

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Hacking school Network

Random1234567890 - July 30, 2018, 6:27 pm

Hello,

I am trying to back my school network,

There is one PC everyone uses in my classroom.

We use novel login to log into our seperate school accounts with all our information on.

All this information is stored on the network servers.

I was able to hack the local login and log in as a administrator and download a password capture program onto the PCs hard drive. (Local disc)

I am aware I only have admin privileges for the local drives and can't get access to the network drives.

I was wondering if this key logger program would capture the key logs of people logging in using novel login on this certain PC which hard drive I've installed a key logger.

If possible since the teacher logs into the computer I could capture their password, then being able to log into their account and having admin privileges on the school network

Regards

Bear - July 30, 2018, 6:31 pm

You will end up in jail for a long long long time if you think that way kid. But anyways, good luck with everything.

B FOR BADASS - July 30, 2018, 6:59 pm

Hacking school Network = Behind Bars/Charges Laid upon most probably..

SysAdmin - July 31, 2018, 1:46 am

A lot of schools have security cameras in place. If the IT Personnel notice anything out of the ordinary, they're going to go through logs to hunt you down. Once they do, getting expelled is the least of your concern. Any and all actions (Including you installing a keylogger) are logged, which is definitely not a good way to go doing stuff.

I've been there before, I've done a lot of shit at school, but with my knowledge at the time, I was very lucky I wasn't caught. I did not do anything that would cause suspicion though.

Take care of your Operational Security and use Virtual Vulnerable machines to practice your skills, not real networks.

SeekHelp - August 1, 2018, 5:32 am

Good luck in court, comrade, I'm sure keylogging your teacher is worth the time.

nicksaban1 - August 2, 2018, 1:52 pm network access shares? log in domain as administrator. iirc, novell was very similar to windows server.

anyway, before that, buy some soap on a rope, ull thank me later.

HangMansheart - August 2, 2018, 2:51 pm

Man, I'm low key sick of these. Don't bite the hand that feeds you; why not take your education seriously and use it to learn about hacking?

Find others who have similar interests and maybe even give your computer science teacher a shout to learn a bit.

And plus, if you're not mature enough to know not to hack your school, then I wouldn't trust you with any knowledge of hacking.

Change your education for the better and turn your target into your sanctuary. Also, everything is logged and kept on OUTSIDE servers that are way less easily accessible than regular school servers. But, just so I don't seem entirely like an asshole,

here

are

a few

resources

:)