opgebaarde - July 29, 2018, 10:38 am

I have a problem with an user of this forum and my refund requests keeps getting deleted from their sales thread. I would like to know how to open a deal dispute and do I need to upgrade my account for that?

SIM-3587630 - July 29, 2018, 10:40 am

If you haven't made a contract, then you can't open a DD, or anyway it will be invalid

Almonds - July 29, 2018, 10:40 am

You would have needed to issued a contract with the individual.

Opgebaarde - July 29, 2018, 10:41 am

And what kind of contract is that? I purchased a private method, with autobuy of an user.

Almonds - July 29, 2018, 10:46 am

(Jul 29, 2018 10:41 AM)Opgebaarde Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) And what kind of contract is that? I purchased a private method, with autobuy of an user.

Check these links out, Here & Here and always use contracts when buying any product- even if it's $1, even if it has auto-buy.

Otherwise, the seller cannot be held accountable via dispute.

Opgebaarde - July 29, 2018, 10:51 am

(Jul 29, 2018 10:46 AM)Almonds Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Check these links out, URL and always use contracts when buying any product- even if it's $1, even if it has auto-buy.

Otherwise, the seller cannot be held accountable via dispute.

Thanks for your help!

And again, my deal dispute has been deleted. Are these people affiliated with mods to protect these scammers?

Vince - July 29, 2018, 11:27 am

(Jul 29, 2018 10:51 AM)Opgebaarde Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Thanks for your help!

And again, my deal dispute has been deleted. Are these people affiliated with mods to protect these scammers?

You're an idiot and need to read the rules and help sections of the site before any further use. Literally, links all over the place and you're too much of a retard to take the time to read them. You LITERALLY deserve to lose your money if you can not read and follow simple rules.